WHAT IS THE R.S.P.C.A. ?

WHY IT WAS NEEDED

WHAT IT HAS DONE

A few particulars of its early History.

It is interesting to look back through the past and watch the gradual change of public opinion towards a higher civilization—and it is gratifying to realize that the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has contributed its share toward this end, not only for the benefit of our own country, but also for the whole world.

Two startling facts stand out and show eloquently how much has been done during the last hundred years.

In 1809, the Noble Members of the House of Lords jeered when a Bill was introduced for the amelioration of the condition of animals; while the Honourable Members of the House of Commons, or the majority of them, felt that it was not “a fit subject for legislation.”

In 1910, when Mr. George Greenwood, M.P. for Peterborough, and a member of the Council of the R.S.P.C.A., introduced on behalf of that Society, a Bill to mitigate the sufferings of old and worn-out horses intended for export, he was greeted with cheers, and the Bill was passed in an incredibly short time.

Truly times have changed. A little over one hundred years ago, when a man was charged with horrible cruelty to a cow, the case was dismissed because the cow was considered to be only a farm implement, and, therefore, was the man's own property! A few years after that amazing judicial verdict, in 1809, Lord Erskine had the temerity to introduce a Bill for the protection of animals into the House of Lords, and this endeavour was greeted with cat-calls and other attempts to silence him. But the seed was sown. Richard Martin, M.P. for Galway, now known to history as “Humanity Dick,” took up the cause, and again and again attacked the subject, until in 1822 his Bill, which was called "An Act to prevent the Cruel and Improper Treatment of Cattle," now known as Martin's Act, was passed. And the seed brought forth fruit. A meeting was called, to quote from the advertisement in "John Bull" of November 3rd, 1822, "when it was resolved: 'That a Society be formed for the purpose of preventing, as far as possible, the cruel treatment of brute animals.'" The founder was the Rev. Arthur Broome. Little progress was made till two years later, when we read of this pioneer giving evidence at a meeting, held to carry out his scheme, as to the horrible cruelties in the streets, which were so common that they escaped comment. At this meeting, held on June 16th, 1824, with Mr. T. Fowell Buxton, M.P., in the chair, certain guiding principles were agreed to, and a Committee was formed, including such splendid workers as Richard Martin, M.P., William Wilberforce, M.P., and Lewis Gompertz. It is interesting to note, too, that among the first members to join the Society was Elizabeth Fry, of Prison Reform fame.

Statesmen considered—as do some people still—that brutality and strength were synonymous terms, and grew eloquent in support of bull-running, and baiting, when the first attack was made against these "sports"; but such pleadings were valueless against the convictions of men like Richard Brinsley Sheridan, who considered "it was the most mischievous of all amusements and most calculated to brutalize their manners." He further stated that "he must consider cruelty to brute animals a crime, and therefore if there were no laws to prevent, if not to punish, such cruelties, there certainly ought to be." Unfortunately, the public, inured to cruel sights by bull-running, bear-baiting, cockfighting, and the like, did not support the work, which was being carried on against great opposition, and in 1829 a meeting was called to wind up the affairs of the Society owing to a lack of funds. Help came, however, from an unexpected source, in the shape of a legacy from Mrs. Radcliffe, the novelist, and another attempt was made to continue the beneficent work of the Society. It was the turning point in its fortunes.

Perhaps the greatest encouragement to the Society's work came in 1840, when Queen Victoria granted it the prefix "Royal," which title it has enjoyed ever since. During that year the first two Country Branches of the Society were formed—at Liverpool and Norwich. Even before her accession to the Throne, as a girl of sixteen, Her late Majesty showed her sympathy and interest with its cause by becoming Patroness, for she realized, to quote her own words, that "No civilization is complete which does not include within its sphere of charity and mercy the dumb and defenceless of God's creation." It needed courage in those days, when the whole question of humanity to animals was looked upon as a madness, for a girl sixteen years old to enlist on the side of those who were the subjects of ribald jokes; but her wonderful instinct for what was good for her country, besides, her kind heart, made her show a practical interest in the work, which has since enjoyed the support of her successors, including H.M. King George V., who is now its Patron, and was for many years its President.

What it has done. The subjects of bull-baiting and dog-fights were again and again introduced into Parliament, and further questions as to the cruelties in knackers' yards, cruelty to dogs, the skinning of live cats, slaughter-house reform, the suppression of cock-pits, etc., were brought up, negatived, and withdrawn. But each year Richard Martin, or one of his courageous followers, brought such matters to the notice of the Government, and this continued action at length made its impression felt. The Press took up the subject, and, one by one, the outworks of cruelty were stormed and taken. Petitions were presented to Parliament praying for an extension of "Martin's Act," and for the betterment of slaughter-house conditions : the removal and enlargement of Smithfield Market was pressed to a successful issue ; and by-laws were passed by various local governing bodies prohibiting gross, and by now recognized, cruelties. In 1835, the Cruelty to Animals Act (5 and 6 Wm. IV.), amending "Martin's Act" and suppressing bull-baiting, bear-fighting, cock-fighting, dog-fighting, etc., was passed, and two years later this Act was extended to Ireland. In 1837, the Society instituted a prosecution for bull-running at Stamford, and obtained a conviction. But this "sport" was not stamped out until the Society appealed to the Secretary of State, Lord John Russell, who, in the following year, sent a troop of 35 men of the 14th Light Dragoons, and twelve Metropolitan Policemen to Stamford, assisted by "twenty respectable tradesmen," to put an end to the "sport." It was also stopped at Stone, in Staffordshire, in the same year.

Owing to the action of the R.S.P.C.A., the dubbing of cocks, the cropping of dogs' ears, the slow bleeding of calves, and the dishorning of cattle, have been made illegal. In 1845 the Society initiated an amendment of the law regulating Knackers' Yards ; in 1849 a new and much improved Act for the more effectual Prevention of Cruelty to Animals ; in 1854 an Act prohibiting the use of dogs as beasts of draught or burden throughout the United Kingdom ; and many other Acts of Parliament resulted from its work, including :—

- 12 and 13 Vic. cap. 92 and 17 and 18 Vic. cap. 60, Acts for the more Effectual Prevention of Cruelty to Animals ;
- 39 Vic. cap. 13, an Act to prevent the administration of Poisonous Drugs to Animals ;
- 39 and 40 Vic., cap. 77, an Act which regulated experiments on Animals (Vivisection) ;
- 43 and 44 Vic., cap. 35 : 44 and 45 Vic., cap. 51 : 57 and 58 Vic., cap. 24 : 59 and 60 Vic., cap. 56, Acts for the Protection of Wild Birds ;
- 57 and 58 Vic., cap. 57, an Act to consolidate the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act 1878 to 1894 ;

- 63 and 64 Vic., cap. 33, an Act for the Protection of Wild Animals in Captivity ;
 4 Edward 7, cap. 4, an Act for the further Protection of Wild Birds (Pole Trap Act) ;
 7 Edward 7, cap. 5, an Act to re-enact with amendments the Injured Animals Act, 1894 ;
 8 Edward 7, Wild Birds Protection Act, to prohibit the capture of birds by fish-hooks ;
 10 Edward 7 and 1 Geo. 5, Diseases of Animals Act, 1910, in respect of the Exportation and Shipment of Horses ;
 1 and 2 Geo. 5, cap. 27, Protection of Animals Act, 1911, an Act to amend and consolidate previous Animal Acts ;
 2 and 3 Geo. 5, cap. 17, Protection of Animals Act, 1912 (amending the above).

It is sufficient to say that the R.S.P.C.A. is the mother of the many Societies to be found all over the world, and that it grew from small beginnings and passed through countless vicissitudes, until it has become one of the important factors working for a higher civilization.

It has not only created laws ; it has seen that they were kept, and it has brought the wrong-doers to justice.

Upwards of two hundred and fifty thousand convictions against offenders in cases of cruelty have been obtained by the agency of the Society's Inspectors.

It must also be borne in mind that an incalculable amount of suffering is prevented annually by the presence of the Society's uniformed Inspectors at race-meetings, rabbit-coursing matches, pigeon shoots, menageries, circuses, live-stock dealers' shops, fairs, cattle markets, and other places where animals are sold or employed, such as in carting for building purposes, market gardens, going up steep hills, at sea-side resorts, and at pleasure gardens and exhibitions. The Society's Inspectors also constantly patrol the streets and roads in their districts, and thus ignorant and cruel people are deterred from breaking the laws by realizing the strict supervision exercised. A comparison of the 24,836 cautions given in 1913 by these officials, as against 6,555 convictions obtained by them during the same period, bears eloquent testimony to the fact that the Society prevents rather than prosecutes.

The prosecuting of offenders has been, and is, only one side of the Society's work, and by no means the most important one. The R.S.P.C.A. does not, as has sometimes been suggested, aim at putting people in prison, but rather the reverse, by engrafting in them, as a result of education, a moral responsibility towards the animals in their charge. And for this purpose it publishes, and circulates broadcast, Cautionary Placards to warn would-be offenders. By the agency of its 200 Inspectors, as compared with 5 Inspectors employed in 1861, and by its organization of 970 Branches and Auxiliaries in England and Wales, it advises on the proper treatment of animals, so that, while in the one hand it wields the " big stick of correction " for those who deserve it, it endeavours with the other hand to lead people, by persuasion, to a better understanding of those very animals, their natures and their needs.

Its Educational Work. The Society, by presenting Silver Medals for Animal Life-saving at great personal danger, or by rewarding lesser acts of gallantry with framed certificates ; by holding Annual School Essay Competitions on the subject of Kindness to Animals ; by organizing Bands of Mercy for children all over the country ; by inviting the clergy to preach sermons on mercy towards the dumb creation on Animal Sunday (Fourth Sunday after Trinity) ; by gratis Lantern Lectures, addresses and entertainments ; by its publications, " The Animal World " and " Band of Mercy " ; by lending, gratis, selections from its very large and unique collection of Lantern Slides and readings ; and by issuing thousands of instructive pamphlets on the treatment and uses of animals ; is bound to have in the future, as it has already had in the past, a far-reaching effect on the coming generation.

The R.S.P.C.A. works not only to better the treatment of animals, but it also aims at the improvement of a child's moral nature, by widening his interest in life and by teaching him forbearance, self-control, and courtesy. For, as Ruskin said, " it is character building which is our great business in this world. No small part is done by our treatment of the animals committed to our care."

Education against cruelty is the most powerful weapon, for education means a greater knowledge, while cruelty means a lack of it, both of the sufferings and cruelties involved, and of the needs for proper treatment which we all—human and animal alike—inheret by right. Therefore the Society pursues a practical policy by having stalls at Agricultural Shows, Horse Shows and at other places attended by men who earn their livelihood by dealing in animals, i.e., farmers, shepherds, drovers, stablemen, farriers, and the like, with whom it would otherwise be difficult to get into touch. It creates friendly relations with such men by holding suppers for drovers, slaughtermen, and cab drivers, and by organizing Horse Parades and Donkey Shows at which substantial prizes are given for the best conditioned animals. It also draws public attention to the special needs of animals by letters and advertisements in the public press, on such subjects as deserted cats, chained-up dogs, dogs following bicycles, the wearing of osprey feathers, the tight hame and bearing reins, docking, etc.

Thus the Society has grown ; working steadily, and bravely bearing contumely ; it has become stronger every year until it has come to be recognized, as was said by the late King Edward VII., to be " one of the great important philanthropic societies of this country." Each year brings some fresh reform, as each year brings some fresh work to be done, and truly it can claim that it has worked unremittingly

“ . . . in fighting for the weak,
In voicing truth for those who cannot speak,” and “ . . . in leading many a thoughtless mind
To think of being kind.”

Work such as this has to be done, and since the Society is only SUPPORTED BY VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS, it pleads for financial aid. The increasing operations of the R.S.P.C.A. have drawn from its funds an amount vastly exceeding the yearly subscriptions. Opportunities are constantly arising where funds, if they were available, could be well expended, for the purpose of placing more Inspectors, and for extending the educational propaganda and for this the Council beg for donations, annual subscriptions, and legacies (see page 146).

It is important to remember that the Society receives no Government grant, and takes no share of the penalties inflicted as a result of its prosecutions, therefore it is solely dependent on the generosity of the public.

- (c) If he ceases to be a Member of the Society.
- (d) If he dies, or is found lunatic, or becomes bankrupt, or of unsound mind, or is guilty of any conduct which, in the opinion of four-fifths of the Council, is prejudicial to the interests of the Society.

VIII.—Whenever a casual vacancy occurs amongst the Members of the Council (other than Branch Representatives) it shall be reported at the next meeting of the Council, but the vacancy shall not be filled up at that Meeting, and no candidate shall be proposed for election at a Council Meeting unless notice in writing, with the name and address of the candidate, and also of the proposer and seconder, has been sent to the Chief Secretary at least fourteen clear days prior to the date of the Meeting, and such names shall be added to the notice convening the Meeting. A Member elected to fill a casual vacancy shall have the same rights and privileges, and hold office for the same time, as the Member whose place he fills.

IX.—The Council shall appoint a Ladies' Education Committee, consisting of not more than fifty lady Members of the Society who, however, may be empowered to add to their number, to carry out, subject to the control of the Council, any special operations in respect of the educational side of the Society's work.

Any Member of the Society shall be at liberty to bring forward for discussion at the Annual General Meeting any Resolution, provided that notice thereof shall have been given in writing to the Chief Secretary at Headquarters not less than twenty-one clear days before the day of Meeting, and that in the opinion of the Council such Resolution is a matter of general interest to the Society.

XVI.—The Council may summon an Extraordinary General Meeting of the Society on any occasion when they may deem it necessary. An Extraordinary General Meeting shall also be called on a requisition signed by not less than one hundred and fifty Members of the Society. The requisition shall specify the purpose for which the Meeting is demanded. The requisition shall be sent to the Council of the Society, and it shall be the duty of the Council to summon an Extraordinary General Meeting of the Members without unnecessary delay. No business other than that specified in the requisition shall be transacted.

XVII.—All Annual and Extraordinary General Meetings of the Society, to which only Members entitled to vote shall be admitted, shall be summoned by advertisement inserted in at least three of the principal London daily newspapers. The advertisement shall be inserted not less than twenty-eight clear days prior to the date appointed, stating as far as possible the business to be transacted at the Meeting, and it shall for all purposes be deemed to be a sufficient notice to all Members. The Chief Secretary shall also give twenty-eight days' notice to each Member whose name and address are recorded at Headquarters.

(By order of the Annual General Meeting, June 10th, 1914.)

ANNUAL REPORT for 1913.

Your Council have pleasure in presenting their Report of the work accomplished by the Society during the year 1913, which shows, not only that the high standard in the past has been well maintained, but that new fields of usefulness and activity, in the amelioration of the conditions of the dumb creation, have been opened up.

Educational Propaganda. Your Council, being convinced (as they stated in their Report last year) that the most effective method of preventing cruelty to animals is to impress upon the public generally the importance of cultivating a spirit of thoughtfulness and consideration, and of acquiring more accurate knowledge of the treatment of animals, have largely developed and extended their sphere of operations in this direction, more particularly in regard to educational work among children and young people. In this connexion the following statistics will be of interest. No fewer than 472 lectures and addresses were delivered by members of the staff during the year, being: addresses at annual and other meetings of Branches, 126; lectures to drovers, carters, etc., 28; popular lantern lectures to boy scouts and others, 73; addresses to Bands of Mercy, 245.

(a) Animal Sunday. Your Council rejoice to be able to record a considerable increase in the number of clergy, and ministers of various denominations, who responded to the invitation to bring before their congregations, on the fourth Sunday after Trinity, the duty of kindness and mercy to the dumb creation, in accordance with the special teaching of the Church on that day. The number of sermons preached amounted to 4,524, being 419 more than in 1912. Your Council feel that this total might be, and should be, considerably augmented, and they would urge upon all members of the Society to use their influence with their clergy or ministers, as opportunity arises, so that—at no distant date—the plea for the animals may go forth from every pulpit throughout the United Kingdom on that day.

(b) Annual Essay Competition. This valuable method of guiding the thoughts of the children, in all the elementary and secondary schools within twenty miles of London, to the obligation of gentleness to, and consideration for, animals, was inaugurated by your Society upwards of forty years ago. The interest and enthusiasm shown by the boys and girls in this movement increases annually, and last year no fewer than 292,000 essays were sent in. Your Council were fortunate in securing the presence of the Duchess of Marlborough at the Crystal Palace on Saturday, May 17th, when her Grace, assisted by members of the Ladies' Education Committee, distributed the prizes and certificates to the successful competitors. Many of the children arrived at the Palace as early as 9 a.m., and the centre transept was filled with parents and friends of the competitors.

(c) Essay Competitions in the Branches. Your Council record with satisfaction that an increasing number of Branches and Auxiliaries of your Society are adopting a similar propaganda in their respective areas. The following is a list, with number of essays written :—

Branches.—Bury—Lancs, 1,870 ; Chester, 996 ; Exeter—North and East Devon, 130 ; Glamorgan—West and Swansea, 3,886 ; Hampshire—Romsey, 185 ; Kent—Dartford, 189 ; Kent—Dover, Folkestone, Sandgate and Hythe, 2,600 ; Leeds, 11,000 ; Liverpool, 22,430 ; Manchester, 18,000 ; Nottingham, 4,796 ; Scarborough, 936 ; Shropshire, 500 ; Staffordshire—North, 7,000 ; Surrey—Epsom and District, 351 ; Surrey—Purley and District, 74 ; Wakefield, Barnsley, Dewsbury and Pontefract, 3,108 ; Wirral, 9,344 ; Yorkshire—York and District, 500.

Auxiliaries.—East Dereham, 25 ; Hunstanton, 40 ; King's Lynn, 40 ; Marlborough, 257 ; Oldham, 4,489 ; Prestatyn, 13 ; Stockport, 400 ; Thirsk, 405 ; Wellington (Salop), 150 ; Woburn Sands, 9.

(d) Band of Mercy Movement. The results following the appointment of a special Band of Mercy organizer, which your Council made in 1912, have amply justified the action taken. By means of numerous calls on clergy, school-teachers, and others, she has explained how these Bands can be worked, and assisted in setting the organizations on foot, and then has subsequently re-visited the same locality, giving lantern lectures which had been arranged beforehand. In this way your Council hope to establish Bands of Mercy in every village and town throughout the country, which they feel confident will prove an enormous power for good. No fewer than 104 new Bands were formed during the year, making a total of 730 affiliated Bands of Mercy.

(e) Technical Lectures. The success attending the work of the technical lecturer, appointed by your Council last year, has been very marked. His services have been welcomed in many of the Branches, where he has delivered courses of lectures on the treatment and diseases of the horse, and similar subjects. They have been specially appreciated by drovers, carmen, stablemen, and others, who have welcomed the opportunity of acquiring the knowledge to enable them to avoid cruelty through ignorance of the habits and needs of the animals under their charge. He has also addressed a considerable number of troops of Boy Scouts, Church Lads Brigade, Boys' Brigade, and kindred organizations, and wherever the meetings have been arranged by the heads of the movements locally, the audiences have been large and enthusiastic.

(f) The Society's Publications. Not only have the two monthly magazines, "The Animal World" and the "Band of Mercy," increased in circulation, but the various leaflets and pamphlets issued have been in great request. Your Council would urge upon every member of the Society the desirability of subscribing for "The Animal World" (2s. 6d. per annum, post free), because they will thus keep in touch, month by month, with the work and operations of the R.S.P.C.A., besides acquiring much interesting knowledge through the special articles contributed by well-known authorities on animal and bird life.

The Traffic in Worn-out and Decrepit Horses. Your Council would remind you that the Society began a campaign against this abominable traffic, immediately it was started, a quarter of a century ago, and for many years worked single-handed against these cruelties. In 1909 the matter was taken up by the press, and, aided by public opinion, your Council was able to secure the passing of an Act of Parliament, which has undoubtedly effected an improvement in the traffic, although it is our aim to put an end to the traffic altogether.

In 1898 a special deputation interviewed the President of the Board of Agriculture, with the result that the Exportation of Horses Order was issued. In the winter of 1906, a special deputation was sent to Antwerp, Ghent, Rotterdam, and Amsterdam to watch the traffic, and report on the condition of the horses on arrival at these ports. The following year, as a result of this report, a deputation from the R.S.P.C.A. went before the Secretary of the Board of Agriculture, and urged the appointment of more inspectors, and the introduction of a proper system of veterinary examination of all horses intended for shipment. Shortly afterwards, an unsuccessful attempt was made to secure further legislation on the subject.

In 1910 a special deputation was again sent to the foreign ports. As a result of the reports then published, and inspired by the practical interest shown by His late Majesty King Edward and Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, the public took the matter up, and the Society's Bill, introduced by Mr. George Greenwood, came into force. The Act—known as the Diseases of Animals Act, 1910—compels an examination of every horse, immediately before shipment, by a Government Veterinary Surgeon. Unfortunately, in the opinion of the Society, the process of examination by Government Veterinary Surgeons, under the Board of Agriculture, has not proved effective in stopping the cruelties of the traffic, or in substantially decreasing the number of old and worn-out horses taken to the various docks for shipment. Evidence of this was brought to the notice of the Secretary of the Board of Agriculture by a special deputation from your Society in June, 1913. It has been proved abundantly, by independent eye-witnesses, that unfit horses are still shipped from this country.

Since 1902 the Society has obtained over 1,000 convictions for cruelty in travelling old horses to the docks, and these figures only represent work done in England and Wales.

In 1912—to quote from the most recent statistics—44,911 horses of a value of £10 and under were shipped to Holland and Belgium. The monetary value speaks for the condition of the animals.

In 1913 Captain the Hon. Arthur Murray, M.P., on behalf of the R.S.P.C.A., introduced a Bill to amend the Diseases of Animals Acts, 1894 to 1911, making it illegal to export, alive, horses of a value of £10 and under. This Bill was read a first time in the House of Commons, but expired automatically at the end of the Session.

Your Council are sparing no efforts to arouse public opinion to demand that this horrible traffic—rightly called the “shame of England”—shall be permanently ended.

New Branches and Auxiliaries. Your Council have pleasure in reporting that during 1913 six new Branches and sixty new Auxiliaries were started, the former being Huntingdonshire, Kent—Folkestone and District, Surrey—Caterham and District, Surrey—Purley and District, Surrey—Weybridge and Byfleet, and Worcester City, while among the newly-formed Auxiliaries may be mentioned the following important places: Addlestone, Barnard Castle, Bicester, Bishop Auckland, Braintree, Clacton-on-Sea, Frome, Kirby Stephen, Lytham, Melksham, Middlesbrough, Northallerton, Paignton, Pwllheli, St. Ives, St. Neots, Skegness, Skipton, Windermere, Woldingham, Westbury, and over twenty new centres of work in the County of Durham.

Your Council has sincere pleasure in placing on record the successful efforts of a number of brave men, who risked their lives to save dumb creatures from suffering or death. The Silver medal of your Society was awarded in the following cases :—

W. Chantrey, for rescuing a dog from starvation at Ramsgate, in April.

The Humane Slaughtering Movement. Much progress has been made during the past year in this important branch of your Society's work, both the number of humane slaughtering appliances sold, and humane slaughtering demonstrations given, showing a steady increase on preceding years. Following up the public demonstration given at Islington, in 1912, to members of the Meat Trades' Federation, similar demonstrations were given at Edinburgh, Manchester and Cardiff during 1913, at which over two hundred further members of the Meat Trades' Federation had an opportunity of witnessing the latest humane methods advocated by your Society. Private demonstrations, over two hundred and twenty in number, were also given at the following places: Aberdare, Abergavenny, Ascot, Aylesbury, Bagshot, Barry, Basingstoke, Beckenham, Belfast, Birkenhead, Bodmin, Bournemouth, Brighton, Bristol, Canterbury, Christchurch, Clapham, Crewe, Croydon, Dartmouth, Devonport, East Dereham, Egham, Evesham, Faversham, Filey, Frome, Gateshead, Gravesend, Hammersmith, Haywards Heath, Hexham, Hull, Ilfracombe, King's Lynn, Knutsford, Littlehampton, Liverpool, Lyme Regis, Macclesfield, Merthyr, Monmouth, Newbury, Newport, Norwich, Penge, Plymouth, Pontypool, Poole, Saltash, Scunthorpe, Sevenoaks, Shrewsbury, Staines, Stockton, Sunderland, Tavistock, Torquay-Tring, Tunbridge Wells, Uxbridge, West Hartlepool, Weybridge, Weymouth, Windsor, Worcester and York. The number of animals slaughtered was 854, namely, 246 bulls and bullocks, 257 sheep, 314 pigs, and 37 calves; and it is estimated that over four hundred butchers and a thousand slaughtermen witnessed the proceedings. The number of instruments sold during the year was 677.

In many of the Branches, petitions have been signed and presented to local authorities, asking them to apply to the Local Government Board for powers to revise and introduce compulsory humane slaughtering clauses into bye-laws, controlling the local slaughter-houses, the Local Government Board being the central authority of these bodies. The first petition was organised independently of the Society by Mr. Percy E. Hurst, of Croydon, who was successful in getting the Croydon Borough Council to apply for such powers. Brighton, Cheltenham, Plymouth, Rochdale, Southampton, Hornsey, and Chiswick Councils have now also applied, after receiving petitions (many of them started by your local Branches) signed by the inhabitants of their districts, and it is much hoped that other cities and towns will follow suit.

To Mr. Christopher Cash, of Coventry, and Mr. R. O. P. Paddison, of Stroud, Gloucester, your Society owe a debt of gratitude for their untiring and splendid help during the past year in furthering the cause of humane slaughtering.

Horses in War. In the House of Commons recently Mr. George Greenwood, M.P., a member of your Council, asked the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether, in view of the fact that under the provisions of the Geneva Convention the Red Cross affords no protection to those who would visit the battlefields in time of war to relieve, or put an end to, the sufferings of wounded horses and other animals employed in warfare, he would, on behalf of the Government, invite the other Powers so to widen the terms of the Convention as to protect veterinary surgeons, horse ambulances, and such voluntary aid societies as may be duly recognised and authorised by the Governments, in accordance with the resolution passed at the British National Peace Congress on May 16th, 1912. Mr. Acland, in reply, said that the resolution would be borne in mind when the time came for preparing instructions to the British delegates at the next Peace Conference. Later in the year, your Council addressed a letter to the Prime Minister, accompanied by a memorial, in which the following statement, made by the President of the Swiss Republic to the Secretary of your Society, was quoted: "If the British Government would give an undertaking to the Swiss Federal Council to further your suggestion, that body would, without doubt, be disposed to sound the different interested countries as to the reception which such a proposition would receive on their part."

Starving Horses in Constantinople. During the Balkan war, the sufferings of the horses returning from the field of battle, and of the animals belonging to refugees who flocked into Constantinople, were appalling and heartrending. The animals were starving, and often wounded as well. In response to a letter addressed to your Chairman, Sir Edward Ward, by Lady Lowther, wife of the British Ambassador to the Porte, an appeal was issued, and met with such a generous response that your Society was able to forward to Lady Lowther a sum of £1,175. This was expended by the newly-formed "Société Protectrice des Animaux de Constantinople." One hundred and fifty horses from the front were treated, and forty incurables were bought in the market. Of refugee animals, 1,500 buffaloes, oxen, donkeys, etc., were fed for five months, and 13,500 weekly rations were distributed.

Abolition of Funeral Plumes. Your Council have frequently protested against the cruelty involved in the practice of decorating the horses employed for funerals with plumes. Horses suffer much inconvenience, and often physical pain, from the use of the plumes, the weight of which varies from 3½ lb. to 6 lb., under normal conditions, but is much heavier when affected by moisture. The plumes are swayed by the wind, or the animal wearing them becomes restive, with the result that in some cases the poll becomes chafed, an injury likely to bear serious results, and in all cases the animals experience discomfort, and plainly evince it by their movements. After wearing plumes for the first time many horses show their resentment at this treatment so strongly, that the use of a twitch is necessary on all subsequent occasions when these decorations are affixed. In order to prevent the animal from displacing them by the vigorous movements of its head, a tight bearing rein is required, which greatly adds to the animal's suffering. After careful and protracted investigation, it was ascertained from the great majority of undertakers that they were of opinion that the use of plumes is unnecessary and cruel. The only member of the trade who favoured them gave as his reason that "it was an old custom." Your Council then sought the co-operation of the Undertakers Association, and by this means—as well as by individual canvassing of the profession—we were able to secure that, on and after January 1st, 1914, no undertaker throughout the United Kingdom would allow these plumes to be fixed on any horses employed by him. We feel sure you will agree that the gratitude of all lovers of horses is due to those who have so wholeheartedly co-operated with your Society in this reform.

Birds and Lighthouses. Some interesting experiments, fraught with greater consequences than may be at first apparent, are being carried out on certain lighthouses. It has long been known that at seasons of migration countless thousands of birds, attracted by the rays of the lanterns, circle round the tops of lighthouses, like moths round a candle. The unfortunate little creatures, exhausted by their long journey and unable to find foothold, appear hypnotised by the brightness of the light, and at length fall into the sea and perish. His attention having been drawn to the matter, a well-known Dutch ornithologist, Professor J. P. Thijsse, has invented a system of perching rods, which have been tried with the utmost success at Brandaris lighthouse, one of the principal beacons on the coast of Holland. On one night it was calculated that 2,000 chaffinches and larks made use of the perches, while, on another occasion, 3,000 fieldfares were seen resting. The success of the experiment led the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds to bring the matter to the notice of the Elder Brethren of Trinity House. As the result of correspondence, a deputation was received and permission has been given to the latter Society to make similar experiments on the English coasts. It is satisfactory to state that perches are to be erected on two British lighthouses, that of St. Catherine's, off the Isle of Wight, and the Casquets, in the English Channel. In view of the important services of birds to agriculturists the experiments are of high importance.

Objectionable Cinematograph Pictures. The appointment of a Censor of Films was received with thankfulness by those many persons to whom the frequent depiction of acts of cruelty a few years ago was a source of much mental distress. Shortly after his appointment, the R.S.P.C.A. wrote to Mr. Redford, the Censor, asking him to exert his influence to prevent the showing of such films, and it must be evident to frequenters of cinema theatres that films to which exception can be taken on the ground of cruelty have very largely decreased. Lately complaints were received by the Society concerning the representation of a bull-fight, and the Censor was again approached. In a sympathetic reply Mr. Redford says: "I have experienced considerable difficulty in dealing with the representation of such scenes, and a recent film, taken at an actual bull-fight at Nîmes, was reduced more than half in accordance with our requirements, all the most gruesome and objectionable features being carefully deleted. . . . We shall continue to exercise most careful supervision, and endeavour to prevent the public exhibition of films representing horrifying and demoralising scenes." Such an assurance is indeed welcome, and your Council will maintain its vigilant inspection of the films produced, and remonstrate (as they have already done in several instances) whenever occasion arises.

The Docking of Horses. A further attempt to prohibit this cruel practice by means of legislation was inaugurated by the National Equine Defence League, and your Council are glad to notice that one of its members, Sir John Rolleston, introduced in the House of Commons a Bill which provided that "Any person who shall hereafter perform, or cause to be performed, the operation known as docking upon any horse shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty-five pounds, or in the alternative to a period of imprisonment for one month, with or without hard labour." At present the operation is widely performed, although your Society has long set its face against the practice, and has clearly shewn, by means of pamphlets, posters, and lantern slides, the acute nature of the suffering involved in this senseless mutilation. Following on the announcement that the British Military authorities will, after three years from now, decline to purchase docked horses, comes news that the German War Office does not approve of the custom of mutilating horses' tails. The War Office has not, apparently, placed a veto on the purchase of docked horses, probably because the demand of the Remount Department is very largely in excess of the supply. An official circular has, however, been issued to dealers stating that the practice is regarded with disfavour; and in view of this fact it is hoped that docking may become less fashionable.

£100 for a Horseshoe. Your Council decided to offer a prize of £100 for the most practical and useful type of horseshoe, that would provide the horse with a satisfactory footing upon roadways, thus saving the animals from suffering and injury by falling or straining themselves on slippery surfaces. The competition was held in co-operation with the Roads Improvement Association, and was managed by a Joint Committee of judges, the R.S.P.C.A. representatives being two members of its Council, Colonel Henry Fludyer, C.V.O. and Mr. Henry J. Selby, and your Secretary, Mr. Edward G. Fairholme. The merits of the competing devices were judged mainly on the following considerations—namely, the provision of a satisfactory and non-slipping foothold for horses upon waterproof road surfaces, the reduction in the amount of damage caused to roads, and the general practicability of a shoe capable of general manufacture, reasonable wear, and moderate cost. Very widespread interest was aroused in the competition, and correspondence and reports received demonstrated very clearly that there is an urgent need for an improved type of horseshoe to meet modern road conditions. Evidence upon this score was received not only from all parts of the United Kingdom, but from the United States of America, Australia, South Africa, and many European countries. Upwards of 10,000 copies of the details of the competition were issued, and 870 competitors sent specimens which are now being tested by practical judges.

Animal Rescue League. In their Report for 1912, your Council announced that they had decided to take over the work of the late Miss Kate Cording, who for many years had devoted all her time and means to the amelioration of the condition of the starved, injured, and diseased cats in the metropolis. They have pleasure in reporting that their efforts in this direction have been eminently successful. The object of the League is to rescue injured, homeless, or starving cats, and to consign them to a merciful death in the lethal chamber. Cats are also fetched from their homes at the request of owners and humanely destroyed without charge. Under the auspices of the Society commodious premises have been acquired at 397, City Road, Islington. The heavy initial expenses have been borne by the R.S.P.C.A., but it is hoped that, as its value becomes more widely known, the League will become entirely self-supporting, and for this end the assistance of charitably disposed persons is earnestly entreated. As an irrefutable proof of the necessity for such an institution in the metropolis, and as an indication of its activity, it should be mentioned that during the past twelve months more than 20,000 cats have been rescued and painlessly destroyed.

The Position of Lord Cheylesmore. Owing to the large number of letters received from supporters of the Society, including presidents, vice-presidents, and secretaries of branches, expressing dissatisfaction with the voting at the Annual Meeting on May 21st, 1913, when, by a majority of five votes (90 to 85), the re-election of Lord Cheylesmore as a member of the Council was rejected, because he was a Vice-President of the Research Defence Society, your Council deemed it to be their duty to exercise the rule which empowers it at any time, at its discretion, to take a poll of the members of the Society; and, as a result, 2,641 votes were recorded in favour of the re-election of Lord Cheylesmore to the Council, while 866 votes were given in the negative—that is, a majority for re-election of 1,775. The figures were communicated to Lord Cheylesmore, who intimated that, though he appreciated the action of the majority in voting in his favour, he had, after careful consideration, decided not to rejoin the Council, as he had no desire to be the cause of any renewed dissension among the members of the Society. This decision was regretfully accepted by the Council.

Stalls and Exhibits. During the past year the Society's Educational Stall has been much in demand, and amongst other important functions where it has been on exhibition may be noted Cruft's and the Crystal Palace Dog Shows, the Richmond and International Horse Shows, the Smithfield Fat Stock Show and the following Agricultural Shows: The Royal, Bath and West and Southern Counties, Nottinghamshire, Staffordshire, Bedfordshire, Royal Lancashire, Tunbridge Wells and Darlington. By means of these stalls your Council feel they are utilizing a great opportunity for getting in touch with those who have charge of animals, and the interest taken in this propaganda work is most encouraging.

Warning or Punishment? While your Council have never flinched from prosecuting, without fear or favour, in cases where the circumstances seemed to warrant or demand the intervention of the law, they endeavour—wherever possible—to prevent cruelty by cautions and monitions rather than by punishment. This is borne out by the fact that, last year, while 6,555 persons were prosecuted and convicted, 24,836 were cautioned by Inspectors or admonished in writing. Where the cruelty is inflicted by carmen working a horse that is unfit or lame, and it is shown that the man was compelled so to work the horse, or to risk dismissal, your Council endeavour to bring home to the employer his responsibility in the matter, and to press home the case against him rather than against the unwilling and coerced employé.

Special Cases of Cruelty.

(a) "Ringing" a Dog. What was described as "an old custom" was the subject of a prosecution recently instituted by the R.S.P.C.A. at Hawkshead, where a farmer was summoned for cruelty to a dog. A police-sergeant said that he visited defendant's farm when sheep-dipping was in progress. A part of the road leading to the farm had been penned off, in which were about 200 sheep. At one end a dog was tied to a hurdle near a gap, to keep the sheep within the pen. There was a piece of wire through its nose, and the ends were formed into hooks. Some of the lambs ran past, and when the dog tried to stop one of them the hooks caught in the wool, and the dog was fast. The sheep was pulling the dog along at the same time, and made it yelp as if it was in pain. When questioned the defendant said, "I put that wire in to stop it from biting the sheep. I know it is against the law." Defendant also explained that when the dog got up to the sheep the hooks caught in the wool, and the dog's nose being hurt when pulled, it afterwards left the sheep alone. Cross-examined, witness said this was the first case of the kind he had seen, but he had heard of them. A farmer, called for the defence, said he was at the dipping. He had heard of this operation being performed, and he had also helped to do it. It was an old custom, and served a useful purpose. From inquiries and his own experience he knew of the prevalence of the custom. After a lengthy retirement, the Bench were of opinion there was cruelty in the case, and fined defendant £1 and costs. The Chairman said they hoped the case would be the means of stopping the practice in the neighbourhood, if it was prevalent.

(b) A Cat's Ordeal. A cat's escape from a lingering death was related at Lincoln, where a labourer was summoned at the instance of the R.S.P.C.A. A witness deposed to hearing complaints relative to defendant having put the cat into a cistern. He went to see it, and found it had been put in on Friday. On Sunday witness heard it squealing. Defendant had been asked to drown the cat, and placed it in the cistern. Defendant said he had not heard the cat, but thought it was dead. It was stated that the cat's claws were worn in its efforts to get from the water, there being a slight ledge on which it had struggled to keep its head out. Defendant was fined 10s. and 14s. costs, a month being allowed for payment.

(c) The Pole Trap in Kent. At Bromley (Kent) Petty Sessions, two gamekeepers were summoned for having affixed to a tree a spring trap calculated to cause injury to any wild bird coming in contact therewith. Mr. Polhill, prosecuting for the R.S.P.C.A., said that proceedings were taken under the Wild Birds Protection Act, 1904, and this was the first case of the kind which had been brought before that Court, in regard to the setting of a trap raised above the ground in such a way as to injure wild birds. It did not matter for what purpose the trap was used, for the statute was against any trap being set for any purpose above the level of the ground. An inspector of the Society said that on April 15th he was in a wood on the right-hand side of Hengrove Hill, Cudham, when he found the steel trap produced, fixed on a platform affixed to the trunk of a fir tree. It was set, but not baited, and was about five feet four inches from the ground. It was partly covered with straw, and he called the attention of Police-Constable Hill to it. He subsequently saw one defendant and told him he had found the trap. The defendant said he set the trap in the wood, and affixed it to the tree in accordance with instructions given by the head gamekeeper, but he was not aware it was an illegal act. They went together to the wood, and witness took possession of the trap. The next day he saw the gamekeeper, who admitted that he gave instructions for the trap to be set. The magistrates decided to convict, and fined the head gamekeeper 5s. and 11s. costs, and ordered the other defendant to pay the costs, 11s.

(d) Docking a Terrier's Tail. The operation of "docking" when performed so as to cause unnecessary suffering is an offence punishable by law. At West Hartlepool Police Court a labourer was summoned at the instance of the R.S.P.C.A. for cruelty to a dog. An inspector of the Society said that visiting defendant's house, in consequence of an anonymous complaint, he saw the dog tied up in the back-yard. He found that the tail had been cut off and the skin had contracted, leaving the end inflamed and suppurating. The animal was in great pain, and was licking the wound. Defendant told witness that he cut the tail two months before, when the animal had distemper. A veterinary surgeon would have applied an anaesthetic and used an antiseptic. It was abominable cruelty to cut the tail off a dog when it was full grown. Defendant said the dog was a cross between an Irish terrier and an Airedale, and the size was no indication of its age. He produced the dog, demonstrating to the Bench that the wound was now quite healed. A fine of 5s. and 8s. 6d. costs was imposed.

Some Typical Decrepit Horse Prosecutions. (1) In November, 1913, a man was convicted at a northern port for travelling a horse unfit. The animal was so lame that the police, who stopped it, had to convey it to its stable in an ambulance; and yet it was entrained the same day for Hull, and was actually passed by the Government Inspector for shipment abroad.

(2) In July, 1913, a foreign horse-dealer from The Hague was fined £40 and £4 9s. costs for cruelty to two horses, which were ordered to be destroyed. One was suffering from an injured shoulder, and the other was lame from extensive canker in the feet. They were being walked to the docks, and were suffering intense pain.

(3) In March, 1913, a man was sentenced to one month's imprisonment with hard labour, for torturing a black mare by walking her to the docks when suffering from hock disease and contracted tendons. The mare was ordered to be destroyed.

(4) In March, 1913, a general dealer was sentenced to fourteen days' hard labour for causing a bay gelding to travel while suffering from a diseased foot.

(5) In March, 1913, a horse-dealer was fined £3 and £1 5s. costs for travelling a bay mare suffering from neglected canker.

(6) In June, 1913, a foreign dealer was fined 39s., and 4rs. costs, for causing a bay gelding to be travelled, which was lame on both hind legs, the feet of which were diseased. The horse was ordered to be destroyed.

(7) In November, 1913, three men were fined at Truro for ill-treating a horse by travelling it on the road for a distance of five miles, when suffering from a badly cankered foot. It was intended for shipment abroad.

(8) In April, 1913, a man was sentenced to one month's hard labour for cruelly walking two horses in an unfit state. One, a bay mare, was very lame on both fore limbs, from ringbone and strained tendons. The other, a black gelding, was very lame on both hind legs. They were ordered to be destroyed.

(9) In November, 1913, a horse-dealer was sentenced to two months' hard labour for causing a grey gelding pony to be travelled. It was very lame on both hind legs from ringbone. Both limbs had been blistered from the hock downwards, and the pony was in intense pain.

Sister Societies Abroad. It is gratifying to be able to record that, from annual reports received at headquarters, much activity is being shown in the work abroad as well as at home; the Barbadoes Society, for example, obtained fifty-nine convictions and administered 141 cautions; the Darjeeling Himalayan Society have placed over thirty drinking-troughs on the roads. These must be an immense help to the animals working in the heat and dust of that tropical climate. From Kashmir we learn that the Rev. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe has formed a body of Scouts of the native lads, with the principal object of training them to avoid cruelty, and setting a noble example to their fellows in relieving the distress of suffering brutes. News has also been received that in the State of Pennsylvania a Plumage Bill, modelled after the New York State Law, has passed the Assembly, and became effective on January 1st, 1914.

Obituary. It is with feelings of profound regret that your Council record the death of many valuable supporters of the Society, including, among others, the following : Viscountess Hambleden, a member of the Ladies' Education Committee ; Mr. S. Stone, Hon. Sec. of the Wiltshire (Swindon and District) Branch ; Alderman F. T. Thomas, J.P., President of the Lancs. (East and Blackburn) Branch ; Mr. H. Barker, Hon. Sec. of the Chester Branch ; Colonel J. S. Wynne, member of the Committee of Hants and Surrey Border Branch ; the Rev. Henry G. J. Clements, one of the oldest Life Members of the R.S.P.C.A. ; Professor James Stuart, member of the Committee of Norfolk and Norwich Branch ; Miss Janet Patteson, Hon. Sec. of the Buckfastleigh Auxiliary ; Miss Husband, member of the Committee of York Branch, and founder of a Band of Mercy there in 1884 ; and Miss Kate Cording, who founded the Islington Cats' Home.

BYE-LAWS FOR THE AFFILIATION OF A BRANCH

WHICH MUST BE AGREED UPON BEFORE SUCH AFFILIATION TAKES PLACE.

The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will admit Local Societies to the privilege of affiliation upon the following terms and conditions:—

(1). If not already in being, a Committee must be formed to carry on the work of the Branch, and the following Honorary Officials must be appointed: Chairman, Treasurer, Auditor, and Secretary. These appointments must be notified to the Council of the Society for registration. No Honorary Secretary is eligible for professional work in connection with the Society's work in the Branch.

(2). The Branch must be affiliated to the Head Quarters of the Society by the newly-formed Committee, on their undertaking to carry out the policy and objects of the Society in the area assigned to them by Head Quarters, subject to the Rules and Bye-Laws of the Society.

(3). A resolution desiring affiliation with Head Quarters must be duly entered on the Minute Book of the Committee passing it, and a copy, signed by the Chairman of the Meeting, must forthwith be sent to Head Quarters.

(4). Upon affiliation the title of the Branch shall be as follows:—"Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals,.....Branch."

(5). The object of the Branch is to carry out the policy and work of the Society in the defined area of its operation.

(6). Each Branch shall pay not less than the sum of £150 per annum to Head Quarters for the services of each Inspector sent to, or stationed in the area covered by, that Branch, or a proportionate part of such sum for any period less than one year.

(7). One or more Inspectors, properly trained at Head Quarters, will be sent to perform duty in the district of each Branch as and when requested by such Branch, and such Inspectors shall periodically be removed to other Stations, by orders from Head Quarters

(8). Each Inspector shall be under the entire control of Head Quarters, except that, subject to any directions given by Head Quarters, the Branch Secretary or his authorised representative may direct the Inspector, or Inspectors, as to when and where he, or they, shall perform duty.

(9). The wages, uniforms, and travelling expenses of all Inspectors, and also the costs, charges, and all other expenses incurred in, or incidental to, the conduct of all prosecutions, and all legal responsibility arising out of the work of the Inspectors, as agents, shall be borne by Head Quarters.

(10). Any complaint as to the conduct of an Inspector must be reported to, and will be dealt with by, Head Quarters.

(11). Branch Boundaries shall be fixed by Head Quarters, in conjunction with the local Committee, to insure that districts do not overlap and are conveniently placed in Petty Sessional Divisions.

(12). No prosecution shall under any circumstances whatever be instituted in the name of the Society except by Head Quarters. The Council reserves the right to cancel the terms and relations of affiliation if this condition is infringed.

(13). Each Branch shall hold an Annual General Meeting for the adoption of its report and accounts, for the election of the Committee and Officers for the ensuing year, etc., and notice of such meeting shall be given to Head Quarters as soon as possible prior to the holding of such meeting, and Head Quarters shall have the right to send one or more representatives to attend and address such Annual General Meeting.

(14). Each Branch shall, at the close of the Branch's year, publish an Annual Report showing a list of all subscriptions and donations received during the year by such Branch, together with a properly audited Financial Statement, and shall forward the same to all subscribers and to the local press, and shall also send two copies to Head Quarters.

(15). The Secretary of a Branch shall inform Head Quarters of the correct names and addresses of all the Branch Officials, and shall immediately acquaint Head Quarters of any changes, and shall forward the correct name and address of every new officer.

(16). The Secretary of each Branch shall furnish the Chief Secretary at Head Quarters, early in January, with the names and addresses of those Members of the Branch who are Members of the Society under Rule III and only Members whose names and addresses have been thus furnished and are in the United Kingdom shall be entitled to attend and vote at the Society's Annual Meeting in London.

(17). No literature on the Society's work, bearing its name, and thereby involving the Society's reputation, shall be issued locally without permission of Head Quarters.

(18). Each Branch shall be entirely and solely responsible for all contracts, debts, and liabilities of all kinds incurred by it, and shall discharge the same ; and no Branch shall pledge the credit of Head Quarters, or represent, or hold out, that it has power to do so.

(19). Petitions, Memorials, and Official Representations to Government Offices or Departments shall only be made through, or with the sanction of, and after consultation with, Head Quarters, which should be informed in the first instance of any decisive steps to be taken by any Branch.

(20). All legacies bequeathed to the Society shall be paid direct to Head Quarters, except in such cases where the legacy is bequeathed to a Branch specifically so named and described in the Will, and all monies left to, or collected by a Branch, can be expended by that Branch so long as it remains affiliated to the Society subject to the first charge of £150 per annum due to Head Quarters for the services of each Inspector.

(21). The affiliation of a Branch to Head Quarters, and all the relations thereby constituted, may be determined at any time by the giving of one calendar month's notice in writing on either side. Such notice, if given by Head Quarters, shall be deemed to have been sufficiently given if addressed to the Secretary of the Branch, or some other responsible Branch Official, and registered and put into the post. Any such notice may be given to Head Quarters by duly registering and posting the same, addressed to such Office, after which all monies held by such a Branch, whether as legacies, subscriptions, or balance, must be forwarded to Head Quarters for the benefit of the Society's work in the locality for which the money was obtained.

(22). As provided by Rule V. (d), of the R.S.P.C.A., the Branches throughout the country shall be divided into sixteen groups as follows, and each group shall have the right of electing a Representative to a seat on the Council at Head Quarters, according to the rules hereinafter set forth.

Kindly forward corrections to Chief Secretary, 105, Jermyn Street, when changes of office-bearers are made in the fore-going Societies.

THE IMPERATIVE NEED OF LEGACIES.

The Society is greatly in need of funds to carry on and extend its great work. It is important, therefore, that the kind-hearted and generous public should remember that it is the ONLY SOCIETY WORKING FOR THE WELFARE OF ANIMALS which maintains a large staff of UNIFORMED INSPECTORS to carry on the work of prevention.

The only means of insuring that this work can be carried on is by increasing the Society's income, and this can only be done by leaving legacies for its benefit.

To those animal lovers who may be inclined thus to help the Society to a guaranteed income attention is directed to page 148.

FORM OF BEQUEST.

To those benevolent individuals who may be inclined to become benefactors by Will to this Society, the following form is respectfully suggested :—

" THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS, established 1824 ; to be at the " disposal of the Council for the time being of the said Society ; and I direct
" that the same be paid free of legacy duty."

CAUTION.

It is of great importance to describe very accurately the title of this Society, namely—
" THE ROYAL SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS, established 1824 ; " otherwise the benevolent intentions of the Donor may be contested in a Court of Law with consequent expenses.

By the Act of 7 William IV and 1 Victoria, cap. 26, all Wills or Codicils must be in Writing signed by the Testator, and attested by two witnesses in the presence of the Testator and of each other.

The foregoing legacies have been left to the Society by its most warm-hearted friends during the ninety years of its existence. The list is a short one compared with those of many other Charities; but it includes the noble offerings of more than 1300 ladies and gentlemen, to whom belongs the honour of sustaining our cause through good and evil report. But for the first legacy on the list (a bequest by a literary lady) the Society would have collapsed in 1830; and but for a large annual income derived from bequests, its operations would necessarily now be greatly curtailed.

LIFE MEMBERS, LIFE ASSOCIATES, HONORARY LIFE MEMBERS & ANNUAL MEMBERS.

This list contains as far as possible, all those who have qualified either at Head Quarters or at any of the Branches. The Secretary will be glad to receive corrections of any errors or omissions therein.

* indicates a "Life Associate," † an "Honorary Life Member," § a "Life Member," to distinguish from the "Annual Members."

WHAT THE SOCIETY DID LAST YEAR (1913).

- 6,555 offenders prosecuted and convicted for cruelty to animals
 - 199 persons acquitted, but the Society's costs were remitted which justified the Society's action.
 - 24,836 persons guilty of minor acts of cruelty were cautioned by Inspectors, or admonished in writing.
 - 14,050 complaints by the public investigated.
 - 4,524 Sermons were preached on the subject of Mercy to Animals, by Clergy and Ministers.
 - 292,000 Essays were written by school children in London on the subject of Kindness to Animals; while many similar competitions were held in the country.
 - 104 New Bands of Mercy formed.
 - 222 Practical Humane Slaughtering Demonstrations were given in public and private slaughter-houses, resulting in
 - 677 Humane killing appliances being purchased by local butchers.

The work of this Society, which was founded in 1824, and has branches in most of the large towns of England and Wales. has a strong claim for the support of the charitable lovers of the animal creation. It is and the Council need every assistance to enable them to continue their work—which is primarily educational, and, where necessary, is punitive.

Ninetieth Anniversary.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE R.S.P.C.A.

JUNE 10th, 1914.

THE NINETIETH ANNIVERSARY was held on June 10th, 1914, at the Central Buildings, Westminster, at 3 o'clock, presided over by the Chairman of the Council, Colonel Sir Edward W. D. Ward, Bart., K.C.B., K.C.V.O., J.P. Present among others on the platform were :—Lord Aberdare, Captain the Hon. A. C. Murray, M.P., Colonel Fludyer, Major-General Smith, Mr. Leonard Noble, J.P., Mr. H. J. Selby, Mr. Dixey (Treasurer), The Rev. Canon Percy Smith, Col. Benson, Major Thornton Down, Mr. Percy Allen, Lady Edward Churchill, Lady Rosalind Northcote, Miss Cole, Mrs. Lemon, Mrs. Willmott, Miss Wedgwood, Miss Fishwick, Mrs. Tharp, and many others.

Among the audience which filled the hall were noticed the following Members and friends :—The Earl of Hardwicke, The Hon. Stephen Coleridge, Surgeon Major Poole, Mr. Fleming Crooks, Mr. Elliott Taylor, Mr. R. C. Lyall, J.P., Colonel Wyllie, Captain Dowell, the Rev. Lionel Lewis, Mr. P. C. Essex, Mr. Molesworth Hepworth, Mr. McAnally, Mr. Winchester, Lady Tenterden, Mrs. Luther Holden, Mrs. Grove-Grady, Miss Batten, Mrs. Thompson, Miss Woodward, Mrs. Percy Smith, Miss Mortimore, Mrs. and Miss Selby, Miss Mackinnon, Mrs. Warton, Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. Hart.

The Chairman called on the Chief Secretary to read the notice convening the Meeting. This was done, and letters of regret for non-attendance were read from the Lord Mayor of London, Lord Parmoor, Colonel Hall Walker, M.P., Mr. John Galsworthy, and others.

THE CHAIRMAN (who, on rising, was received with applause):—Ladies and Gentlemen,—We cannot do better, I am sure, than follow the precedent of several previous years, and take the Annual Report and Financial Statement, which have been circulated to every Member, as read. I would, at the outset, like to draw the attention of the Meeting to the fact that we are celebrating our ninetieth year, and I do not think it is too much to claim that those ninety years of strenuous work on behalf of animals have set their seal on the civilisation of this country. (Cheers.) You will be interested to see by the first paragraphs in the Report that that very important branch of the Society's operations—the educational propaganda—is being pressed forward in a most effective manner, and that by a large number of lectures the Society has enlisted many new Members and supporters, while a large number of Band of Mercy centres have also been established. It is encouraging also to note that so many of our Branches are successfully carrying on educational work by their annual essay competitions. It is worth while also to specially mention that the Society has been co-operating with the Boy Scout movement, and that during the past winter a large number of lectures on animals were delivered to the scouts and kindred associations. On the subject of the decrepit horse traffic to the Continent, we shall to-day have the privilege of hearing Miss Cole, who has fought so heroically and even risked her life (Cheers), to draw public attention to the horrors of this abominable traffic, which, in spite of all your Society has done, is still permitted to go on. Captain the Hon. A. C. Murray, M.P., who was instrumental in introducing a former Bill into the House of Commons, and who is ably seconding the present Exportation of Horses' Bill, now awaiting consideration by a Committee of the House, will also address you, and, therefore, I need not do more than draw your attention to the paragraph in the Report relating to this very important matter. I do not, however, think it inopportune to mention here, because I am sure everybody will be glad to hear it, that a Company is being formed for the purpose of purchasing horses in this country when they are unfit for further work, and of having them humanely destroyed in this country, and so it is hoped, putting a practical end to the traffic abroad. Of course your Society is not a Company Promoter and, therefore, has no financial responsibility in the matter, but many of your Members are taking a keen interest in the proposed Company, which will ensure that the travelling and slaughtering of the animals will be carried out in a humane way. For a Company to be placed on a solid foundation it must be run on commercial lines, but the humane aims and objects of the Society will be carried out and protected by the Board of Directors, some of whom are prominent humanitarians. Further particulars of the Company will be issued shortly, and I feel sure that when started it will be the means of removing what has been a reproach to this country for so many years. You will see from the Report that your Society continues to recognize acts of bravery for saving animal life at personal risk. During the past year sixteen silver or bronze medals and twenty-one Diplomas were awarded for these acts of humanity, and I am confident that such recognition will encourage the public to realize the necessity and humanity of endeavouring to succour animals in distress. There are many other important subjects dealt with in your Report, which time will not allow me to go into, but I would like to call your attention to the progress which has been made by your Society in the humane slaughtering movement, which is of great importance to this country, not only for the prevention of unnecessary suffering, but in the interests of public health. It is most satisfactory that the petitions which have been organised in various parts of the country praying for compulsory humane slaughtering powers have met with a great measure of success, and it is hoped that other centres will follow the excellent example of the places quoted in the Report. You will be glad to know that the admirable work started by the late Miss Kate Cording in the rescue of starving cats (cheers), and taken over by your Council, is being carried on with increasing success. During last year no less than 20,000 starving and diseased cats were painlessly destroyed, and this amply shows the necessity for such work in our great Metropolis and also in other large towns throughout the country. The Society does not profess to be solely a prosecuting agency, and, therefore, I need not refer in detail to the convictions obtained during the past year, but the mere fact that, in addition to the 24,836 cautions given, your Council were obliged to take legal proceedings against 6,555 persons, eloquently demonstrates the necessity of maintaining a staff of trained Inspectors for the repression of cruelty to animals. I now have the pleasure of moving the first resolution on the Agenda standing in my name, which is :

“That the Report and Financial Statement now read, be received, adopted, and printed for circulation at the discretion of the Council.” (Loud Applause).

CAPTAIN THE HONOURABLE A. C. MURRAY, M.P. :—It gives me great pleasure to say a few words to-day in seconding the adoption of the Report which has been so admirably moved by Sir Edward Ward. I think we must all agree that a perusal of the Annual Report, and I daresay you have all done so, gives evidence of the satisfactory work this Society has performed in the past, and is continuing to do. As Sir Edward has reminded us, this is the 90th Anniversary of the inception of the Society. Year by year we find that its activities have been augmenting, that its supporters have been increasing in number, and that the example which has been set in this country in regard to the prevention of cruelty and the promotion of kindness to animals has re-acted more or less throughout every quarter of the civilized world. (Cheers.) I was glad to hear the Chairman draw particular attention in his statement to the educational work in connection with the Boy Scouts. I lay almost more stress on that part of this Report that deals with educational propaganda than on any other. (Cheers.) So far as the future and the rising generation are concerned, if we can but inculcate into the minds of the young a sense of kindness to dumb animals, then the work this Society will have to do fifteen or twenty years hence will be appreciably diminished. (Cheers.) I wish to say a particular word about one section of the Report, which Sir Edward has referred to. It was my privilege to introduce into the House of Commons last year a Bill, having for its object the abolition of the traffic in old and worn-out horses between this country and abroad. I brought it in on the last day of the Session of 1913. Many people said, what was the good of introducing the Bill on the last day of the Session? And several of my friends of the Press made scathing remarks about the introduction of such a Bill on a day that worn-out Members of Parliament were about to take their holiday. (Laughter.) But you may be assured I had a definite object in view. For one reason or another, which it is not necessary now to enter into, I had been unable to bring in the Bill earlier, but I thought it would be well that the subject should be brought under the notice of Members, even at the last hour, and thus form a basis for discussion during the intervening period, in order that when this Session arrived we might ask other Members of Parliament to ballot for a place for the Bill, and thus have a better chance of carrying it through the House of Commons than we had then. Thanks to Colonel Hall Walker, who was kind enough to promise his place, should he be successful in the ballot, for the worn-out horse Bill we obtained a Friday in the House of Commons, and as you are all aware the Exportation of Horses' Bill passed the second reading without opposition from any quarter. (Cheers.) I have every hope that the measure will shortly be placed on the statute book of this country. Of course, we have still got the Committee stage to go through. I have heard it said that the Bill in its present form will not achieve all that many who are interested in this subject would desire to see brought about. I cannot go as far as that myself. I am of opinion that if the Bill passes as it stands to-day it must inevitably go a long way towards stopping the traffic between this country and the Continent. That does not mean to say that so far as the introduction of a few strengthening amendments is concerned in order to ensure smoother results, that I and those of my colleagues working on this subject, we shall not put forward every effort to strengthen the Bill in every possible way. (Cheers.) I am glad that we have here to-day one who has taken so deep and efficient a working interest in this subject, and that is Miss Cole. (Applause.) I do not think I go too far when I say that the stage which we have now reached is very largely due to the untiring efforts of Miss Cole. (Cheers.) So far as the Bill is concerned I hope that within the next three or four weeks we shall begin the Committee stage. We have with us from the Conservative side, Mr. Walter Long, who made a very able and powerful speech in support of it on the 3rd April, and I am also glad to say that we have the active sympathy of Mr. Runciman, President of the Board of Agriculture, who wishes to do all he can to see this traffic abolished. I think we may well extend our gratitude to the Council of this Society and its able Secretary for the work they have done in furthering this great cause of protection for worn-out horses. (Cheers.) We Members of Parliament are mere machines, we are turned round in order to bring to fruition all the work, heavy spade work, that has been done outside by the Society and its officials. I feel it is due to the energy and enthusiasm of the Members of this Society extended, as this Report shows, throughout a long series of years that we may hope in the near future to see the abolition of this traffic in diseased and worn-out horses to the continent. (Loud applause.) I have very much pleasure in seconding the motion.

MISS COLE :—My first words must be of thanks to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and especially to Mr. Fairholme for all the help and support we have received from them in the work on behalf of old horses. The cinema films that you will see presently have all been taken since last January, and are all of the actual weekly traffic. The films of the landing and procession were taken a week after those of the quarantine stables, and the news that these records were being taken at Antwerp had an evident effect on the conditions of the horses imported that week. The fact most to be noticed is that no efforts are spared to hide the real conditions of the traffic from the public eye, nor to silence any one who tries to expose them. The means vary from explanations, futile and untrue, from the Belgian officials to personal violence of the drivers. Last Sunday I received a letter from a Belgian lady, a stranger. She wrote :—" I am sure you will forgive an old lady of 75 for writing because she is unhappy and sad at what happens every week after the arrival of the horses. It is a shame to humanity that man sells to such atrocious ill-treatment these poor English horses. Pray, whoever has the power, abolish the sending from England of these poor beasts." (Cheers.) The Brussels Soir of the 31st May contains an article in which the writer says that every week old English horses pass through his village on foot on their way from Antwerp to Charleroi, a distance of at least fifty-six miles. He describes a gang of fourteen, all roped together, some with knees raw from falls, and some with noses bleeding from blows. The drover was hitting them on their noses and heads with a stick to force them along. (Shame.) The Editor adds :—" Thank God ! we shall not much longer have the spectacle of these horrors." The journeys by train are almost worse than those on foot. The Belgian horse trains are so slow that horses are sometimes in them from Monday evening to Wednesday noon without food or water. Some fall from jolting and weakness, and are trampled on by others, and then often the fallen horses kick the others. The poor old creatures all go from Antwerp to over a hundred different places for slaughter. They are all marked for death, but this happy release may be delayed for ten days, while in the case of those sold for vivisection it may be delayed indefinitely. From the moment they are condemned they are no longer horses but simply horseflesh. Two of my friends expostulated with men illtreating them, and both received the same reply :—" They are only for killing ! " It is this callous way of looking at them, not wanton cruelty, that causes their worst sufferings. Horses often fall in the floats on their way to the slaughter-house. I begged the Inspector to kill one of those horses at the quarantine stables. I followed it to the slaughter-house, and entreated the slaughterer to kill it there where it was in the float, but all in vain. They are not killed in the floats because, it is said, there is not room enough to stab the horses with sufficient force to bleed them properly for the sake of the meat. In such cases ropes attached to pulleys are tied to the hind legs of the animals and to their tails, and by these means they are dragged out on to the floor of the slaughter shed, to be afterwards killed with the poleaxe. You see the Inspector first refused, and the slaughterman afterwards, to kill the horse in the float, and yet the very week before a horse had been killed in a float with the humane killer. The Government Inspector had brought Colonel Hall Walker, the gentleman who has taken over the Bill in the House of Commons, to see the conditions of the traffic, and the animal was killed in this way simply to give a false impression of the treatment of the old horses and the humanity of the dealers. Of course, you do not see the normal conditions of every-day experience when you go in charge of a Government Inspector ! Food is not wasted on old horses waiting for slaughter. That one meal at the Antwerp quarantine stables is only given, since the dealers are forced to pay for it, by a Municipal Law. At the Ghent quarantine stables they have nothing, except, perhaps, on the occasion of a visit from the Government Inspector ! An English horse fell dead there by those empty troughs and mangers last February. I have often seen famished horses, waiting for death in many of the Belgian slaughter-houses, eating the straw on the ground ; and I believe that hunger and thirst are the worst of all the sufferings they have to endure. These animals are not destroyed with the humane killer in the public slaughter-houses, but with an iron hammer or poleaxe, and very often receive from two to five blows on the head before they die. At Brussels they receive as a rule five blows. (Shame.) It takes a good deal to make a horse scream, but both Mr. Essex and I have heard horses scream in Belgian slaughter-houses. In the country they are generally tied up and simply stabbed with a long knife. Why do we send our old horses to these intolerable conditions when they are worn out with age and work in our service ? Why should we send them alive ? About 1000 carcasses every year of horses killed are sent over to Rotterdam. The only way to protect these poor brutes is to slaughter them in England. The supply of English horseflesh is necessary for important Belgian trades, and if the live horses were refused the tax on the dead meat would certainly be reduced to protect those trades. The main traffic is in winter, and if the shortest sea routes were chosen, and stables and slaughter-houses built near the Docks, the main supply could be killed according to demand and sent over simply as fresh carcasses. (Cheers.) The sufferings we have seen are inseparable from a traffic in live horses for foreign slaughter. (Hear, hear.) Captain Murray's Bill that fixed a value and forbade the export, alive, of any horse under that amount, would have stopped that traffic. No one who knows the organization and methods of the men in the trade and the extraordinary pains taken to protect it, can hope that the Bill as it is will stop it. From what I know if this Bill becomes law without amendment our old horses will still be exported alive for the sake of what Mr. Galsworthy calls "a little blood money!" The Bill and its fate are in the hands of the Committee, and we can only wait and hope. (Loud Applause.) I have much pleasure in supporting the adoption of the Report.

THE CHAIRMAN :—I feel personally much indebted to Miss Cole for coming here to-day, and for the very able speech we have just listened to, and I should like to thank her on your behalf as well as my own. (Loud Cheers.)

The Resolution was carried unanimously.

GENERAL SIR A. E. CODRINGTON, K.C.V.O. :—I have the pleasure to move that the best thanks of the Society are due and are hereby given to the Trustees, Treasurer, Council, Ladies' Education Committee, and other Committees for their services during the past year, and that the retiring members of the Council be re-elected for the ensuing year, viz. :—

The Right Hon. Lord Aberdare,
Sir Frederick Banbury, Bart., M.P., J.P.,
Sir Charles Behrens, J.P.,
Colonel S. M. Benson, J.P.,
Mr. Christopher Cash, B.A.,
Lady Edward Spencer Churchill,
Dr. Wyndham Cottle, and
Mr. Loudon M. Douglas, F.R.S.E.

In proposing this Resolution I think we might pause for a moment to consider what would happen with regard to cruelty to animals, notwithstanding all the Acts of Parliament that have been passed for their benefit, if it were not for the existence of this Society. (Cheers.) Acts of Parliament will not put themselves into force, they require somebody behind them to execute their provisions, otherwise they would often be a dead letter. The Report that has been alluded to by several of the speakers is, I believe, the best out of a series of remarkable years, and I think we all realize that this great work cannot be carried on by a powerful Society like this without a great deal of skill, personal trouble, attention and self-sacrifice on the part of those ladies and gentlemen who are kind enough to take a prominent part in its proceedings. (Cheers.)

MR. P. C. ESSEX :—I have been asked to second this Resolution, and I do so with the greatest possible pleasure. Probably, it has been my lot to have more to do with this Society for the last few years than most present here to-day have. I have visited the office at all hours of the day, and night, too, I might almost say; and I have never failed to meet with the most complete courtesy and assistance in regard to everything I have suggested, and all that I could wish for has been done. I am sorry that Mr. Fairholme's name has not been included in the Resolution, but I suppose it is not quite in keeping with the form of the motion that he should be included with the Committees. Nevertheless, Mr. Fairholme deserves our best thanks, for he has given the most whole-hearted support, and backed up every proposal I have made to mitigate the terrors of this decrepit horse traffic. (Cheers.) One thing I do wish to ask may be accentuated by the Council, and that is that when our Bill gets into Committee those Members of Parliament sitting on our Council will make a point of inducing other Members with seats on the Committee to attend every Meeting of the Committee on the Bill, so that there shall be no risk of failure. I have had about 300 promises of support from Members of Parliament, but I do not know who will be appointed to the Committee out of that 300 ; however, one would think these ought to be sufficient to ensure its success. (Cheers.) I have no axe to grind, but I belong to this Society from love of the cause, and I hope I shall always be able to continue my subscription, small as it is. (Cheers.)

THE CHAIRMAN :—I feel in a dubious position in putting this Resolution, because I am a Member of the Council.

The Resolution was carried unanimously.

THE CHAIRMAN :—I have now the pleasure of proposing :—

That Mr. Roger Campbell Lyall, J.P., of Hastingwood House, Harlow, Essex, be elected a Member of the Council in the place of the late Mr. Isenberg.

Mr. Lyall has taken very active interest in the welfare of the Society as well as given it generous financial support, and it gives me great pleasure to suggest his acceptance by the Meeting.

MISS WOODWARD :—May we be told whether Mr. Lyall is against vivisection ?

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS :—Surely we are entitled to know whether he is a consistent protector of animals.

MR. G. DIXEY (Treasurer) :—I beg to second the nomination of Mr. Lyall. He is so well known to us all that it is not necessary to enlarge on his virtues.

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS :—Miss Woodward has asked a question. Can she have an answer ? It does not follow in any case that the gentleman will be rejected, but surely we have a right to know what his qualifications are. May we, sir, ask Mr. Lyall through you whether he is opposed to the practice of vivisection ?

THE CHAIRMAN :—Is Mr. Lyall present ?

MR. LYALL :—Yes. I do not belong to any Research Society.

The Resolution was passed, Mr. Lyall being unanimously elected.

THE CHAIRMAN :—I now have to formally move the adoption of the revised Rules of the Society, which have already been circulated to Members, subject to the following modifications agreed to at a special Council Meeting on the 21st May last :—Add as a new Rule, “ A list of the names and addresses of all the Members entitled to vote at Annual General or Extraordinary General Meetings of the Society shall be kept at headquarters, and any Member of the Society when a poll is demanded or an Extraordinary General Meeting is called, desiring to make use of such list shall be entitled to receive a copy on payment of the sum of five guineas."

THE HONOURABLE STEPHEN COLERIDGE :—If I may interpose at this moment I would suggest in order that there shall be no possible misunderstanding that the word " demanded " should be altered to " taken." Further on in the Rules you will see that by Rule 5 (l.) the Council may at its discretion take a poll of the Members of the Society on any matter affecting its welfare ; and it seems to me that if we pass this extra Rule with the word " demanded," the Council at their discretion might take a poll at any time and refuse to give effect to the proposed new Rule on the ground that the poll taken by them was not " demanded." The word " taken " will prevent any possible misunderstanding on that point.

MISS WOODWARD :—Five guineas is a large sum to ask a Member to pay. Some might wish to take the sense of the Society on certain points, while they could not afford five guineas.

THE HONOURABLE STEPHEN COLERIDGE :—That five guineas is my suggestion, upon which account I daresay Miss Woodward will oppose it all the more warmly. First of all it would undoubtedly cost a good deal of money to get the names and addresses written out, and secondly it was perfectly reasonable to say that they ought not to allow persons to get these particulars and perhaps use them for cadging purposes. If they wanted the advantage they must pay five guineas for it, which was not too much if anybody required the information for a serious and legitimate purpose.

THE CHAIRMAN (addressing Mr. Coleridge) :—I think the Council will agree to the substitution of " taken " for " demanded."

THE CHAIRMAN :—The other alterations which I have to move are as follows :—

Rule 7 (d), line 2, after " opinion of " insert " four-fifths of."

Rule 16, lines 3 and 4, delete " five per cent. of all the " and insert " one hundred and fifty."

Rule 17, line 1, after " Society " insert " to which only Members entitled to vote shall be admitted."

Rule 19, lines 3 and 4, delete from " A " to " Meeting " ; lines 8, 9, 10, 11, delete from " the " to " but," and insert " and."

Rule 20, line 3, delete " five per cent." and insert " one hundred and fifty."

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS :—May I ask the number of the Members of this Society ?

THE CHAIRMAN :—About 6,000.

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS :—Referring to Rule 16, sir, " 150 " seems very high. It would be exceedingly difficult for any one to get hold of 150 Members, however keen he might be. Surely the figure 150 is unnecessarily high. The Council cannot be afraid of meeting the people on any point. Let us say " 50 " Members. It is very difficult to get even 50 members to sign something. May I move an Amendment reducing the number to " 50 " ?

THE CHAIRMAN :—I cannot accept an Amendment without notice.

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS :—Surely, sir, when it is a question of passing or altering a Rule, we are entitled to bring up an Amendment at any moment. We have had no opportunity of meeting together before, and I cannot imagine you are going to rule out all Amendments brought forward. I have other Amendments to move, and you cannot mean that I must withdraw them. If so, our meeting together is all a farce. Everything is arranged beforehand.

THE CHAIRMAN :—Rule 18 covers my ruling on this point.

At the request of the Chairman the Chief Secretary read Rule 18 as follows :—

These Rules shall take effect as from the 21st May, 1913, and all Rules and Regulations then in force shall be, and the same are hereby rescinded as from that date, and no alteration or addition to these Rules shall be made unless it has been moved, seconded, and adopted at an Annual or Extraordinary General Meeting of the Society, and then only provided a notice of such proposed alteration or addition has been handed to the Chief Secretary in writing at least twenty-one clear days prior to the Meeting, and the Chief Secretary shall send a notice specifying the proposed alterations or additions to every Member of the Society fourteen clear days before such Meeting.

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS :—I submit, sir, we are acting according to the usage of public meetings, and moving an Amendment to a proposed alteration of the Rules. How can you say we have no power to support an Amendment to an existing Rule ? If that is to be your decision, then, all I can say is, it will have to go forth to the world that discussion is stifled and not wanted by the Council. (No, no, and hisses).

MR. H. J. SELBY :—Might I say that Mr. Coleridge was at our last Council Meeting, and he agreed to these alterations ?

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS (indignantly) :—We are not bound by what Mr. Coleridge does.

THE HONOURABLE STEPHEN COLERIDGE :—That is hardly correct. I asked the Council to alter their " five per cent." figure, which would mean about 275 members to " 60," but they would not accept my proposal for " 60." I was very much obliged so far for the reduction to 150, but I must not be quoted as suggesting that. My idea was " 60."

THE CHAIRMAN :—Mr. Coleridge did ask for 60, but the Council thought 150 such a figure as would give a proper opinion, and would be a reasonable numerical representation compared with the number of the Society's Members. It was well discussed by the Council which considered that 150 was by no means an impossible number. I agreed with them, but I was guided more by their experience outside than my own.

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS (who was greeted with cries of " Sit down," and other epithets and signs of impatience) :—There is a much more important point beyond all this, irrespective of whether the number is to be " 150 " or " 60 " or " 50," and it is vital. Is this Society going to put forth Rules, and does it refuse its Members called together in Annual Meeting to discuss those Rules, does it refuse those Members the power to move Amendments? Are you going to rule that in spite of bringing us here we can do nothing, and that the affairs of the Society are solely in the hands of the Council? (Some hisses and laughter.)

MR. ALLEN :—The object of the Rule that has been read is a common one in all Societies, and it is for the express purpose of preventing any Rules of which notice has not been given, being brought up at the Meeting. Certain new Rules or alterations are formulated within the prescribed time. These are in due course communicated to the Members, and if they are not agreeable to pass them the remedy is in their own hands, they can come up and reject them. It would be absolutely to the detriment of the Society if Members were allowed to come here and propose alterations and innovations which the other Members, distributed all over the kingdom, had had no notice of, were consequently ignorant of and had, therefore, had no opportunity of considering or discussing. (Applause.)

SURGEON MAJOR POOLE :—Might one propose, sir, that the Rules stand as stated on the Agenda? (Cheers.)

THE CHAIRMAN :—I have given my ruling. I can only be guided as Chairman by the Rules already in force. (Cheers.)

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS :—If that applies to any Amendment that may be proposed, then, I say, discussion is useless. It is contrary to all the principles which govern public Meetings.

THE REV. MONTAGUE FOWLER :—This gentleman does not take the trouble to read the Rules of the Society, and then he comes here and insinuates all kinds of objectionable motives against the Council and our Chairman. I really think if he would obey those Rules, of which he apparently knows so little, and abide by your ruling, sir, this Meeting would be much more satisfied. (Loud cheers.)

THE CHAIRMAN :—With regard to Rule 19, I regret, by a printer's error, overlooked at the last moment, the reference to proxy is not eliminated in the alterations named on the Agenda. The proxy proposal was dropped by the Council, and all reference to it should be cut out. Therefore, from " A form " to the end of the paragraph, as well as the remainder of Rule 19 is deleted.

MR. J. V. ELLIOTT-TAYLOR, J.P. :—I have much pleasure in seconding the Resolution that the new Rules and alterations be approved. I think the Meeting will share with me considerable pleasure in regard to the Amendment or addition to Rule 3 (d), whereby the Council can give the distinction of " Honorary Life Member " to persons who have done good work for the cause. Our annals contain many records of noble and heroic work performed on behalf of animals. There is much worthy of honour and recognition being done to-day, and will, no doubt, be in the future, in favour of suffering creatures, and I heartily welcome this alteration which will enable the Council to set its approval on such acts. The other changes to the Rules, in spite of all that has been said, seem to me minor matters. I rather regret that the Council has seen fit to turn its back on what I consider a wise proposal, namely, that the Members of the Society, who take a keen interest in its work, shall have no opportunity in future of recording their votes by proxy if they are not able to appear. As an old Member, my experience is that I have much desired to be present to take part in the discussions and record my vote, but at the last moment something has debarred me from attending, and naturally, I have suffered disappointment in consequence, but if the power of proxy existed, the Members of this great Society scattered all over the country could make their voice heard as they ought to be able to do. (Cheers.)

THE HONOURABLE STEPHEN COLERIDGE :—I am very glad to support this motion altering the Rules. It has been my lot a great deal in the past to act contrary to the wishes of the ladies and gentlemen who sit up there (Laughter), and when I first saw the new Rules, I asked Sir Edward Ward to be good enough to let me discuss them with him, because I thought that as we were both responsible persons we could come to some sort of agreement about them, which was better than prolonged argument of the matter here. Sir Edward consented, and I think my reason was more powerful than his eloquence, for he seemed to think that after all my proposals were reasonable ones. I afterwards had the pleasure of meeting the Council, and laying my views before them, which were received with every courtesy and consideration. I am glad they have been good enough to withdraw the suggestion of proxy. Any one who has been unfortunate enough to be associated with any not-very-successful Companies will know how the proxies have come out of the Chairman's pocket at the last moment, and turned the scale, not that I suggest the same would be done here ; but now that we have got rid of the chance of that we can embrace like brothers.

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS :—Do you agree with discussion being stifled ?

THE HONOURABLE STEPHEN COLERIDGE :—Not at all. I entirely agree with Mr. Lewis as regards that one point of order. I think he ought to have been allowed to bring forward his Amendment. I do not know whether he would have carried it or not. (Laughter and cheers.) With those few words I leave the Resolution in the hands of the Meeting.

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS :—The whole thing is a farce ! (Hisses.)

The Resolution was carried amid loud applause.

COLONEL A. K. WYLLIE, C.B.—The Secretary has asked me to undertake a very pleasing duty, and that is to move a hearty vote of thanks to our Chairman for the able and indeed admirable way in which he has presided over this Meeting. I think most of us here know who Sir Edward is, and know what a glorious career he has had in the defence of his country. (Cheers.) It is a source of congratulation to us all that our Chairman will now, since his retirement, have more leisure to apply to the furtherance of the aims of this noble Society, whose welfare is so very near his heart. I venture to think that when the Chairman looks back on the life he has spent in the service of this country and the pursuits of his later years, some of his most happy thoughts will be in the recollection of what he has done, and the time he has given up to the cause of defending and protecting God's creatures which are unable to defend themselves.

(This speech was received with loud cheers.)

SURGEON MAJOR POOLE :—What a pleasure it is to me that a brother officer should be the Chairman of this Meeting. He has had experience of the cruelty that takes place on battlefields, and he has known what it is to face it at these Meetings, and for him to come year after year and support such a Society is worthy of our most hearty and best thanks. (Cheers.)

THE REV. LIONEL LEWIS :—I beg formally to protest against this vote of thanks. I say— (the rest of the sentence was lost in groans and hisses.)

THE CHIEF SECRETARY :—I have the pleasure of putting the Resolution, not the protest we have listened to with so much regret and pity, but that moved by Colonel Wyllie and Dr. Poole.

The Resolution was carried amid the loud plaudits of the audience.

THE CHAIRMAN :—I have to thank you most heartily, Colonel Wyllie, and Dr. Poole, and all my other friends, for this vote of thanks you have given me so cordially for presiding to-day. Any work I can do on behalf of the Society and its great cause is one of the joys of my life. (Cheers.) As you have given me the opportunity of saying a few words, I should like to express the deep debt of gratitude the Council feel to the Staff, who assist us so well, to Mr. Fairholme, our Chief Secretary, to Mr. Fowler and Mr. Polhill, and indeed every Member of the Staff who give us their best service. My work is rendered very light, owing to their loyal and constant efforts. This is only their due considering the honest hard work they put into it. Again, ladies and gentlemen, thank you very much. (Loud Applause.)

THE CHIEF SECRETARY :—The decrepit horse traffic films will now be shown you.

EDUCATIONAL WORK.

PRIZE ESSAY COMPETITION,

ANIMAL SUNDAY,

BAND OF MERCY MOVEMENT,

“THE ANIMAL WORLD”

AND

“BAND OF MERCY.”

THE OBJECTS OF THE ESSAY COMPETITION, AND ITS RESULTS.

Forty-three years have passed since the Ladies Education Committee of the R.S.P.C.A. first invited the Metropolitan Schools to write Essays on "The Duty of Kindness to Animals," and kindred subjects. The competition has been continued annually, and the number of Schools which have competed has grown year by year.

The object of the Society in organising these competitions is to instruct the minds, and educate the hearts, of children and teachers in their duty towards animals. The composition and compilation of any essay cannot be accomplished without reading and thinking, and is seldom undertaken without more or less conversation on the subject with all the members of the writer's family. Hence the process is far-reaching, and tends to awaken interest in dumb creatures, as well as to remove ignorance, which is a parent of cruelty.

In January, a circular letter is sent to all Schools within a radius of 20 miles of Charing Cross, asking the Masters and Mistresses to permit their pupils to write essays on the duty of kindness to animals. Most of the Principals accede to that request, and select the two best essays written by their pupils, which are then forwarded to the Society. The adjudication entitles the writer of the first essay to an Ordinary Prize, and the writer of the second to a Certificate.

After the above competition in schools, the best compositions from each school, classified into distinct divisions, are placed in a second competition; that is, the best essays written in all the schools are compared for pre-eminence—school against school. These are adjudicated upon for Principal Prizes.

Pupil Teachers, Student Teachers working for Certificates, and Certificated Assistant Teachers are also invited to write on topics prepared for each division. Their essays are forwarded direct to the Society, and are judged on their merits, and prizes are awarded.

THE ANNUAL PRIZE DISTRIBUTION

IN CONNECTION WITH THE

ESSAY COMPETITION.

This annual event, which is of interest, not only to the children who compete for the prizes, and their friends, but to all who have the welfare of the R.S.P.C.A. and its objects at heart, has for many years past (with two exceptions) taken place at the Crystal Palace.

In 1913, the prizes were presented by Her Grace the Duchess of Marlborough, who had graciously promised to attend for that purpose. No fewer than 3,571 prizes and certificates were given, the winners representing a total of 292,000 essayists from 1,728 schools. As early as 9 a.m., on the appointed day, Saturday, May 17, some of the children began to put in an appearance, and from that time onwards there were continual arrivals of little folk intent on a long and happy day at the Palace, and in its delightful grounds, where innumerable attractions presented themselves.

The distribution was timed for 3 o'clock, but long before this hour the seats in the Central Transept were occupied, and the prize winners took their allotted places above the platform. From 2 o'clock, an organ recital was given by Mr. G. D. Cunningham, F.R.C.O., whose skilful performance was greatly appreciated.

The Duchess of Marlborough, on her arrival, was received by the members of the Council, and of the Ladies' Education Committee, of the Society, who conducted Her Grace to her seat.

When two verses of the National Anthem had been sung, the presentation of the ordinary prizes and certificates took place, after which Mr. Ben Davies sang "The Arab's Farewell to his Favourite Steed," and "Sally in our Alley."

The principal prizes (about 115 in number) were then presented personally by the Duchess, after which the Chairman, Colonel Sir Edward Ward, proposed a vote of thanks to Her Grace, who was heartily cheered.

ANIMAL SUNDAY.

For nearly fifty years it has been the practice of the Council of the Society to invite the clergy to preach, on a particular Sunday each year, on the duty of justice and mercy to animals. The Fourth Sunday after Trinity is suggested for this object, owing to the special appropriateness of the Collect, Epistle, and Gospel for that day. The initiation of this movement dates back to the year 1865, when Dean Stanley preached on the subject in the Chapel Royal, Whitehall. In the following year the invitation was responded to by 610 clergy.

Two years ago it was decided to address a letter to all the Non-conformist Ministers in England and Wales, in addition to the clergy of the Anglican Church, with the gratifying result that, in 1913, no fewer than 4,524 sermons on gentleness to the dumb creation were preached.

It will easily be realised that the effect of the attention of the congregations, in upwards of four thousand five hundred Churches and Chapels, being directed to the duty of kindness to animals, must of necessity be considerable. In the great majority of cases, cruelty is wrought by want of knowledge of the character and needs of birds and beasts and other creatures, and much unnecessary suffering is prevented by this method of inducing thoughtfulness and consideration.

The Council of the R.S.P.C.A. sincerely hope that the number of those clergy and ministers who assist the cause, by their advocacy from the pulpit, will increase year by year. Specimen sermons and suggested outlines of sermons and Sunday school lessons, together with hymn papers, are sent out with the annual invitation to preach, and grants of suitable literature for use in churches are forwarded gratis, on application to the Secretary, 105, Jermyn Street, London, S.W.

Offertory collections are not asked for, although contributions to the funds of the R.S.P.C.A. are always welcome.

THE BAND OF MERCY.

A JUNIOR BRANCH OF THE R.S.P.C.A.

THE VALUE OF HUMANE TEACHING FOR THE YOUNG,

The change which has taken place in public opinion during the past forty years, in regard to the treatment of animals, is due—in no small degree—to the educational activities of the R.S.P.C.A. during that period.

The importance of inculcating the principles of kindness to dumb creatures in the minds of the young, was felt by those to whose care the management of the Society was entrusted, realizing, as they did, that thoughtlessness and ignorance, if unchecked and uncorrected, are the parents of callousness and brutality. It was this which led to the inauguration of the Band of Mercy Movement, by means of which the children of both sexes, almost from infancy, are gradually trained in habits of kindness and gentleness towards all God's creatures. The Bands, numbering close upon eight hundred, have been formed throughout the United Kingdom, and have extended to every part of the globe, including Canada, Australia, South and West Africa, as well as the United States of America, and the Continent of Europe. It is the aim of the Council of the R.S.P.C.A., with the co-operation of those who realize the benefit to animals resulting from this movement, to establish Bands of Mercy in every town and village throughout the world, where English-speaking children are to be found.

The inauguration of Bands of Mercy, like that of Bands of Hope, is a simple matter. All that is required is the voluntary work of an organizer who will collect the children as members, and teach them their duty towards all animals. Such Bands may be started with Natural History lessons, once a month or oftener, at the wish of the organizer, and the meetings may be held in schools, or in conjunction with other gatherings of children, or they may be worked on independent lines. All that the children, on their part, have to do is to take a pledge of kindness, which, as time goes on, becomes part and parcel of their character. In schools this organization is a simple matter, for the Code of Regulations issued by the Board of Education suggests, among other things, that children should be taught to appreciate and understand animals. Much, of course, depends upon the teacher, who can give added interest to dictation, copy-writing, reading, and composition classes, by occasionally setting lessons about animal life.

In order to encourage the Band of Mercy Movement, the R.S.P.C.A. issues a bright monthly magazine, at $\frac{1}{2}$ d., called, "The Band of Mercy," as well as a Service Book, Song Book, and numerous attractive and instructive leaflets. The Society also encourages the organizing of dramatic representations by members of the Bands, and has issued a volume of children's plays, cantatas, etc., entitled the "Band of Mercy Entertainer."

It is impossible to deny the benefits that have accrued to the cause of animals by means of the educational efforts of the R.S.P.C.A., among which the Band of Mercy Movement is one of the most important. It is earnestly hoped that anyone reading these lines, who has the ability and the leisure, will endeavour—either personally, or by influencing others—to start a Band of Mercy, or will at least offer co-operation and help to those who are working so nobly in the cause.

The Secretary of the R.S.P.C.A., 105, Jermyn Street, S.W., will at all times be ready to tender advice and assistance to those who write to him.

R.S.P.C.A. ESSAY COMPETITIONS AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

King Manoel and Queen Augusta Victoria, who presented the prizes,
with the Chairman, Col. Sir E. W. D. Ward, Bart.

HISTORY OF THE MOVEMENT.

The Band of Mercy Movement was established in 1875 by the late Mrs. Catherine Smithies, of Wood Green, London. After her death it was continued by her son, Mr. T. B. Smithies, and, subsequently was transferred by him to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. On January 31, 1883, at a Conference held at the offices of the Society, 105, Jermyn Street, London, the Baroness Burdett-Coutts in the Chair, it was resolved :—

1. That a Union be formed of all Bands in the Kingdom, and that the R.S.P.C.A. be placed at the head of such Union for the purpose of giving counsel and assistance to the Bands, subject to the following provisions, viz. :—(1) That the R.S.P.C.A. be regarded as the Governing Body of the Union, but responsible only in matters of general character. (2) That the Bands retain their individual freedom of direction and responsibility in all matters relating to local proceedings. (3) That the Governing Body, and the Bands respectively, disburse their own expenses, the Governing Body demanding no contribution from the Bands, and the Bands receiving no grants of money from the Governing Body.

2. That uniform cards of membership, members' medals, and registers, be adopted by all Bands, the Governing Body providing the same, and supplying them to Bands at cost price.

3. That the halfpenny monthly journal now issued by the R.S.P.C.A., entitled Band of Mercy, continue to be regarded as the organ of the Union, this Conference recommending all Bands, as far as practicable, to extend its circulation throughout the United Kingdom, particularly among the members of Bands.

4. That Bands be established as separate organizations, or within Sunday Schools and Day Schools, or in connection with Bands of Hope, or other moral, social, or religious associations.—January 31, 1883.

The record of the Movement has been one of steady progress. Since its transference to the Society, its scope has been very widely extended, and there are at the present time nearly eight hundred Bands actively working in various parts of the kingdom, and abroad.

Aim of the Movement.

The Movement has for its aim the promotion of kindness to animals by means of teaching. It is now recognized that in the education of children lies the most hopeful solution of the problem of eradicating cruelty. Boys and girls, who grow up ignorant of the many claims which animals have on our sympathy, develop into careless and too frequently brutal adults, who have little concern either for animals or for women or children.

The Movement has a great task before it, but the results already achieved are an encouragement for pressing on the work with the utmost possible vigour. At present there are many forms of cruelty which the Society is powerless to check, or even to touch, by its punitive work, but which can be successfully attacked by educational means.

Examples of these are the wearing of "osprey" and other feathers, the imprisonment of wild birds in small cages, the abandonment of cats, the chaining-up of dogs, the overloading of horses, and the improper use of bearing reins and hame reins. What the Band of Mercy Movement seeks to do is to train up the rising generation in such habits and instincts of kindness as shall render such forms of cruelty as the above impossible.

Reasons for joining a Band of Mercy.

(1) Because children should be trained from their earliest years in habits of kindness to animals, thus strengthening their characters, and rendering them gentle towards their fellows.

(2) Because children frequently inflict cruelty through thoughtlessness or ignorance of the needs or habits of dumb creatures, and such thoughtlessness should be corrected; and ignorance dispelled, as soon as possible.

(3) Because children should be given an opportunity of learning about the beauties of Nature surrounding them, by the study of Natural History.

(4) Because children should be taught the structure, habits, and needs of animals, which will enable them to treat them properly and humanely.

How to form a Band of Mercy.

(a) You should first of all approach the Rector (or Vicar) of the parish—or, if a Nonconformist, the Minister of your Chapel—and ask his approval of your effort to form a Band of Mercy. When you have obtained this sanction, it is important to endeavour to enlist the sympathy and support of the Head Teachers of the elementary schools in the district, as their influence with the children is very great, and they are frequently willing to give practical help in regard to lectures, etc., as well as including humane treatment of animals in the ordinary school curriculum.

(b) It is a very simple matter to form a Band of Mercy, if there is a Band of Hope, or other kindred association, such as "King's Messengers," etc., at work in your parish or district. All who are responsible for temperance work among the young have felt the difficulty of finding a sufficient variety of topics calculated to retain the interest and attention of the children week by week. It has been found helpful, in hundreds of cases, to alternate the Band of Hope meetings with Band of Mercy gatherings.

Wherever such an arrangement is decided upon, application should be made to the Secretary of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, 105, Jermyn Street, London, S.W., who will forward full particulars, with affiliation form, and list of lantern slides. The affiliation form (no fee is required) should be filled in and returned to the Secretary.

Lantern slides are lent gratis to Bands of Mercy (subject to carriage being paid both ways). In making a selection from the list, a few alternative sets should be chosen, in case any particular sets are on loan elsewhere.

(c) If there is no Band of Hope available, the next best method is to invite the children attending Sunday School—or (with the permission of the Educational authority and the teacher) the children attending the day school—to meet either once a week, or once a fortnight, or once a month, in some convenient room, and form a Band of Mercy as suggested under (a).

Rules Suggested.

This Band shall be called "The . . . Band of Mercy." A Band may take the name of a person, school, village, parish, or small town. In towns, where it may be desirable to organise more than one Band, no Band should take the name of the town, but some distinctive local name should be adopted.

This Band shall consist of members, and of honorary members, the latter paying 2s. 6d. per annum. Such subscriptions shall be paid to the Band Secretary, to be used in defraying working expenses.

This Band shall consist of members (paying whatever weekly subscription, if any, the Secretary may determine) who shall give their assent to the following declaration :—

I agree to be kind to animals, and to do all in my power to protect them from cruelty, and to promote their humane treatment.

This Band shall supply a card or medal of membership, and a Band Service Book, to each member on admission.

This Band shall hold regular meetings at which addresses or lectures shall be given ; Band of Mercy Melodies sung, and Service Book used ; readings and recitations delivered ; stories and anecdotes related ; interesting work done by members reported, etc.

This Band shall also encourage its members to avoid unkindness one to another, and to all other persons.

All members of this Band shall be urged to subscribe for the Band of Mercy Magazine ($\frac{1}{2}$ d. per month).

It is important to remind those anxious to start Bands of Mercy, that such Bands should not be formed unless there is a prospect of permanence. Spasmodic efforts in this direction do little to further the cause, and it is difficult to make a fresh beginning where one Band has failed through mismanagement or lack of energy ; so that such a movement, started with an enthusiasm which does not last, is more likely to do harm than good. No Band can be of any service unless it holds meetings regularly, and its teaching is systematic and conscientious.

HOW TO WORK A BAND.

The initial difficulties completed, the first question which besets the Band Secretary is, "How am I going to work my Band so that I may hold the interest of the children, and make its influence a power in the locality ?" These considerations should be well weighed, and a definite plan of action decided on. One of the first essentials for the success of the work is that the meetings should take place regularly, and should be held, as a rule, at least once a month. They should be held if possible in a schoolroom or hall where convenience for giving lectures, lantern readings, etc., can be obtained. It should be borne in mind that the Movement can be regarded as a secular one, or it can be based on religious principles, so that the work appeals to people of widely divergent views. The meetings can either include opening or closing hymns and prayers, or they need not have a markedly religious tone. They should above all be bright and attractive, and the children should be made to regard their attendance, not only as a pleasure, but also as a duty.

CONSTITUTION OF BANDS.

Humanity appeals to all classes. The children of the rich need educating equally with the children of the poor. It is desirable, therefore, that the Band should attract members of various social grades, who should benefit by its teaching without distinction. Both boys and girls should be enrolled, but special efforts should be made to attract boys, for it is among these that acts of cruelty are more likely to occur.

GRADES AMONG MEMBERS.

Children should be induced to attend the meetings regularly, and to take a keen interest in the work, which should be made as attractive as possible. To arouse a spirit of keenness and competition each Band should contain a certain number (not more than one-fifth of its complement) of Knights and Dames of Mercy. These should be created as a reward for meritorious work or conduct.

FORMATION OF COMPANIES.

In large Bands, for convenience of organization, and especially for the purpose of maintaining enthusiasm, and keeping all the members in touch with the work, companies may be formed, each under the charge of an adult Warden. The Warden should then be responsible to the Secretary for the behaviour of his or her company during the meetings, which might be arranged to take place in the intervals between the Band Meetings.

CONDUCT OF BAND MEETINGS.

No hard and fast rules can be laid down for the conduct of meetings, and much must be left to the discretion and ingenuity of the Secretary. The main points to be remembered are that the meetings should be bright and attractive. Though the subject of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals should be dealt with, it is desirable that the Promotion of Kindness should be the more important part of a Band's teaching. The roll of members should be called at the commencement of each meeting, and a record entered by the Secretary in a Register, which can be obtained from the R.S.P.C.A., kept for that purpose. Secretaries are asked to send brief reports of meetings held, for insertion in the Band of Mercy Magazine.

REWARDS FOR ATTENDANCE.

Rewards in the form of books or certificates should be given for good attendance. A list of books recommended by the Society will be found on pp. 33-38.

SUGGESTED SUBJECTS FOR MEETINGS.

The following are some suggested features which might be introduced with advantage :—

Singing of simple Part Songs, Band of Mercy Melodies, and Action

Songs, or the acting of short Humane plays.

Address (not to exceed fifteen minutes).

A quarterly prize may be offered for the best essay subsequently written on such address.

Animal Spelling Bees.

Anecdotes of animal sagacity, affection, etc.

Short lessons on the uses of animals.

References to the work of the R.S.P.C.A. and its history.

In Sunday Schools, lessons should be given on the references to animals in the Bible.

LANTERN SLIDES AND READINGS.

Slides, with readings specially prepared for the Society, are lent gratis by the R.S.P.C.A.

(See pp. 254-264.)

THE FOLLOWING POINTS MAY BE PUT FORWARD.

(a) Natural History Teaching.

Children should be encouraged to use their eyes and powers of observation, in noticing the wonders of nature and animal life, and to relate to their teacher anything they may have discovered which interests them.

(b) Collecting Butterflies, Birds' Eggs, etc.

A conception of the mystery of life, of the wonders of flight, of the beauties of colour and the sensibility to pain, even in the small insects, will discourage this practice.

(c) Care of Horses and Donkeys.

Instruction in the care of horses and donkeys is a desirable part of Band of Mercy Teaching. Many children will have animals placed in their charge when they enter situations, and therefore they should know how to treat them.

(d) Treatment of Pets.

The keeping of wild animals as pets should be discouraged, but where tame creatures are kept, practical hints on their feeding and management should be given, which necessary information can be learnt from the Society's special pamphlets.

(e) Caged Birds.

A knowledge of wild bird life, realized from observation, will do much to take away the desire of children to imprison these little creatures.

(f) Essay Competitions.

The children should be encouraged to maintain their interest in the Movement when not attending the meetings. Prizes should be offered for the best essays on set subjects. Members should be specially induced to take part in the Band of Mercy Competition, and "The Animal World" Competition, for which prizes and certificates are frequently offered by the Society.

(g) Wild Birds in Winter.

Members should always remember to feed and water wild birds in winter time, when the ground is hard or covered with snow, and when they cannot find the food and water necessary for their existence.

(h) Nature Rambles.

These can be frequently organized, especially during the summer months, though useful facts on animal life may be gleaned at all seasons.

(i) Photography.

The older members should be encouraged to take photographs of animals, which may be entered for

"The Animal World" Photographic Competition.

TREATS.

These may be given from time to time. They should, however, not be regarded as bribes for membership, but rather as rewards for faithful attendance.

(j) Entertainments.

These, in country localities, are effective in drawing attention to the Bands, and arousing interest in the Movement. They should be held under the patronage of persons of influence in the neighbourhood, and the proceeds, obtained by the sale of tickets, should be devoted to defraying Band expenses. As many children as possible should take part, and songs, action songs, recitations and plays should be among the items.

(k) Banners for Bands.

A banner rouses enthusiasm, and is a source of pride to the members. It can either be designed and made by some member or friend of the Band itself, or arrangements can be made with the R.S.P.C.A. for its manufacture at a very low price.

REQUISITES FOR MEMBERS.

MEDALS FOR MEMBERS.

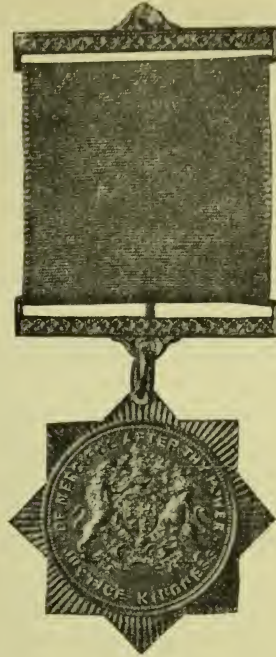

At the Band of Mercy Conference, it was determined that the Governing Body, appointed on that occasion, should provide a medal to be supplied to the Bands at cost price. In pursuance of this resolution the Ladies' Committee, anxious to perform their trust to the satisfaction of Bands, employed a good artist to copy the design of a medal executed by the personal command of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria for the R.S.P.C.A., from which a die has been made at the expense of the Governing Body. (It will be interesting to know that a cat was put into the obverse of the large original medal by command of Queen Victoria, in order that this little feline companion might be honoured equally with other favourites.) The metal used is hard and durable, and the gilded surface shows a sharp impression of the design. Efforts have been made to obtain those results at the lowest possible cost.

FACSIMILE OF 2d. MEDAL—OBSERVE SIDE.

The colour of the ribbon is dark crimson, which is recommended to Bands, because it is pretty, is most serviceable, has not been adopted by any other society, and is used in the army for decorations. Light colours soon become soiled, and several shades of blue are already in use as emblems of different associations.

FACSIMILE OF 3d. MEDAL—REVERSE SIDE.

Medal with ribbon, two bars, and pin complete / 3s. per doz.

Medal with ribbon and one bar only / 2s. per doz.

Medal as Brooch / 2d. each.

Medal as Button / 2d. each.

Medal alone / 1s. per doz.

Bronze Medals / 6d. each.

Silver Medal Brooches..... / 2s. 6d. each.

Silver Medals / 3s. 6d. each.

CARDS FOR MEMBERS.

New Illuminated Cards of Membership, 1d. each. Cards for Highly Commended in Band of Mercy Shows.

REGISTERS FOR BANDS.

To contain 500 names.....2s. 6d.

CATALOGUE OF LANTERN SLIDES

LENT GRATIS BY THE ROYAL SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

Application for THIRTY-SIX SLIDES, with some alternative titles, should be made at least three days in advance, to the Secretary of the R.S.P.C.A., 105, Jermyn Street, London, S.W., stating the day on which the slides are required for exhibition. The slides must in all cases be returned to the Society, carefully packed to avoid breakages, within three days of their departure from the office, unless in use for other meetings, dates of which should be sent to the Slide Department. A charge of 2s. 6d. will be made for each broken slide.

Bands should supply the Hall with lanterns, sheet and operator.

ALL SLIDES, EACH ONE MEASURING $3\frac{1}{4}$ INCHES EACH WAY, ARE LENT GRATIS, PACKED IN SPECIALLY CONSTRUCTED BOXES, THE ONLY CHARGE BEING FOR POSTAGE BOTH WAYS, AND FOR ANY DAMAGE WHICH MAY BE DONE WHILE THE SLIDES ARE ON LOAN OR ARE BEING RETURNED.

Necessary Procedure when witnessing cases of cruelty.

Modes of Procedure.

The Statute 1 & 2, Geo. 5, ch. 27, provides three means by which perpetrators of cruelty to animals may be punished :—

I. By a policeman taking an offender into custody. Only a police constable can arrest an offender, either on his own view or upon the complaint of any other person, when he must act on his own responsibility.

The horse and vehicle, or an animal in charge of any person taken into custody may be conveyed to a place of safe keeping for production at the hearing, and to provide security for the payment of the penalty and expenses to which the accused, or the owner, may become liable; and in default of payment of such penalty and expenses, the Magistrate may order the animal and the vehicle to be sold forthwith to discharge the said liability.

II. By Summons. First obtain the name and address of the offender, and that painted on the vehicle in his charge (if any), and lay the complaint before a Justice of the Peace within whose jurisdiction the offence shall have been committed. This must be done WITHIN SIX CALENDAR MONTHS after the commission of the act complained of.

III. By Warrant. This is desirable in all cases where there is reason to believe the offender will evade a summons by absconding. Make complaint to a Magistrate, who will require you to satisfy him that the accused has committed an offence and is likely to abscond, which must be by sworn "information" in writing.

When a witness doubts his own ability to conduct proceedings under the Statute successfully, or the Police think that the Society can prosecute with better effect themselves, applications and particulars should be sent to an Inspector of the Society, or to the Secretary, 105, Jermyn Street, London.

Nature of Evidence.

Should the accused be the driver or conductor of an omnibus, cab, or other public vehicle, obtain his name, address, and number of badge, also the name, address, and number on the said omnibus, cab, or other vehicle; if he be a drover, take the number of his badge, demand to see his licence, note whether or not the number of the badge and the description of the drover upon the licence are correct, and make an extract from licence of the name and address of the drover.

Make a note of the time when, and the street or place where, the offence occurred. If for driving a horse or other animal with galled neck or shoulders, or other wounds, note the size and situation of such wounds, especially if old, discharging, and in contact with the harness, and examine the collar or harness for adhering particles of matter and dried blood; if for flogging or beating note the number of blows, and on what part of the body inflicted, and the effect (if any) on the skin of the animal; if for lameness, ascertain particularly whether or not there is suffering, or inflammation in the injured part, as lameness is not always an indication of pain; if for weakness or infirmity, take care to have a witness to give evidence of the bodily condition, age, and incapacity of the animal, and the labour exacted from it; if for overloading, it is indispensable to show painful distress of the animal—e.g. trembling, falling, unusual perspiration, or exhaustion—or to show violence on the part of the driver; if for mutilation, or any other torture, observe minutely and take down in writing the precise character of the same in detail. If for starving animals, overstocking cows, exposing shorn sheep to cold atmosphere, or other acts difficult for a private person to prove, a Veterinary Surgeon should be called to examine the animals at the time of the offence, or as soon afterwards as possible, and he should be produced as a witness at the hearing.

It is important to remember the exact words of accused when stopped, which frequently amount to an admission of guilt.

In every case (if possible) obtain the name and address of a respectable witness willing to give supporting evidence. If unwilling, such witness may be summoned to appear.

Advice and Assistance. The foregoing remarks refer to the most common acts of cruelty to animals. The reader will find in the sections of the statutes many specific offences specially provided for by the Legislature. General cruelty is brought under purview and punishment by comprehensive phraseology. Occasionally it may be necessary, therefore, to seek further information as to the provisions of the law relating to ordinary or extraordinary forms of cruelty, to the nature and amount of evidence necessary to establish an offence, or to the meaning of obscure language in the statute. It often occurs that persons regard the discovery of offences, and even the prosecution of offenders, as operations beyond their experience or capacity, or as an odious obligation which should be undertaken by a Society established for the enforcement of the law. In such instances it may be desirable to consult the R.S.P.C.A., whose advice and assistance are given to non-members as well as to members of the Institution.

It is requested that the particulars of an act of cruelty forwarded to the Secretary may be made full and precise, and delivered as soon as possible after the offence; and it is earnestly hoped that personal inconvenience, arising out of proceedings, will not deter persons from co-operating with the Inspectors.

Upon any respectable person furnishing particulars of an act of cruelty, personally or by letter, proper inquiries will be made and, subject to the accumulation of sufficient evidence, the Secretary will prosecute without expense to the applicant, and without his assistance, except in so far as may be necessary for the conviction of the offender. The names of persons, and letters supplying information, are kept strictly private and confidential when secrecy is enjoined. Correspondents are particularly desired to give their names, or other witnesses, from whom further particulars may be obtained if needed. Neglect of this precaution frequently prevents the investigation of complaints. If names cannot be sent to the Society in confidence, the correspondent cannot be credited.

It is impossible to estimate the amount of suffering prevented by the above convictions.

Persuasive efforts constantly made by the Society, to check habits and conduct leading to cruelty, have also shielded animals from much violence and ill-treatment.

In addition, numerous official monitions have been forwarded in cases in which prosecutions could not be instituted; and the Inspectors' daily Reports show numberless instances where, by giving advice and cautions, the necessity for a prosecution has been obviated.

Are you a Horse Owner?

You are? Then prove your love for horses by helping the R.S.P.C.A. to end the detestable Decrepit Horse Traffic. Six times has the Society endeavoured in Parliament to remove this blot on Britain's national honour. Six times has it failed to achieve its purpose fully, though it has done much to improve the traffic. But the shame shall be removed. Public opinion and every instinct of humanity demand it. There is a way apart from legislation. If victims are not forthcoming the trade must cease automatically. Ensure this end by joining

The League of Merciful Horse Owners

In becoming a member of this League you pledge yourself that no old horse of yours shall ever be killed except in your own presence, or in that of an accredited witness, and that no old horse shall be sold by you under any circumstances. By keeping this [pledge you will answer the cry that is becoming daily more powerful, which demands irresistibly that our faithful dumb servants shall never meet a shameful fate upon a foreign shore. Join now, and ask your friends to join also. There is no subscription. All that is wanted is your sympathy, your support. Surely you will give this?

For particulars of membership and form of pledge apply to the Chief Secretary, the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, 105, Jermyn Steet, London, S.W.

The Council beg you to note that the list of Annual Subscribers is very small. It is most necessary to seek for more assured income by means of annual payments, instead of the uncertain assistance of donations and legacies. Without such additional support, sooner or later, the Society's work must suffer from insufficiency of means. If you desire to subscribe or to increase your present subscription, kindly fill up and forward the above form.

"Tunickers,"

(REGD.)

A Practical Working Costume for Women.

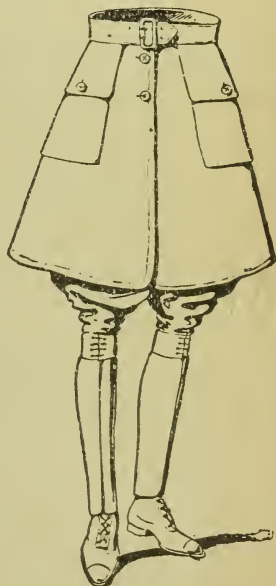

For Remount, Ambulance, Farm and Garden Work, they obviate the necessity for a coat, as the Tunic can be removed in a moment and used as a Cape in wet weather.

"TUNICKERS" REGD. complete from 4 Gs.

You need only send your height, waist, and calf measures.

The Field says: "Messrs. Thomas's idea, as exemplified in the accompanying sketch, is to clothe the limbs fully in appropriately cut knickerbocker-breeches, and to cover them externally with such a length of skirt as will provide the necessary protection without hampering movement or collecting stray refuse. . . . Everybody who has worked in the open during rainy weather has envied the policeman's cape and the power to throw the rain clear of the knees. Thomas's 'Tunicker Skirt' does all this and is equally easy to throw off, either for drying, or to act as a shoulder cover whilst sheltering."

The World's Favourite Author

ATHENÆUM says:—"All living writers are headed by Mr. Nat Gould, and of the great of the past, Dumas only surpasses his popularity."

TRUTH says:—"Who is the most popular of living novelists? Mr. Nat Gould easily and indisputably takes the first place."

Miss BEATRICE HARRADEN, one of the Honorary Librarians to the Military Hospital, Endell Street, London, writing in the November, 1916, issue of the "Cornhill Magazine," states:—"We had to invest in any amount of NAT GOULD'S sporting stories. In fact, a certain type of man would read nothing except NAT GOULD. However ill he was, however suffering and broken, the name of NAT GOULD would always bring a smile to his face. Often and often I've heard the whispered words: 'A Nat Gould ready for when I'm better.'"

WHAT IS THE R.S.P.C.A. ?

WHY IT IS NEEDED

WHAT IT HAS DONE

THE SOCIETY'S WORK.

The R.S.P.C.A. has put down most of the countless cruelties to animals of the " good old days," and has also originated the various Acts for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals from the time when, in 1822, animals first obtained a legal status. It has also seen that the Acts were kept, and it has brought the wrong-doers to justice, for over two hundred and fifty thousand Convictions have been obtained by the Society's Inspectors.

It must be borne in mind that an incalculable amount of suffering is prevented annually by the presence of the Society's uniformed Inspectors at race-meetings, rabbit-coursing matches, pigeon shoots, menageries, circuses, live-stock dealers' shops, fairs, cattle-markets, etc. A comparison of the 18,381 cautions given in 1916 by the officials, as against 3,741 convictions obtained by them during the same period, bears eloquent testimony to the fact that the Society prevents rather than prosecutes.

THE SOCIETY'S POLICY.

The Society's real and most important object is to keep people out of prison by engrafting in them, by education, a moral responsibility towards the animals in their charge. By its Inspectors, pamphlets and cautionary placards, and by its organization of Branches and Auxiliaries in England and Wales, it advises on the proper treatment of animals. It should be remembered that the policy of the Society is so wide that it receives the support of many people, who, on various subjects of controversy, hold views in opposition to other supporters, while they all unite in desiring to put down the universally recognized acts of cruelty of every-day life.

The Society pursues a practical policy by organizing humane slaughtering demonstrations, given by experts, to show butchers the most humane and expeditious way of taking animal life, by holding suppers for drovers, slaughtermen, and cab drivers, by organizing Horse Parades and Donkey Shows, and by having stalls at Agricultural Shows, Horse Shows, and other places attended by men who earn their livelihood by dealing in animals. It also draws public attention to the special needs of animals by letters and advertisements in the public press.

The Society, by rewarding acts of gallantry for animal life-saving ; by holding School Essay Competitions on the subject of kindness to Animals, both at Head Quarters and under the auspices of the Branches ; by inviting the clergy to preach sermons on mercy to animals on the Fourth Sunday after Trinity ; by gratis Lantern Lectures, addresses and entertainments ; by lending, gratis, selections from the large and unique collection of Lantern Slides and readings ; by its publications, " The Animal World " and " Band of Mercy," and by issuing instructive pamphlets on the treatment of animals, is bound to educate the coming generation, for it works not only to better the treatment of animals, but it also aims at the improvement of human nature, by teaching forbearance, self-control, and courtesy.

THE SOCIETY'S AREA OF OPERATIONS. It should be remembered that the area of its operations is limited to England and Wales, and that it can therefore in no way be held responsible for work outside England and Wales, though it always seeks to co-operate with its sister Societies all over the world.

For the purpose of dividing the work and insuring that areas shall be properly regulated, the country is divided into Branches with Auxiliaries for smaller districts within such Branches.

But, though the country is divided into Branches, it is important to remember that while these divisions are only made for the purposes of organization, they form a Part of the whole Society which has :

- (a) One Organization, into which each Branch is formally affiliated ;
- (b) One policy, with one general method of carrying it out ; and
- (c) One legal authority. All questions of court proceedings are determined at Head Quarters so as (1) to insure uniformity of action ; (2) to secure the examination of all evidence by experts ; and (3) to enable, where necessary, the Society to appeal against adverse decisions.

INFORMATION RELATING TO
AUXILIARIES,
AND
SISTER SOCIETIES
THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

NOTE.—Full particulars relating to the formation of, and suggestions for the management of, a Branch, will be sent on application to the Secretary, 105, Jermyn Street, S.W. 1.

Names of the Auxiliary Hon. Secretaries of any Branch will be supplied on application to the Chief Secretary.

What the Society did last year (1916)

- 3,741 offenders prosecuted and convicted for cruelty to animals.
 - 66 persons acquitted but the Society's costs were remitted, which justified the Society's action.
 - 18,381 persons guilty of minor acts of cruelty were cautioned by Inspectors or admonished in writing.
 - 10,938 complaints of cruelty to animals investigated.
 - 6,400 Sermons were preached, on the subject of mercy to animals, by Clergy and Ministers.
 - 290,824 Essays were written by school children in London on the subject of Kindness to animals ; while many similar competitions were held in the country.
 - 24 New Bands of Mercy formed.
 - 275 Humane killers sold to local butchers.
 - 154 Meetings were organized and attended by the Staff at Head Quarters.
 - 32,159 starving, homeless and diseased cats were received by the Animals' Rescue League.

The work of this Society, which was founded in 1824, and has branches in most of the large towns of England and Wales, has a strong claim for the support of the charitable lovers of the animal creation. It is Supported only by Voluntary Contributions, and the Council need every assistance to enable them to continue their work—which is both educational and punitive.

LISTS OF
SUBSCRIPTIONS, AND DONATIONS,
1916.

THE IMPERATIVE NEED OF LEGACIES.

The Society is greatly in need of funds to carry on and extend its great work. It is important, therefore, that the kind-hearted and generous public should remember that it is the ONLY SOCIETY WORKING FOR THE WELFARE OF ANIMALS which maintains a large staff of UNIFORMED INSPECTORS to carry on the work of prevention.

The only means of insuring that this work can be carried on is by increasing the Society's income, and this can only be done by leaving legacies for its benefit.

FORM OF BEQUEST.

To those benevolent individuals who may be inclined to become benefactors by Will to this Society, the following form is respectfully suggested :—

*" I give and bequeath the sum of £.....
" to be paid to the Treasurer for the time being of THE ROYAL SOCIETY FOR
" THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS, established 1824 ; to be at the " disposal of the Council for the time being of the said Society ; and I direct
" that the same be paid free of legacy duty."*

CAUTION.

It is of great importance to describe very accurately the title of this Society, namely—
"THE ROYAL SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS, established 1824;" otherwise the benevolent intentions of the Donor may be contested in a Court of Law with consequent expenses.

By the Act of 7 William IV and 1 Victoria, cap. 26, all Wills or Codicils must be in Writing signed by the Testator, and attested by two witnesses in the presence of the Testator and of each other.

LIST OF MEMBERS.

NOTE.—For the sake of economy the List of Members is not printed this year, as the majority of names will appear in the Reports of Branches to which subscriptions have been paid direct. Members who have subscribed to Headquarters will find their names in the List of Subscriptions.

LIFE MEMBERS.—A donation of not less than twenty guineas paid in one amount shall constitute the donor a Life Member.

HONORARY LIFE MEMBERS.—The Council shall have power to appoint as Honorary Life Members persons who have rendered distinguished service in the cause of animals.

ANNUAL MEMBERS.—An Annual Subscription of one guinea constitutes the subscriber an Annual Member.

LIFE ASSOCIATES.—A donation of ten guineas in one amount paid between 1st January, 1899, and 1st August, 1906, constitutes the donor a Life Associate.

In the event of a change of Address, or the decease, of a Member, it is requested that notification thereof may be sent to the Chief Secretary, 105, Jermyn Street, London, S.W.

R.S.P.C.A.

FUND FOR

SICK AND WOUNDED HORSES.

Chairman: HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF PORTLAND, K.G.

AN OFFICIAL STATEMENT by the Under-Secretary for War.

In the House of Commons.

Asked on the 6th of April, 1916.

THE QUESTION:

MR. ANDERSON asked the Under-Secretary of State for War if he could state how many Societies are at present collecting funds in this country to ameliorate the treatment and condition of horses engaged in warfare: whether the present arrangement involves overlapping and waste of money and effort; and whether it is proposed to take any steps to obtain greater efficiency, co-ordination, and control?

THE ANSWER:

MR. TENNANT: I am aware that funds are being collected in this country by more than one Society, but I do not know by how many. It is desirable that it should be known that the only Society authorised by the War Office to collect funds and co-ordinate offers of assistance for horses of the British Army is the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, to which all contributions, gifts, and offers of assistance should be addressed. I may add that this Society is working in close connection with the Army Veterinary Department. I agree with my hon. Friend that the collection of funds by more than one Society involves waste of effort. The remedy is, I think, for the public to appreciate fully the fact that the authorised Society for this purpose is the one I have mentioned.

ANNUAL REPORT for 1916.

In presenting the ninety-third Annual Report of the Society your Council have pleasure in recording that, in spite of continued financial difficulties and the depletion of the staff—Inspectors and clerical—the work of the Society has been carried on successfully, and they desire to record their hearty thanks to all those who have helped. It will interest you to know that one hundred and thirty-six members of the Staff, out of a total of two hundred and fifty-two, are serving in some capacity with the colours. Your Council continues, as in the previous years, the allowances made to their wives, and the vacancies have, as far as possible, been filled by temporary appointments. All this extra expenditure has, naturally, considerably increased the cost of the year's work.

Prevention of Cruelty. Your Council have always laid special stress on the fact that the work of your Society is preventive rather than punitive. In this connection they would point out that during the past year 18,381 persons guilty of minor acts of cruelty were cautioned by your Inspectors or admonished in writing from Headquarters, while 3,741 persons were prosecuted and convicted of cruelty. They consider the large proportion of cautions over prosecutions proves the Society's contention as to the importance of its preventive work. In connection with the prosecutions your Council would remind you, not only of the fact that a large number of your Inspectors are serving with the colours, but that also, owing to the war, the number of horses and drivers has naturally decreased, and they, therefore, consider the record of the year's work compares favourably with that of previous years.

Prosecution in Regard to Performing Animals. Your Society's Inspectors continue to keep a sharp look-out on the performing animals to be found upon the music hall stage and in travelling shows. Animal trainers are chiefly foreigners, and owing to the existing difficulties of travel their number in this country now is considerably reduced, but the following three cases are worthy of notice :—

At Luton Police Court a travelling showman was convicted and fined £2 for ill-treating a lioness. The animal was kept in a cage 4ft. wide by 8ft. long, and at each performance was jabbed and prodded about the eyes, nose, and mouth with a stick in order to make her, in the words of the advertisement, "a Wild Beast of the Forest—an Untamable Man-eating Animal."

At Darlington Police Court three gipsies, said to be Serbians, were convicted, and each was fined £2 and £1 12s. 6d. costs, for ill-treating two bears and a monkey during performances in the streets. At East Harling Petty Sessions a travelling showman was convicted for cruelty to a camel with a deformed foot, by travelling the same whilst in an unfit state.

Special Cases during the Year. Your Council would draw your attention to the following cases which illustrate the varied and important work carried out by your Society throughout the country :

A somewhat unusual case of cruelty was heard recently at Thirsk, where a farmer and labourer were summoned, and convicted for causing unnecessary suffering to two dogs by inserting rings through their noses.

A successful prosecution was obtained in the case of two watch-dogs kept at a London Theatre, for omitting to provide them with sufficient food and attention.

At Wycombe a farmer was prosecuted for cruelty to a lamb by wounding it twice with a knife. The defendant pleaded that, according to local custom, he had stabbed the lamb under the eye, because it had become overheated and was giddy ; and he considered that that was a correct method. A fine of £3 and £2 2s. costs was inflicted.

At Bolton Police Court a man was convicted and fined 10s. for using a crowbar 7½ lbs. in weight in place of a whip.

At Ipswich a farmer was convicted and fined £1 2s. for causing 65 fowls to be conveyed in a cart 5ft. 2in. in length and 3ft. 8in. in breadth, the space being not quite a square foot for every three birds, five of them being dead when the Inspector stopped the cart.

At Aldershot, recently, a Father and a Brother of a monastery, and a third defendant, were each fined one guinea. Evidence showed that defendants packed two live pigs into a box. The box was forwarded by rail to Farnborough. On arrival, the pigs were found to be dead from suffocation. A defendant said the pigs were ordered three weeks before they were despatched, and the box was made at that time, but in the interval the pigs increased in size.

At Tadcaster Police Court, two schoolboys, each aged 11 years, were charged with cruelly ill-treating a goose by stabbing it with a knife and beating it with a stick. It was stated that the boys had been severely thrashed for the offence by their parents. The latter were bound over in the sum of £5 each for six months for the good behaviour of the boys.

A prosecution was brought against a master of harriers, secretary and kennelman, for cruelty to twenty-eight hounds. Evidence showed that the hounds were in a very poor and emaciated condition. The master and secretary were fined 20s. each, and the kennelman was fined 30s

A farmer was charged with ill-treating a sheep dog by throwing paraffin oil over it, and then setting fire to the animal. The case was described as one of the grossest acts of cruelty that had ever come before any Carmarthenshire court. The bench were unanimous in convicting the defendant, who was fined £5.

Rabbit Coursing in Enclosed Places. Your Society instituted a prosecution against certain persons for carrying on rabbit coursing in an enclosed place, on the ground that the rabbits could not be said to be liberated and that they were under control. The summons was dismissed by the Magistrate, and your Society appealed to the High Court, but unfortunately the Judges of the Divisional Court, by a majority, confirmed the decision of the Magistrate in the Court below. It is deplorable that this so-called sport should be permitted. The unfortunate rabbits have no chance of escape, and if they run at all it is only a few yards before they are caught by the dogs and torn to pieces in front of the spectators. At all these meetings bookmakers are present, and bets are made on the result of the contests between the dogs. It is sincerely hoped public feeling will make itself so strongly felt, that this degrading and indefensible practice will be abolished.

Cruelty to Pit Ponies. Your Council has continued during the past year to make representations to the Authorities with reference to the condition of ponies working in mines, and especially to the inadequate number of Government Inspectors (seven in all, for the whole of the United Kingdom), and the consequent neglect to supervise the condition of the ponies.

Sir George Greenwood, M.P., a member of your Council, Mr. J. G. Butcher, M.P., and others, have recently asked questions on this matter in the House of Commons, to show that Section 109 of the Coal Mines Act, 1911, is not being adequately carried out. Mr. Butcher in November last called the attention of the Home Secretary to the fact that in 1914 out of 70,396 animals employed in coal mines in the United Kingdom, 2,999 had suffered injuries resulting in death, while 10,878 had received non-fatal injuries. These figures do not include those which were destroyed in consequence of old age. Sir George Greenwood, in questioning the Home Secretary, elicited the fact that while 916 mines in England and North Wales were inspected in 1915, 96 had not been visited, and that in South Wales, while 288 mines had been inspected, 287 had been left unvisited, which meant that during that year 10,559 animals had not been inspected. Your Council regret exceedingly that the provision of the Coal Mines Act with regard to animals, the passing of which your Society, through the active help of Sir George Greenwood and other Members of Parliament, was able very considerably to aid, have not been fully carried into effect. In particular they regret that the Home Office has been unable, or unwilling, to appoint more special inspectors for the animals in the mines; but wherever adequate evidence has been available, the Society has continued to institute prosecutions, as, for example, in the following cases:—

At Doncaster, a pit hand was convicted and sent to prison for 14 days without the option of a fine, for wounding a pony with a large piece of wood with nails in it, and at Goldthorpe a conviction was obtained for a similar offence. At Corton Wood Colliery, a pony driver was convicted and fined 30s. for striking a horse on the head with a wooden lock bar. At Ilkeston, another conviction was obtained for beating, and a fine of £10 imposed, and at Leeds a pony driver was sentenced to one month's hard labour for throwing a hammer at a pony's head. Convictions were also obtained during the past year at Danaby, Barnsley, Newcastle, Worksop, Dewsbury, Sunderland, and Cudworth. In the last named case the driver was sent to hard labour for three months for beating a pony with a hammer.

The R.S.P.C.A. Fund for Sick and Wounded Horses. This Fund which, as your Council informed you in the Report for 1914, was formed with the sanction of the Army Council to assist the Army Veterinary Department in providing hospital accommodation and requisites for the horses of the British Army, has continued its useful work during the past year, under the Chairmanship of the Duke of Portland. Up to the end of the year, the Fund has collected over £100,000, which has been spent in providing hospital accommodation for 9,540 animals, in supplying special horse tents for movable hospitals, and 127 horse-drawn ambulances, and 10 motor horse ambulances for conveying sick and wounded horses from the battlefield to railhead, or direct to the hospitals on the lines of communication. It has also provided a large number of corn-crushing and chaff-cutting machines, Vermorel sprayers, dandy brushes, curry combs, and veterinary medicines, besides thousands of other requisites, including rugs and bandages. Large numbers of applications were also made by individual officers stationed in France, Salonika and Egypt for medical appliances, etc., which, for one reason or another, they were unable to obtain from the authorities without unavoidable delay, and these have, wherever possible, been sent out. The Fund has also helped the horses of the Home Armies with similar necessities, and a successful course of instructive lectures, by several members of the R.S.P.C.A. Staff, and free circulation of booklets on First Aid, etc., have been of great benefit to many men of the New Army who had previously had little or no experience in dealing with horses. This special work has now practically come to an end, owing to the constant shifting of home units to the Front, but supplies of booklets are issued gratis whenever asked for. As the war continues the aid of the Fund will be constantly required. It may, perhaps be considered that this Fund is only doing what the Government would otherwise do itself. This is so, but your Council would point out that the utility of the Fund lies in the fact that the special Committee of the Fund is able to attend to the needs of the horses quickly, and without the inevitable delay which would be unavoidable if such supplies were only issued through the various War Office Departments, which are already overcrowded, and which have naturally to attend to the needs of the men before the animals. In addition to this, however, the Fund Committee has been able to introduce many aids to the work which had not hitherto been supplied by the Army Authorities, or considered necessary. Your Council regard it as a great privilege that your Society has, thanks to the generous support of the public, been able to help the Army Veterinary Corps in the wonderful humane and economic work that is being done at the front, and they consider that, besides benefiting the horses of the British Army, the Fund is also helping to make the work and aims of your Society known to an enormous, and practically new, public. Many thousands of officers and men in the Army have come into close touch and co-operation with this work, and, as many letters of thanks show, this help is much appreciated, and will, your Council feel sure, be remembered in the happy days to come when, as we all naturally hope, we shall return to peaceful and more normal times. Your Council, therefore, while thanking the Hon. Secretaries of the Branches, and all others who have so generously helped to make a success of this special work, hope that, so long as the need for it exists, public support will be forthcoming for this Fund to enable its Committee to continue, to quote from a recent letter from F.M. the Commander-in-Chief of the British Army in France, "the very valuable assistance which the Society has rendered to Army Veterinary Service in alleviating animal suffering and reducing wastage of animal life."

How the Money has been raised for the Fund. During the past year the R.S.P.C.A. Fund raised over £48,000, a large part of this money being derived from the organisation of Flag Days, 160 collections having been organised in various towns and localities during the year. The following is a list of places realising £20 and over :—

Sale of Cast Army Horses. Your Council have to record their thanks to three members of its body—Sir Frederick Banbury, Sir George Greenwood and Colonel Lockwood—for having raised the question of the sale of cast army horses in the House of Commons. Arising out of the discussion on this matter, evidence was produced that British Army horses, cast as unfit for further military service, had been sold on the Eastern front for as low a figure as £5 each. Your Council have pleasure in recording that, as a result of this question having been raised, the sale of cast horses to the Easterns has been stopped. The Army Council had also decided to stop the sale of the cast horses in France, but, owing to the strong representations made to the Government by the French Foreign Office and French Ministry of Agriculture, the decision, as far as the army horses in France are concerned, has been rescinded, as it was pointed out to our Government officials that the need for horses for agricultural purposes in France was of the greatest importance, not only to the French, but also to the British troops quartered in the localities. Special regulations have, however, been made that horses shall only be sold in agricultural districts, and that the purchasers shall be certified by the local Mayors as being agriculturists, and in no case shall any one purchaser be allowed to buy more than two horses. Your Council consider that it is desirable to point out that all the horses unfit for any further work are humanely destroyed in the presence of a specially appointed Veterinary Officer, while a large number, sold for human consumption, are destroyed at the abattoir in the presence of a Veterinary Officer. Your Council would further point out, on the assurance of eye-witnesses, that all the horses cast for military reasons are carefully examined by Veterinary Officers, and are classified according to their condition, and that only those which are perfectly fit for civilian, but not for military duties, are sold for work. Your Council are assured that it is an error to call these cast horses war-worn, as a large number of them have never been in the fighting zone, and some have never left the Remount Depôts at the bases, where they arrived after purchase abroad, and where they have been found unfit for the special work required of them. They include, of course, horses which may be gun-shy, jibbers, or otherwise nervous animals that would not work in troops, but would work perfectly well in single harness, or may, owing to the strain of pulling heavy ammunition wagons and guns, have become unfit for that work, but may be capable of doing the slow work on a farm.

Soldiers' Pets from the Trenches. Following the lines mentioned in the last Report your Council continued to lend a helping hand to dogs from Belgium and France which British soldiers on Active Service had adopted as pets, and to which they had become attached. This work has now been closed owing to outbreaks of rabies in France.

Your Headquarters frequently received appeals from soldiers for guidance in bringing home a pet dog, and though various reasons may sometimes prevent this being done, it is gratifying to note that in a number of instances the wishes of the owners have been carried out. In such cases the dogs were temporarily housed by arrangement at the Dogs' Refuge at Boulogne, and were brought over to England as opportunity occurred, and placed in quarantine for the period prescribed by the Board of Agriculture. Notwithstanding the difficulties of transport, and of observing the safeguards required by the British Authorities, 93 dogs belonging to soldiers were brought over from the Boulogne Refuge and, after being cleared from quarantine, were forwarded to relations or friends nominated by their owners pending their return to this country. Your Council have received many expressions of gratitude from owners and others concerned, who have been glad to give a happy home to pet dogs that had shared the dangers of the trenches.

The Humane Slaughtering Movement. Your Council have continued as far as possible its active campaign for promoting the humane slaughtering of animals for food, but, owing to the war, it has been found impossible to get the new instruments, with the exception of a limited number of the "Humane Killers," manufactured. All the butchers using the various instruments have, however, been kept supplied with cartridges, and the number sold during the year far exceeds any number previously sold—in fact, the sales for the previous year have been almost doubled, the two figures reading as follows:—1915—87,000 cartridges supplied; 1916—160,650 cartridges supplied. Your Council have again to report a steady increase in the prices of cartridges, which have now risen 100 per cent. To encourage the butchers, however, to continue the humane methods of slaughter introduced by your Society, they have agreed to continue supplying at pre-war prices.

This work has entailed a certain amount of extra labour on your staff, owing to the provisions of the Defence of the Realm Regulations necessitating a special licence in every case of a butcher being supplied with cartridges now having to be obtained from the military authorities, who, it is pleasing to report, have aided the Society in every way to keep the movement going.

Your Council have pleasure in placing on record their thanks to Mr. R. O. P. Paddison, of Stroud, Glouc., whose untiring work done in connection with this movement has been of the greatest assistance. He has continuously helped the Society and has devoted a great deal of time and energy to the promotion of humane slaughter at a very difficult time.

Awards for Saving Animal Life.—Your Council have sincere pleasure in placing on record the successful efforts of a number of brave and humane men and women who risked their lives to save animals from suffering or death. The awards were as follows:—

SILVER MEDAL—

Private Harrison and Private Fotherby, 2nd Battalion Yorkshire Regiment, for rescuing two horses attached to a wagon from the La Bassée Canal, France, while within range of German guns, on August 19th.

BRONZE MEDAL—

Miss Mabel Sanderson, for saving cattle from a burning building at North Houses Farm, Lytham, on January 24th.

Police-Constable Pearce, for rescuing a cat from the river at Brecon on December 13th.

Police-Sergeant Daniel Parker, Bridlington, for rescuing a dog from a dangerous position on the cliff at Sewerby, on October 13th.

William Wrightson and T. Ord, Coalheavers, for saving three ponies at Houghton Colliery, Durham, in August.

DIPLOMAS—

Police-Constable James A. Bennett, Borough Police, for rescuing a cat from the River Mersey at Stockport, on October 6th.

Sapper C. G. Dietrich, R.E., for attempting to rescue a dog from the sea at Havre, in September, 1915.

Police-Constable Scoones, Canterbury City, for saving the life of a cat in danger of suffocation on April 4th.

Gunner E. McNevin, 98th Canadian Siege Battery, for rescuing a dog from drowning in the canal at Newbury in May.

Animal Rescue League. The excellent work carried on by this League, whose headquarters are at 397, City Road, London, E.C., is shown by the fact that during 1916 no fewer than 32,159 unwanted animals, viz. 29,385 cats and 2,774 dogs, were rescued, or received at the headquarters and mercifully destroyed. The work has enormously increased since the League was taken over by the R.S.P.C.A. Most of the animals received belong to poor people who are unable to subscribe to the League, and therefore a special appeal is made to those who are in a position to do so, to help the League by subscriptions or donations, however small. If the League were not in existence, most of these animals would be turned adrift in the streets, as the owners are not in a position to pay for their destruction, and the League is the only Institution which humanely destroys animals free of any charge. The total subscriptions received to carry on the work were totally inadequate to defray the actual expenses, and the balance had to be found by your Society. It is to be hoped that this year further and increased subscriptions will be forthcoming to carry on this absolutely necessary work.

Educational Work of the R.S.P.C.A. This, which your Council have always regarded as the most important branch of its efforts, has, in spite of many difficulties, been kept steadily in the foreground, and the various methods of guiding public opinion, both in adults and children, in kindness to animals, have been carried out with success.

(a) Animal Sunday (fourth Sunday after Trinity) was again observed, and your Council are glad to record a greatly increased number of sermons, 6,400 in 1916 as against 5,275 in the year before, preached by Clergy of the Church of England and Ministers of various denominations on "Our Duty to the Dumb Creation."

(b) Annual Essay Competition for all the schools within a radius of twenty miles of Charing Cross was again held, and 290,824 essays were written and judged for this competition. Owing to the Crystal Palace still being used by the Government, your Council were unable to arrange for the public presentation of prizes to successful competitors, and these were sent to the children in their various schools. Your Council are grateful to note that, in spite of many other calls on the time of schools, the number of essays has been well maintained, and the interest in this competition, and its consequent good, continued.

(c) Your Council note with pleasure that a certain number of Branches and Auxiliaries again arranged for Essay Competitions within their several districts and the following is a list of the number of essays written: Liverpool, 21,592; Manchester, 21,000; Rochdale, 3,209; Tunbridge Wells, 600; Birkenhead, 8,594; Stoke-on-Trent, 9,000; Nottingham, 49; Oldham, 3,477; Chester, 1,058; Winchester, 178; Hove, 1,465; Wirral, 10,079.

(d) In spite of the difficulties for holding evening meetings, owing to the lighting regulations which have been in force all over the country, the Band of Mercy organisation has been carried on successfully as in former years, and twenty-four new Bands of Mercy have been formed, while the already existing Bands have continued their usefulness, and are well maintaining their number of membership.

Dog Licences. Your Council has, during the past year, defrayed the expenses of 676 dog licences for those owners who are not themselves in a financial position to pay for them, and who would otherwise have had to have their pets destroyed, or might have turned them adrift into the streets. A large proportion of the licences have been given for the dogs of men on military or naval duty, and this means of helping them to keep their pets has been very greatly appreciated.

The Good Work of the Branches. Your Council take this opportunity of congratulating the Branch Hon. Secretaries on the good work done during the past year and for the satisfactory financial result of their efforts to obtain subscriptions at a time when the many claims of special war charities have made this work so much more difficult. It is encouraging to find that a large number of our Branches were able, in spite of the many difficulties, to maintain their annual contributions as in normal times, though in certain cases they have, owing to so many of the staff having been called up for military duties, had to work without full-time Inspectors. This is naturally encouraging and most helpful because, with the increased cost of living and consequent necessity for increased wages, and with the additional cost of making allowances to the wives of all married Inspectors now serving with the forces, etc., the financial responsibilities of the Society are greater than formerly. Your Council hope very much that the Branch Secretaries will again, during the coming year, be good enough to make a special effort to carry on the work in their localities and to gain fresh friends and supporters, so that the activities of the Society may continue as formerly.

Branch Organisation. Your Council are able to report that, although no new Branches have been formed during the past year, the efforts of the local Hon. Secretaries have been well maintained, and a certain number of new Auxiliaries have been formed during the year, viz., at:—Eastbury, Linton, Broadstone, Billingham, Appleton, Eston, Faceby, Great Ayton, Grangetown, Hamstrely, Hudswell, Hilton, Ingleby Green, Ormsby, Nunthorpe, North Ormsby, Maltby, Kirklington, Saltburn, Stainton, Worsall, Wilton, Horncastle, Llanidlo, Kerry, Churchstoke, and Neath.

Conference of Branch Secretaries. A Conference of Branch Secretaries was held in accordance with the scheme inaugurated in June, 1913, at the Headquarters of the Society on April 15th and 16th. The chair on the first day was taken by Sir Frederick Banbury, while Colonel Lockwood kindly presided on the second day. Papers on the following subjects were read and discussed:—“The Relation of Branches to Headquarters,” by Sir Montague Fowler, Acting Chief Secretary; “The Muzzling of Tied-up Calves,” by Mrs. Luther Holden, Hon. Secretary, Ipswich; “Flag Day Organisations,” by Mr. John Lund, Hon. Secretary, Bradford; “Band of Mercy Work,” by Miss Fishwick, Hon. Secretary, Rochdale; “Branch Organisation,” by Mrs. Stuart, Hon. Secretary, Norfolk and Norwich ; " Lost and Starving Cats in London," by Miss Mackinnon, Hon. Secretary, Folkestone. Your Council feel that these annual meetings of Hon. Secretaries are of the greatest use, not only to enable the Society's kind workers to exchange views on the various subjects of interest, but also in giving an opportunity for meeting and keeping in touch with the work throughout the country, and they are glad that this view is also shared by the Hon. Secretaries.

Comforts for R.S.P.C.A. Inspectors at the Front. Your Council would take this opportunity of thanking all those supporters and friends of the Society, who have so generously contributed to enable the Inspectors, and members of the clerical staff, who are serving at the front, to receive parcels of comforts. These have been sent whenever possible, and are very much appreciated as supplementing the clothing and other supplies issued by the Government. They also serve to remind the absent members of the staff of the Society's work, and show also that they are held in remembrance by the Society and its friends.

The Acting Chief Secretary. During the absence of the Chief Secretary for fourteen months in France, Sir Montague Fowler, your Educational Secretary, has carried out most successfully the multifarious duties of Chief Secretary of the Society, and has also acted as Hon. Sec. of the R.S.P.C.A. Fund for Sick and Wounded Horses. Your Council feel that the success of the work during the past year has been largely due to the continued activities of Sir Montague, and they desire to place on record their thanks to him, and also to the staff, who have worked so loyally under him, during a very difficult period. They regret to announce that, owing to family reasons, and frequent absence from London, Sir Montague has felt compelled to relinquish his duties. For this reason your Council, through its Chairman, approached the War Office and obtained permission for Captain Fairholme to return to Headquarters as Chief Secretary, while still being attached to the Veterinary Department of the War Office.

Progress of our Cause Abroad. Owing to the war it has been difficult to keep in touch to the same extent with the work of the prevention of cruelty to animals overseas, but your Council are glad to record that the Darjeeling-Himalayan S.P.C.A., though greatly in need of support, still maintains its efforts. The Barcelona Society continues its active though uphill work, and recent reports from the Buenos Ayres Society show that the good work has been greatly increased. Your Council also gladly record the recent formation of a Society in Buluwayo, under the auspices of the Loyal Women's Guild.

Obituary. Your Council records with sincere regret the death of the following supporters and friends during the year :—

Archdeacon Wilberforce, who had helped our cause by innumerable sermons on the moral rights of animals, and whose influence on behalf of the dumb creation was very powerful.

His Honour, Judge Gye, of the Hampshire and Isle of Wight County Courts, who was always a sympathetic friend.

Mrs. Boston Massey, wife of the present Honorary Secretary of the Rhyl Branch.

Lady Audrey Fletcher, President of the Worthing Auxiliary.

Miss Clarkson, Honorary Secretary of the Wakefield Branch.

Mrs. Edward Phillips, of Croydon, who was one of your Society's oldest supporters, and was one of the originators of the Band of Mercy Movement in 1883.

Canon Percy Smith, who had been a most useful and active member of your Council since 1902.

Mr. Percy Layborne, Honorary Secretary of the Monmouthshire Branch.

Sergt.-Major Bell, late Inspector of the Society, who died on active service.

Mr. F. W. Simmonds, hall attendant at the R.S.P.C.A. Offices, who had been in the services of your Society for thirty-nine years.

Ninety-third Anniversary.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE R.S.P.C.A.,

MAY 2nd, 1917.

THE NINETY-THIRD ANNIVERSARY was held on May 2nd, 1917, at the Central Buildings, Westminster, at 3 o'clock, presided over by the Chairman of the Council, Colonel Sir Edward W. D. Ward, Bart., K.C.B., K.C.V.O., J.P. Present among others supporting him were the Right Honourable Sir Frederick Banbury, Bart., M.P., Sir George Greenwood, M.P., Sir John Rolleston, Sir Montague Fowler, Bart., Mr. R. C. Lyall, J.P., Mr. G. Dixey (Treasurer), Mr. H. J. Selby.

Among the audience were the Honourable Stephen Coleridge, Captain Dowell, Colonel Benson, Mr. Guy Scott, Mr. A. Aslett, Dr. and Mrs. Sharman, Mr. R. O. P. Paddison, Surgeon-Major Poole, Mr. Edgar Jones, Mr. C. N. Scott, Mr. C. E. Lee, Mr. T. A. London, Mrs. Stuart, Mrs. Willmott, Mrs. Woolrych, Mrs. Beresford Heywood, Miss E. Ward, Miss Effie Bishop.

At the request of the Chairman the Chief Secretary (Captain Fairholme) read the notices convening the Meeting, and announced the receipt of letters of regret for non-attendance from the Duke of Portland, Viscount Middleton, the Earl of Shaftesbury, the Earl of Iddesleigh, Lord Aberdare, Lieut.-Gen. Sir R. Baden-Powell, Major-Gen. Sir Desmond O'Callaghan, Sir Charles Behrens, Colonel Wylie, Major-Gen. Thomson, Colonel Henry Fludyer, Mr. Ben Meadows, Mr. Thomas Hazlehurst, Mrs. Daubeney, Lady Rosalind Northcote, Mr. C. Cash, Major the Honourable A. C. Murray, M.P.

THE CHAIRMAN :—Ladies and Gentlemen : I would suggest in rising to propose the adoption of the Annual Report and Statement of Accounts that, as in former years, they be taken as read, they having been circulated to you all. I almost feel that I ought to apologise for asking you to come here to-day in view of the engagements which almost every one has, owing to the war, particularly as so many well-known supporters of the Society are prevented by the same reason from being present. Personally I think it would have been well to have done without this Meeting, but the fact that our Rules provide for such an Annual Meeting must be my excuse for calling you together to-day. It is a matter for congratulation to me as Chairman, and to my fellow-members, of the Council, that in spite of existing difficulties the work of your Society has been carried on so successfully during the past year. We do not, as a Society, lay great stress on the number of convictions recorded annually, but the fact that we obtained 3,741 convictions for cruelty, and gave, either through the Inspectors or direct from headquarters, 18,381 cautions, shows that your work has been well maintained in spite of a depleted staff. You will find in the Report records of certain cases which stand out above others as important in our prosecuting work. The Society has devoted much time and energy to the prevention of cruelty in performing animal exhibitions, and we have secured a number of convictions against persons for this class of offence. It is always a matter of amazement that people should find recreation and amusement in animal performance when the training of such animals does and must, in most cases, involve suffering. I am glad to think, however, that public feeling is growing stronger against these performances, which are consequently becoming less frequent. Unfortunately, and in spite of the action of your Society and others, the treatment of pit ponies is still a matter of great concern. We have, as the Report shows, been successful in prosecutions against persons for cruelty to these animals, and we have constantly urged the authorities to take more definite measures to carry out fully the provisions of Section 109 of the Coal Mines Act, 1911, as regards the appointment of a sufficient number of special Inspectors for animals employed underground. I suppose the answer would be at the present time "shortage of man-power," but we do hope that in the near future the Government will take heed of the representations made to them and appoint sufficient Inspectors to secure real and effective inspection of all pit ponies. (Cheers.) During the past year the Society has had the able assistance of Mr. R. O. P. Paddison and others in connection with the humane slaughtering of animals' movement. I will not go deeply into this question, because we are, I hope, to have details from Mr. Paddison himself as to what has been achieved, and I will therefore content myself by saying that I regard it as a great sign of the advance of humane principles that such excellent results have accrued to this branch of the Society's work in these strenuous times. (Hear, hear.)

There is one very important phase of the Society's operations that I would like to call special attention to, seeing that it is likely to have far-reaching effects on the welfare of the Society in the future. I refer to your work in aiding the Army Veterinary Corps in this great war. (Cheers.) Some people are apt to think that this is a war of motor traction, and that the horse is not very much in request. This is an entirely erroneous idea, because although motor traction is naturally playing a great part where it can be used, the war could not be carried on without the help of the thousands of horses employed with the British Armies on the various Fronts. I consider it a great privilege for the Society to be allowed officially by the Army Council to assist in ameliorating the sufferings of these heroic animals, and I am sure that through its active and practical association with the Army Veterinary

Corps the Society is winning golden opinions from an enormous number of fresh people who will support the Society after the war is over. The Fund has supplied Hospital accommodation for over 9,500 horses, as well as a large number of motor and horse-drawn ambulances for the speedy conveyance of sick and wounded animals from the battlefields or rail-heads to the Veterinary Hospitals—a work of mercy which must commend itself to all lovers of horses. I am not in a position to give statistics of the Army Veterinary Corps' work, but when I tell you that the percentage of animals cured has been up to 80 per cent. during the present war, and that the wastage of horses during the South African war was 60 per cent., you will be able to realise the enormous humane and economic work the A.V.C., with your help, has accomplished, and how important it is for us to carry on in the prevention of animal suffering. (Cheers.) Unstinted appreciation is to hand from the highest Army authorities, including Field-Marshal Lord French and Sir Douglas Haig, and countless letters of praise have been received from officers and men who have seen the benefits the animals derive from our Fund. For example, I will with your permission quote one recently received from a Bombardier, R.F.A., in France, which reads as follows:—

“Allow me to offer my humble appreciation of the admirable way in which your Society deals with our wounded horses in France.

“Being in one of the mounted services of the British Army, namely the Royal Field Artillery, I have witnessed, when in France, many a noble horse being wounded while doing his bit, and it has been a great consolation to me and to all lovers of horses to know that, thanks to the R.S.P.C.A., everything is done to alleviate the sufferings when one of man's best friends is wounded.

“The special ambulance, which your Society provides to convey wounded horses out of the danger zone to have their wounds attended to, is especially commendable.”

I think that a letter like that from a man working with horses is a most charming one. (Hear, hear.)

You will realise from the reports of various Special War Correspondents that horses are playing a bigger part in the present operations than in the earlier stages of the war, and the necessity therefore for still further aid. It is sometimes contended that the Fund is doing work which should be done by the Government. That may be so in theory, but the same may be said of the Red Cross Society which helps the operations of the Royal Army Medical Corps, and I contend that we stand in the same relation to the A.V.C. as the Red Cross does to the R.A.M.C., seeing that we are the only Fund working under the authority of the Army Council. During two years we have collected over £100,000, which has been spent in the prompt supply of hospital and veterinary requisites of all kinds, etc., which could not have been secured with the same despatch from the overworked Government Departments concerned. Thus suffering horses are speedily succoured and their pain alleviated, which I take it are the primary objects of the Society. In this connection I venture to draw your attention to the War Horse Flag Day in London on Wednesday next, the 9th instant, in aid of our Fund, and I trust you will help to make it a great financial asset to the Fund. (Cheers.) The success of the Society throughout the country is of course very largely due to the splendid work of our Branch and Auxiliary Secretaries and Committees. As Chairman of the Society I take this opportunity of thanking them most cordially for their loyal assistance in a critical time, and I tender them in advance my appreciation of their determination to maintain the Society's power for good during the year before us. (Cheers.) As you will probably remember from what was said at previous Meetings, your Council gladly agreed in the suggestion that your Chief Secretary should be given a commission in the Army Veterinary Corps for work in France. For over fourteen months he was with the British Expeditionary Force in the capacity of Deputy Assistant Director of Veterinary Service, where I have reason to believe he performed excellent work for the benefit of animals. During his absence Sir Montague Fowler very ably carried on the duties of Acting Chief Secretary with a very depleted staff, and I feel that we owe Sir Montague a deep debt of gratitude for having so successfully shouldered the onerous duties of carrying on your work at your Headquarters' offices. Unfortunately, it was found that Sir Montague would be obliged to reside on his estate in Scotland, and for that reason I applied for the return of Captain Fairholme, who has now resumed his duties as Chief Secretary, though still attached to the Veterinary Directorate of the War Office. You will, I am sure, Ladies and Gentlemen, be grateful if I do not detain you longer, seeing that many of us have other pressing engagements on public work and therefore I have pleasure in proposing: "That the Report and Financial Statement now read be received, adopted and printed for circulation at the discretion of the Council." (Applause.)

MR. R. O. P. PADDISON:—I rise to second the adoption of the Report so ably moved by our Chairman, and I have been asked to say a few words to you on the subject of humane slaughtering—one of the most important of the good works this Society is conducting. I do not know if you all fully realise how important it is, and what an enormous amount of cruelty is saved by the adoption of the humane methods advocated by the Society. (Hear, hear.) It represents just the difference between what is barbarous and what is humane. You would understand and appreciate this difference if any one of you ever cared to pay a visit to a Bacon Curing Establishment where pigs are killed by the old system, and then visited one where the new and humane methods are in vogue. In the former case you hear the most terrible evidences of agony going on the whole time, that is to say, the shrieking and roaring of animals in pain. This continues as long as the process of killing lasts. On the other hand if you go where the humane mode of slaughter is used, everything is perfectly quiet, there are no sounds of suffering, because there is no suffering. One of our most useful public men went through that experience. He visited both kinds of establishments, and after seeing the one where humane methods are in practice, he said he was deeply impressed, and that if he were not an extremely busy man he would like to spend much of his time in advocating such a humane reform. This Society has been deeply engaged for many years in the promotion of these methods. (Cheers.) Before the war started it had been very active; it was backed up by a strong public opinion and large funds and the movement made considerable progress. Then came the war, with all its tragedies and preoccupations, the mind of the public was diverted into other channels, and money failed to come in in such abundance; the Society's staff was depleted, there was plenty of other business to do; and, in view of all these circumstances it became increasingly difficult to bestow as much attention on humane slaughtering as the subject deserved. I had a great deal to do with the Society and its work at this time, and I will say that the Society did not consider the matter from a commercial point of view; they did not think of producing a favourable balance-sheet, but as it was their duty at all costs to save suffering to animals they spent money when money was scarce, and they gave their time when time was particularly valuable. (Hear, hear.) But fresh difficulties cropped up right and left. Shortly after the war all the cartridge factories, at any rate all the best of them, and it is only from the best that our supplies are obtained—for humane killing cartridges must be infallible—were put entirely on Government work. That was natural enough, but it meant that we were faced with a tremendous obstacle, and we were obliged to say to applicants for cartridges: “We cannot get them, because they cannot be made.” The Ministry of Munitions was approached, but the necessity for our cartridges was not immediately apparent. Our explanations, however, met with sympathy and goodwill, and it was found practicable to supply us with nearly all the cartridges we wanted without any interference with national requirements. Then another difficulty arose at the War Office, stringent regulations having been put into force to ensure that cartridges should not get into wrong hands. That meant that a lot of formality had to be gone through, in fact, a laborious operation involving delays and trouble as regards the R.S.P.C.A., before we could get a very small supply of cartridges to the butchers who wanted it. When a butcher came to the end of his old lot of cartridges he would send to the Society for another lot, but if time elapses before he gets them, he simply resumes killing his animals by the old cruel method. Therefore, it was necessary at all costs to counteract that. (Hear, hear.) The War Office met the Society in a fair and friendly spirit, and did everything they could to help us in preventing such cruelty. Another ally of the Society is the Local Government Board, which, long before the war, was hard at work on a scheme to enable local Authorities to enforce humane methods of slaughter in their respective districts. As most of you know, the Local Government Board sometimes issues model bye-laws as suggestions to Local Authorities, leaving it to their option whether or not to adopt such bye-laws. After careful investigation and laborious work the Local Government Board issued in 1915 their model bye-laws on the subject of humane slaughtering, and backed them up with a strong recommendation that they should be adopted. Owing probably to the war the Local Authorities did not take up the matter as generally as one could have wished. Some applied for the sanction, and received it. Southampton is the largest place where the bye-laws are in force. I am in constant touch with private residents, with meat traders and members of the Local Authority in Southampton, and I am delighted to be able to assure you that the bye-laws work smoothly, and that every animal killed there dies painlessly. That is the result of the Local Government Board’s model bye-laws. (Cheers.) The Meat Trades’ Federation objected to these model bye-laws, imagining, quite wrongly, that their interests would be affected, and they petitioned the Local Government Board not to sanction the application of any Local Authority to adopt them. Representatives of the meat traders were invited to state their case at the Local Government Board’s Office. Representatives of the R.S.P.C.A. were also asked to attend. The Parliamentary Secretary of the Board was in the chair, and a most attentive hearing was given to all aspects of the question. In spite of the well-known ability of the meat traders, I need hardly tell you that when the pros and cons. were considered quite impartially, as they were on that occasion, the cause of humanity easily triumphed. (Cheers.) I have indicated some of the chief difficulties we have had to meet, but not all of them, and we must expect to find others before we reach smooth water again. The Society at any rate will work vigorously to overcome them. You will notice that 160,000 cartridges were sold during the past year. What does that mean? It means that as many messengers of mercy went away to do their humane work; they went to give a merciful death to 160,000 animals, and save them from suffering. It also represents the Society’s effort in keeping alive the flame of humane slaughtering, which, if it is ever allowed to flicker out, will certainly not be rekindled for many years after. (Loud cheers.)

MR. G. DIXEY (Treasurer):—As the Resolution now before you involves the Financial Statement, as well as the Report, perhaps it would not be out of place if I as Treasurer make a few remarks at this moment about the accounts. It is not necessary to go through all the items, but I may say briefly that comparing the finances of the year 1916 with those of 1915, we find on the debtor side that subscriptions to headquarters have decreased by £133, that subscriptions through Branches have also fallen off by £509, while the donations show an increase of £273. The legacies, which you will see are this year entered in a separate account, have been augmented to the extent of £3,554, which makes a total increase of receipts of £2,163. On the credit side the wages of Inspectors have risen to £1,745. This is accounted for by the fact that, while the number of Inspectors has decreased from 222 to 157, we have had to appoint 52 Temporary Inspectors receiving a somewhat larger rate of pay by way of War Bonus and allowances, owing to the increased cost of living, and are paying half allowances to the wives of 81 Inspectors, who are now serving at the Front. (Cheers.) Owing, however, to more generous Government allowances being now made to these men in respect of their children, we intend to economise by granting only allowances which will bring the money received by the wives up to the pre-war wages, plus War Bonus. This will mean a saving of some £2,000. The cost of uniforms has naturally decreased by £174, and this during the coming year will be still further lessened, in spite of the enhanced price of all clothing, by utilising the uniforms of absent men. The total expenditure for Prosecutions and Branch work has unfortunately been increased by £2,321, which is largely accounted for by the increase in the total wages of Inspectors already referred to. The total expenditure for literature, etc., has in spite of the rise in the price of printing, papers, etc., been decreased by about £300, and we hope to make further economies without reducing the utility of our Educational propaganda, by saving some £2,000. The total expenditure has been augmented by £148. I am glad to say that we hope this year to be able to economise by close on £4,000. The direct legacies that are due amount to £9,051, and there are £2,000 due to the Society in the form of remission of income tax. I think, Ladies and Gentlemen, you will agree with me that that is a very satisfactory Treasurer's Report, especially considering the strenuous times through which we are passing at present. (Applause.)

THE HONOURABLE STEPHEN COLERIDGE :—I wish to bear tribute to the work of the Society, which, with the assistance of Sir George Greenwood and other stalwarts, and against the opposition of the Home Office (that body having opposed the Coal Mines Act in the form that it became law), succeeded in passing the section which specially deals with the inspection of pit ponies. Strange it seems that the administration of this statute fell to the Home Office, which proceeded at once to evade its duties under the same. Thus many of the mines have not been inspected at all, and there is nobody to compel the Home Office to do its duty. Sir George Greenwood's question, which was no doubt most politely put to the Home Secretary, as to why he did not do this, revealed a most unsatisfactory state of things. I certainly think a strong letter of protest should go to the Home Office, and let it be published in all the papers, and then something may be done. (Cheers.)

MR. ASLETT (Chairman of the Furness and Barrow Branch) :—I must not detain you more than a few moments as many present have engagements during the afternoon, but there are two or three matters I should like to briefly refer to. I am in touch with many others who feel strongly on these subjects. With regard to what is stated in the Annual Report about the sale of cast Army horses, I am quite sure the thanks of all lovers of animals will go out to the Council, and especially to Sir Frederick Banbury, Sir George Greenwood, and Colonel Lockwood, for raising this question in the House of Commons, and I hope we may trust the Army Council to carry out the Regulations in a proper spirit. I come from Ulverston and Barrow-in-Furness, and many of our subscribers in the north raised this question during the course of last year, and we are now able to give them some tangible evidence as to the usefulness of the R.S.P.C.A. As regards soldiers' pets from the trenches, it is a pleasing thought that as many as 93 dogs have been brought home from the Boulogne Refuge to this country, where we trust their owners will come and claim them again some day. Dogs have shared all the difficulties, dangers and terrors of the trenches, and let us hope they will all be saved from death, and meet their loved ones in the near future. (Hear, hear.) I am a dog-lover. I had a dog which collected 20,000 postcards in 45 albums, the last of which bears upon this great European war of 1914-15-16. It was found impossible to finish it in 1916, it must be 1917, or perhaps even a later year, but we all hope that will not be the case. Many friends and subscribers in the north have raised the much-discussed question of rabbit-coursing. The matter is a very difficult one to deal with, because as the law stands at present rabbit-coursing is permitted, subject to certain restrictions. It may be impossible at the present time to do much in the way of getting rabbit-coursing declared illegal, but it is certainly deplorable that this so-called "sport" should be permitted, and I strongly recommend to the Council that the earliest possible action should be taken in the matter. I cannot sit down without a reference to Sergeant-Major Bell, who was our Inspector in the Furness district. He was one of the best, but has passed away in this terrible war. He was reported to be wounded and missing. His wife was in my house only the other day, still believing that he will come once more into her heart. She is most optimistic, but I am afraid her hopes never can be realised. He was indeed a soldier and a man! Just one word more and that turns on the question of the accounts. I am sorry to see that we have a balance of £12,848 on the wrong side. I sincerely hope a great effort will be made to put this right, as it would be nothing short of a calamity if the animals were allowed to suffer to this extent. I am sure every one in this room, and all the large number of subscribers and friends of the Society will do their best to reverse this deficit, and convert it into a balance of £12,000 on the right side. (Cheers.) I should like to say how much we owe to Captain Fairholme and his officials for the work they have carried out so well on behalf of the Institution. (Hear, hear.) I had almost forgotten to refer to a report which appeared in the Manchester Guardian, that the Humanitarian League had sent a Resolution to Mr. Prothero (Minister of Agriculture), regretting that the Board should have given official sanction to the indiscriminate destruction of sparrows, on the ground that it has never been satisfactorily proved that the sparrow is on the whole an enemy of agriculture, and because the revival of sparrow clubs on a large scale would foster a spirit of callousness and inhumanity among children. I am glad that Captain Fairholme is in sympathy with this, for he says that "if the sparrows are to be destroyed, let the parents do it, and not the children." (Cheers.)

MISS E. WARD :—I should like to congratulate the Committee and the Society generally on the good work that has been achieved during the past year, but speaking of the Report, it seems to me that it contains, if I may say so, two sins, one of commission and the other of omission. With regard to commission, I was rather sorry to see the whitewashing of the Government in relation to the cast Army horses. The Society worked very hard to secure that these animals should not pass out of British hands, and then to take the pains to explain away the Prime Minister's promise seems to me like applying something in the nature of an anodyne, which is not required. The Government have not seen fit to carry out their undertaking given to Colonel Lockwood, and the Council might have left it at that, without offering so much excuse on their behalf, which they do not trouble to make for themselves. I would have preferred it otherwise. The sin of omission is that there is no reference in the Report to the present state of the streets, and the vile way in which horses are treated by their drivers. The Council, I believe, have in view the teaching of these young drivers, and I hope such project may be found practicable. It is not from one's own view simply that the terrible condition of the horses in the streets has been noticed. A taxi-driver said to me only the other day : " If you have any influence can you do anything about the way the boys are knocking the horses about in the streets ? The police are utterly indifferent and will not take notice of cases even when brought before them." And that is the experience I have met with ; when the police attention has been drawn to a case they seem afraid to take it up. There is certainly the need of bringing more active police co-operation to bear, and we should help the Council very much if each of us in our own districts were to remind the police of their duties. (Cheers.) Matters were never worse, horses must be harnessed and sent out, and the conditions will grow worse and worse ; and I hope our Council will drive home with all the force in their power a remonstrance on this point in the right quarter. (Applause.)

SIR FREDERICK BANBURY :—A very good suggestion !

THE CHAIRMAN :—We are endeavouring to form a school of young drivers and thus cure the ignorance about horses which prevails among the boys and young men who have taken the places of the older men, now soldiers. There are considerable difficulties, but we will certainly write to the Commissioner of Police on the subject as suggested. (Cheers.)

DR. SHARMAN :—I am a medical man, and of course have to get about a great deal. I can confirm what has been said about the cruelty in the streets of the boy drivers to their horses. I do not think your suggestion about a school of young drivers is worth much ; I do not see how it could be carried out with any prospect of success. The only way is to give the police orders to take up these boys, or at least rebuke and threaten them every time they see a case of cruelty, and the police will find cause for doing that from morning till night !

A LADY :—Why cannot all drivers be licensed ?

The Resolution was carried unanimously.

CAPTAIN DOWELL (Treasurer and Secretary, West Sussex Branch) :—I have the pleasure of moving :—

That the best thanks of the Society are due and are hereby given to the Trustees, Treasurer, Council, Ladies' Education Committee, and other Committees for their services during the past year, and that the retiring Members of the Council be re-elected for the ensuing year, viz. :—Lord Aberdare, Sir Frederick Banbury, Sir Charles Behrens, Colonel Benson, Sir Reginald Brade, Mr. C. Cash, Lady Edward Spencer Churchill and Dr. Wyndham Cottle.

I cordially agree in this, and think these ladies and gentlemen deserve our hearty thanks for the whole-hearted way in which they have carried on the work of the Society during the trying period of last year. (Cheers.)

DR. R. RUTLAND :—I gladly second the Resolution. I am sure the least we can do is to express our gratitude to these ladies and gentlemen, and send back the eight retiring members to help in keeping the flag flying, while so many are devoting themselves to good works of another kind. It is a battle we are waging, one in which we make progress and that is some satisfaction ; although the Society cannot achieve all it could wish. We all must feel that those who are retiring as well as the members who are in office and have been in office are to be thanked for their noble work, and it gives me great pleasure to assist in doing this. (Cheers.)

The Resolution was carried unanimously.

MRS. STUART :—I rise with the greatest possible pleasure to move this Resolution :—

To insert “ and Auxiliaries ” after “ Branches ” in Rule III., which reads as follows :—
“ All Secretaries of Branches shall during their tenure of office be ex-officio Members.”

If you pass this the Rule will in future read thus :—“ All Secretaries of Branches and Auxiliaries shall, during their tenure of office, be ex-officio Members.” At present the Secretaries of all Branches enjoy that privilege, but Auxiliary Secretaries are not so included. As a Branch Secretary myself of many years’ standing I know how much our great Society owes to the Secretaries in charge of the Auxiliaries. (Hear, hear.) We depend more than it is possible to describe on their tact and discretion, on their energy and hard work. If they are zealous they have to do a great deal, they have to receive a large proportion of the complaints and suggestions which are made ; they have, often in lonely districts, to go on keeping the flag flying in the teeth of opposition or indifference, and, as to-day, side by side with the calls of other and very important interests ; and if we can encourage them by making them full members of the Society, I believe it would be a great advantage to us. (Cheers.) To offer a homely illustration, it is quite as impossible to raise a crop of potatoes without planting seed potatoes, as for the Society to go on increasing without the hard work of the Secretaries of Auxiliaries. Personally, I believe that after the present very great and abnormal difficulties due to the war, which the Society is facing, have passed away, the outlook for our cause will be very bright and hopeful (indeed, it is brighter now than it was), and that we shall step forward into the sunshine of a glorious future. At the present time and in the years to come I feel sure the Society will strengthen itself, and will tremendously encourage our local friends, if they pass this Resolution, and thus enable them to attend our Annual Meetings, and become one with ourselves. (Cheers.)

SIR JOHN ROLLESTON :—I have great pleasure in seconding this Resolution so well proposed and explained by Mrs. Stuart. All here will recognise that it is not by the head organisation and its officials solely that the work of the Society is carried on, but that it is largely dependent on the great body of local Auxiliaries, which provide the parent with nutriment and maintain its strength. Therefore, all present would wish to express their consideration and gratitude to those silent but none the less praiseworthy and efficient heads of Auxiliaries, who contribute so largely in the great effort to mitigate and alleviate the sufferings caused to poor animals in this country. (Cheers.)

MR. EDGAR JONES (Secretary, Doncaster Branch):—May I be permitted to support the Resolution so eloquently moved by Mrs. Stuart? I have been connected with the Doncaster Branch for many years, my relationship with it dating back to Mr. Colam's time. It is most gratifying that the suggestion put forward at the last Conference of Branch Secretaries should be raised by the Council and submitted to this meeting. I am sure, speaking from considerable knowledge on the subject, that this concession will be appreciated by the Auxiliary Secretaries, and indeed by every friend of the Society. We of the Branches are also pleased to see the fuller reports in The Animal World of the doings and the work of our friends in the provinces; and I am quite sure that all those who love the cause will read that excellent journal, to which we are largely indebted. (Cheers.)

CAPTAIN DOWELL:—As an old Secretary of thirty-six years' standing I should like to bear witness to the value of the work done by the Auxiliaries. I have had no less than 52 of them, and when I took office I was told that I should never be able to do anything outside the town of Brighton, but good fortune and a little energy have corrected that, and now I may say that four-fifths of our subscriptions come from these Auxiliaries. (Cheers.)

The Resolution was carried unanimously.

THE HONOURABLE STEPHEN COLERIDGE:—I rise to propose the following motion:—

That the result of the deliberations of the Sub-Committee mentioned by the Rev. Sir Montague Fowler at the Annual Meeting in 1907 as having then been appointed to consider the whole question of sport, be made public forthwith.

Some of you perhaps do not very well remember ten years ago. On the occasion of the Annual Meeting then I had the pleasure of proposing that the members direct the Committee to strenuously support Mr. Luttrell's Bill, entitled the Spurious Sports Bill, then before Parliament, directed principally against rabbit-coursing and tame deer-hunting. I was opposed at the time by Sir Montague Fowler, but I am glad to say we beat him and carried the vote. His words on that occasion were, "I would very strongly support any stringent and comprehensive measure dealing with the whole question of sport, and in regard to this I would call your attention to the fact that this matter is under the consideration of a Sub-Committee of the Society at the present time." He further added, "I see a smile on Mr. Coleridge's face. Perhaps he and others of you feel that this is an attempt to evade the issue." Well, ten years have passed away, and I hope I shall not be considered impatient in asking now for the Report of that Sub-Committee. It might perhaps be said that this Committee was only appointed to consider Mr. Luttrell's Bill, but I understood from the words used by Sir Montague that the whole question of sport was before them. At any rate I say that if there was not a Committee appointed to consider the whole question of sport at that time, I think a great Society like this, which calls itself a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, should have a definite policy on the question of cruel sports. At present I do not wish to say that they evade the point, but they certainly, as far as I can discover, have no definite policy on the subject. I consider we are entitled to know if they think it unwise to attack fashionable cruelties. Many of us feel that they are not entitled to take that line, but we want to know if that is the policy of the Society; because if so it will be open to some of us to found a Society for the prevention of fashionable as well as unfashionable sport. There is no doubt that it works excellently against unfashionable cruelty, but many of us feel that it ought to go further than that. We want to see something done against otter hunting—one of the most barbarous forms of sport! (Hear, hear.) If this Society will not do anything against cruelties because they are fashionable, then let the Council take a manly course and say so. But if on the other hand they are in real earnest about this business, let them form a Committee, take evidence and probe the matter fully, and ascertain what the general feeling is. Otherwise I believe the great mass of real humanitarians will have no patience with them. The Society will perhaps lose a few subscriptions from fox-hunters, but they will gain in exchange the support of the great proletariat, who have no sympathy with fashionable cruelty. I only wish this Society would advance further and further in the great fight. That is what it was founded to do, and that is what it has not done. (Cheers.)

DR. R. RUTLAND.—May I be allowed to second the Resolution? Sport is a great item in our social life. There are fashionable and unfashionable sports, but I would prefer that the question did not turn upon “fashionable” or “unfashionable.” The only question is, “Is it cruel?” Some sports are and some are not, but if any sport does involve cruelty then it stands condemned, whether fashionable or unfashionable. If it is not possible to have the Report of the Sub-Committee of some ten years ago, then let us have another Committee to deal with the subject. (Hear, hear.)

SIR MONTAGUE FOWLER :—I have been favoured with a copy of the May number of the Zoophilist, which contains an article above the signature of Mr. Coleridge, in which he is good enough as usual to attack the Society. and to include me by name in his attack. If only this periodical had the wide circulation it deserves, I should be one of the most advertised men in the United Kingdom. (Laughter.) I am not personally concerned with Mr. Coleridge's reference to the “stone images” of Jermyn Street, because when I went on the staff of the Society I ceased to be a member of the Council. However, I need not attempt any defence of that body, as they are perfectly well able to take care of themselves; but I might remark in passing that stone images have occasionally an awkward way of falling on the heads of too adventurous explorers, sometimes with rather unhappy results to the latter. (Laughter and cheers.) Mr. Coleridge is a lawyer, and, what is more, an experienced disputant, and he knows you can make a great point in attacking an opponent if you take a certain passage from a speech or document, and read it apart from its context, and that is what he did in the article referred to, and he has given the same impression in the resolution he has just moved. He omitted to read my remarks which preceded those he quotes, on the occasion of the Annual Meeting of June 10th, 1907. What I said was: “I ask you to reject the motion to support the Bill brought in by Mr. Luttrell, entitled the Spurious Sports' Bill, because, although I am in entire agreement with a great deal Mr. Greenwood says (he was not then Sir George), I feel that to support this particular Bill would not be the best means of carrying out your wishes and views." I called attention to the fact that this matter, viz. the Bill, was at the time under the consideration of a Sub-Committee. This Sub-Committee had been appointed on May 13th, 1907. It met, and after agreeing on various amendments to the Bill, recommended that a Conference should be arranged with Mr. Luttrell, Mr. Greenwood (who was not at that time a member of our Council), and three others chosen by them, and five delegates appointed by the Council. This decision was reported at our Annual Meeting on March 18th, 1908. Our Chairman, Sir Edward Ward, was one of the five delegates, and we had a very pleasant meeting with Mr. Luttrell and Mr. Greenwood, when certain suggestions were made by us and adopted, among others, a change of title from "Spurious Sports" to "Cruelty to Animals" Bill, after which the Council recommended that the whole-hearted support of the Society should be given to this Bill, which was introduced by Mr. Luttrell in the House of Commons on May 5th, 1908. (Cheers.) Owing to the congested condition of work in Parliament, the second reading was not reached, and the measure was accordingly dropped at the end of the Session. That fact was reported at our Annual Meeting in March, 1909. So, I claim that the result of our Sub-Committee's deliberations, which is the essence and only important point of any Report that could be issued, has been from time to time duly announced at the Annual Meetings held since. Again, the Bill (the same Bill) was introduced into the House of Lords about a month later, namely, on May 6th, 1909, by the Bishop of Hereford, and your Council canvassed for it, and secured as much support as possible. Therefore, in the face of all these facts, I can only come to the conclusion that Mr. Coleridge's memory is rather short, or that he has not taken sufficient pains to make himself acquainted with what is going on. And yet that is extraordinary, because he usually does us the honour of attending the Annual Meetings, and favouring us with his lively criticism. However, these are the facts, the Sub-Committee did a great deal of work, and the Council, which has nothing to hide, has reported from time to time the conclusions of that Committee. Therefore, the Resolution, that we should make public the proceedings of the Sub-Committee, is absolutely futile, seeing that they have been made public at the various Annual Meetings subsequently held. (Loud applause.)

MR. C. E. LEE :—Since 1909 has this matter been allowed to drop, and nothing done? That is not quite ten years ago.

SIR GEORGE GREENWOOD :—As I have been personally referred to, perhaps I might confirm what has been said, that the Council ultimately resolved to give its support to the Spurious Sports' Bill introduced by Mr. Luttrell. That Bill was designed to put down rabbit-coursing, the hunting of carted deer, and pigeon-shooting. I afterwards took up the measure and presented it session after session. Then the Bishop of Hereford's Bill took the field, with unfortunately the usual result. The Council at that time was fully in agreement with the proposals to put down these spurious sports, and I feel sure will continue to give their support to such a Bill as that. But, as you are aware, no private member can introduce a Bill now. It is absolutely impossible to do so, and the Government themselves will not take this matter up. I think a great step in the right direction was accomplished in 1911, when the present Act of Parliament was consolidated and improved. True, one clause is not very well drafted, that is the one with regard to the hunting of captive animals. There was a prosecution instituted by the Society in connection with rabbit-coursing in the north. There the rabbits had been turned out, where there was, with the exception of one or two almost concealed outlets, wire netting all round, so that the animals had practically no chance of escape ; and the judges held (one dissenting) that the Act ought to have included words which would provide that the rabbits must be considered still under control if they were turned out in a place where there was no reasonable chance of escape. The magistrates sympathised with us, but they were justified by the unfortunate wording of the Act in finding that under the circumstances the rabbits were not animals in captivity nor under such control as would bring them within the Act of Parliament. I hope at the earliest possible opportunity that the Act will be amended. I do not know what the policy of the Society is to be with regard to other sports. I, personally, do not agree with the " glorious " sport of fox-hunting, and as to otter hunting, I admit it is barbarous. I do not say that the Society has formulated any abstract policy, but we have always supported the Bills intended to put down what are called spurious sports, and I doubt not we shall continue to do so. (Applause.)

THE HONOURABLE STEPHEN COLERIDGE :—I understand now that I misread those words of Sir Montague Fowler, which I quoted, but I contend that any one was entitled to misread them, because they are undoubtedly open to the construction I put on them, namely, that there was a Sub-Committee in existence for dealing with the whole question of sport. But in any case I ask whether it is not time that this Society should take into consideration the whole subject of sport, and make up its mind as to what line it should adopt, and then openly declare it ? We want some distinct policy in this matter, and if the old Society cannot or will not lay down any, then many of us are quite prepared to form a Society which will take a definite line. This great Society should decide upon some course of action in this matter, and not be fearful of giving offence here or there. I really hope it will seriously consider the cruelty of these sports, and take them in hand one by one, and let us have a programme so that we may know what sports they consider cruel, and what ought to be stopped. That is all I ask. Let them form a Committee at once, and not wait and see any longer, but act as soon as possible in the interests of the tortured creatures. (Cheers.)

A GENTLEMAN :—May I ask Mr. Coleridge what is the use of appealing to a body which he describes as " stone images " ? (Laughter.)

THE HONOURABLE STEPHEN COLERIDGE :—Has the gentleman never heard of Pygmalion who awoke up to life the statue he had made ? (Laughter.) (A voice : —Yes, but that is only a fairy tale !) I am trying to see if I cannot galvanise these people into life for the benefit of the animals.

THE CHAIRMAN :—I have listened with great attention and interest to all that has been said on this subject, and I think I may promise that our Council will consider it, and make a pronouncement thereon later.

The Resolution was not pressed to a division.

MR. ASLETT :—I greatly esteem the honour that has been put on me, that of being asked to move the last Resolution, namely :—

That the most cordial and hearty thanks be given to Colonel Sir Edward Ward, Bart., K.C.B., K.C.V.O., J.P., for presiding at this Meeting.

It is very good of Sir Edward Ward to come to us to-day. He must have many important engagements to claim his time, especially in his eminent position. He has rendered and is rendering invaluable services to his country as well as to our cause. That is more than borne out when one recalls the words spoken of him by Sir George White, the Commander of Ladysmith, who said that he was the finest commissariat officer since Moses. (Cheers.)

DR. SHARMAN :—I have very great pleasure in seconding the motion.

The Resolution was carried by acclamation.

THE CHAIRMAN :—I thank you exceedingly for this very kind vote just passed. But I must add that I in no way deserve it for any services rendered during the past year. I think among the numbers helping us in Jermyn Street I represent the only "stone image." (Laughter.) I am sorry I have not been able to give the time I could wish to the work with which I am in the deepest sympathy, but I want to take this opportunity of thanking my colleagues for continuing to support me as Chairman of a Society for which I very regretfully can at present do so little. I accept this vote as a tribute to my colleagues, and on their behalf gratefully acknowledge it. My own personal thanks I tender to my old friend Mr. Dixey, who has taken a large portion of the work since I have been away, which should have fallen on my shoulders. I also feel that these thanks pass through me to the staff generally, who have all done their duty, from Sir Montague Fowler and Captain Fairholme downwards. We are all so glad to see Captain Fairholme back again. By the instructions of the Council I was requested to get him reclaimed from France, and I can tell you I never had a more difficult task in my life. He was doing good work for our cause abroad, and our friends there did not want to part with him, and it was only by exerting the utmost pressure that I got him back. My interest in the Society is as keen as ever, and when times are more peaceful, I hope to devote my best services to it, and in some way earn thanks such as those you have just kindly given me. (Applause.)

MISS EFFIE BISHOP said it was a pity that the cast Army horses should be sold anywhere abroad, and asked if it was quite impossible to make some arrangement by which they might be brought back after the war.

THE CHAIRMAN replied that the sale of cast Army horses in the East had been stopped entirely, but he could give no information as to what might be done at the end of the war.

The R.S.P.C.A. Educational Work.

The Band of Mercy.
A Junior
Branch of the
R.S.P.C.A.

The change which has taken place in public opinion during the past forty years, in regard to the treatment of animals, is due—in no small degree—to the educational activities of the R.S.P.C.A. during that period.

The importance of inculcating the principles of kindness to dumb creatures in the minds of the young was felt by those to whose care the management of the Society was entrusted. It was this which led to the inauguration of the Band of Mercy Movement, by means of which the children are gradually trained in habits of kindness and gentleness towards all God's creatures. The Bands, numbering close upon eight hundred, have been formed throughout the United Kingdom, and have extended to every part of the globe, including Canada, Australia, South and West Africa, as well as the United States of America, and the Continent of Europe. It is the aim of the Council of the R.S.P.C.A., with the co-operation of those who realize the benefit to animals resulting from this movement, to establish Bands of Mercy in every town and village throughout the world, where English-speaking children are to be found.

The inauguration of Bands of Mercy, like that of Bands of Hope, is a simple matter. All that is required is the voluntary work of an organizer who will collect the children as members, and teach them their duty towards all animals. Such Bands may be started with Natural History lessons, once a month or oftener, at the wish of the organizer, and the meetings may be held in schools, or in conjunction with other gatherings of children, or they may be worked on independent lines. All that the children, on their part, have to do is to take a pledge of kindness, which, as time goes on, becomes part and parcel of their character. In schools this organization is a simple matter, for the Code of Regulations issued by the Board of Education suggests, among other things, that children should be taught to appreciate and understand animals. Much, of course, depends upon the teacher, who can give added interest to dictation, copy-writing, reading, and composition classes, by occasionally setting lessons about animal life.

In order to encourage the Band of Mercy Movement, the R.S.P.C.A. issues a bright monthly magazine, at ½d., called "The Band of Mercy," as well as a Service Book, Song Book, and numerous attractive and instructive leaflets. The Society also encourages the organizing of dramatic representations by members of the Bands, and has issued a volume of children's plays, cantatas, etc., entitled the "Band of Mercy Entertainer." The Chief Secretary of the R.S.P.C.A., 105, Jermyn Street, S.W., (1) will at all times be ready to tender advice and assistance to those who write to him, and will forward on application a Booklet ("Band of Mercy Information") giving all particulars, with lists of slides, places where Bands of Mercy have been formed, etc.

Animal Sunday.

For nearly fifty years it has been the practice of the Council of the Society to invite the clergy to preach, on the Fourth Sunday after Trinity, on the duty of justice and mercy to animals. This Sunday has been selected for this object, owing to the special appropriateness of the Collect, Epistle, and Gospel for that day. The initiation of this movement dates back to the year 1865, when Dean Stanley preached on the subject in the Chapel Royal, Whitehall. In the following year the invitation was responded to by 610 clergy.

Last year a letter was addressed to all the clergy of the Church of England, and the Nonconformist Ministers in England and Wales, with the gratifying result that no fewer than 6,400 sermons on kindness to the dumb creation were preached. It will easily be realised that the effect of the attention of the congregations, in six thousand four hundred Churches and Chapels, being directed to the duty of kindness to animals, must of necessity be considerable. Offertory collections are not asked for, although contributions to the funds of the R.S.P.C.A. are always welcome. The Council of the R.S.P.C.A. sincerely hope that the number of those clergy and ministers who assist the cause, by their advocacy from the pulpit, will increase year by year. Special sermons and suggested outlines of sermons and Sunday School lessons, together with hymn papers, are sent out with the annual invitation to preach, and grants of suitable literature for use in churches are forwarded gratis, on application to the Chief Secretary,

Prize Essay Competitions
in Schools.

Forty-five years have passed since the Ladies' Education Committee of the R.S.P.C.A. first invited the Metropolitan Schools to write Essays on "The Duty of Kindness to Animals," and kindred subjects. The competition has been continued annually, and the number of Schools which have competed has grown year by year.

The object of the Society in organising these competitions is to instruct the minds, and educate the hearts, of children and teachers in their duty towards animals. The composition and compilation of any essay cannot be accomplished without reading and thinking, and is seldom undertaken without more or less conversation on the subject with all the members of the writer's family. Hence the process is far-reaching, and tends to awaken interest in dumb creatures, as well as to remove ignorance, which is a parent of cruelty. Full particulars as to these Competitions can be had on application to the Chief Secretary.

Animal Rescue League,

RECEIVING SHELTERS, 230, HIGH STREET, SHADWELL, and 33, LUCERNE ROAD, THORNTON HEATH.

(Founded by the late Miss Kate Cording.)

Under the management and control of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

THE LEAGUE is carrying on a great and necessary work in rescuing, receiving and mercifully destroying stray and unwanted domestic animals, principally belonging to the poorest people, which otherwise would starve and perish miserably.

Attention is directed to the following points:—

During 1916 no fewer than 32,159 animals were painlessly destroyed.

No fees whatever are charged for the work of destruction.

No animals are sold after being received by the League.

The expenses last year greatly exceeded the subscriptions, and there was a total deficiency of £820 11s. 10d.

The public are cordially invited to view the League premises at 397, City Road, next door to the Angel Tube Station.

The work is of the utmost importance from both a humane and sanitary standpoint.

Subscriptions are urgently needed, and any sum, however small, will be gratefully acknowledged.

Subscriptions may be sent to THE MANAGERESS, THE ANIMAL RESCUE LEAGUE, 397, City Road, E.C. 1, or to the Offices of the R.S.P.C.A., 105, Jermyn Street, S.W. 1.

Necessary Procedure when witnessing cases of cruelty.

Modes of Procedure.

The Statute 1 & 2, Geo. 5, ch. 27, provides three means by which perpetrators of cruelty to animals may be punished :—

I. By a policeman taking an offender into custody. Only a police-constable can arrest an offender, either on his own view or upon the complaint of any other person, when he must act on his own responsibility.

The horse and vehicle, or an animal in charge of any person taken into custody, may be conveyed to a place of safe keeping for production at the hearing, and to provide security for the payment of the penalty and expenses to which the accused, or the owner, may become liable; and in default of payment of such penalty and expenses, the Magistrate may order the animal and the vehicle to be sold forthwith to discharge the said liability.

II. By Summons. First obtain the name and address of the offender, and that painted on the vehicle in his charge (if any), and lay the complaint before a Justice of the Peace within whose jurisdiction the offence shall have been committed. This must be done WITHIN SIX CALENDAR MONTHS after the commission of the act complained of.

III. By Warrant. This is desirable in all cases where there is reason to believe the offender will evade a summons by absconding. Make complaint to a Magistrate, who will require you to satisfy him that the accused has committed an offence and is likely to abscond, which must be by sworn "information" in writing.

When a witness doubts his own ability to conduct proceedings under the Statute successfully, or the Police think that the Society can prosecute with better effect themselves, applications and particulars should be sent to an Inspector of the Society, or to the Secretary, 105, Jermyn Street, London.

Nature of Evidence.

Should the accused be the driver or conductor of an omnibus, cab, or other public vehicle, obtain his name, address, and number of badge, also the name, address, and number on the said omnibus, cab, or other vehicle; if he be a drover, take the number of his badge, demand to see his licence, note whether or not the number of the badge and the description of the drover upon the licence are correct and make an extract from licence of the name and address of the drover.

Make a note of the time when, and the street or place where, the offence occurred. If for driving a horse or other animal with galled neck or shoulders, or other wounds, note the size and situation of such wounds, especially if old, discharging, and in contact with the harness, and examine the collar or harness for adhering particles of matter and dried blood: if for flogging or beating note the number of blows, and on what part of the body inflicted, and the effect (if any) on the skin of the animal ; if for lameness, ascertain particularly whether or not there is suffering, or inflammation in the injured part, as lameness is not always an indication of pain ; if for weakness or infirmity, take care to have a witness to give evidence of the bodily condition, age, and incapacity of the animal, and the labour exacted from it ; if for overloading, it is indispensable to show painful distress of the animal—e.g. trembling, falling, unusual perspiration, or exhaustion—or to show violence on the part of the driver ; if for mutilation, or any other torture, observe minutely and take down in writing the precise character of the same in detail. If for starving animals, overstocking cows, exposing shorn sheep to cold atmosphere, or other acts difficult for a private person to prove, a Veterinary Surgeon should be called to examine the animals at the time of the offence, or as soon afterwards as possible, and he should be produced as a witness at the hearing.

It is important to remember the exact words of accused when stopped, which frequently amount to an admission of guilt.

In every case (if possible) obtain the name and address of a respectable witness willing to give supporting evidence. If unwilling, such witness may be summoned to appear.

Advice and Assistance.

The foregoing remarks refer to the most common acts of cruelty to animals. The reader will find in the sections of the statutes many specific offences specially provided for by the Legislature. General cruelty is brought under purview and punishment by comprehensive phraseology. Occasionally it may be necessary, therefore, to seek further information as to the provisions of the law relating to ordinary or extraordinary forms of cruelty, to the nature and amount of evidence necessary to establish an offence, or to the meaning of obscure language in the statute. It often occurs that persons regard the discovery of offences, and even the prosecution of offenders, as operations beyond their experience or capacity, or as an odious obligation which should be undertaken by a Society established for the enforcement of the law. In such instances it may be desirable to consult the R.S.P.C.A., whose advice and assistance are given to non-members as well as to members of the Institution.

It is requested that the particulars of an act of cruelty forwarded to the Secretary may be made full and precise, and delivered as soon as possible after the offence ; and it is earnestly hoped that personal inconvenience, arising out of proceedings, will not deter persons from co-operating with the Inspectors.

Upon any respectable person furnishing particulars of an act of cruelty, personally or by letter, proper inquiries will be made and, subject to the accumulation of sufficient evidence, the Secretary will prosecute without expense to the applicant, and without his assistance, except in so far as may be necessary for the conviction of the offender. The names of persons, and letters supplying information, are kept strictly private and confidential when secrecy is enjoined. Correspondents are particularly desired to give their names, or other witnesses, from whom further particulars may be obtained if needed. Neglect of this precaution frequently prevents the investigation of complaints. If names cannot be sent to the Society in confidence, the correspondent cannot be credited.

It is impossible to estimate the amount of suffering prevented by the above convictions.

Persuasive efforts constantly made by the Society, to check habits and conduct leading to cruelty, have also shielded animals from much violence and ill-treatment.

In addition, numerous official monitions have been forwarded in cases in which prosecutions could not be instituted; and the Inspectors' daily Reports show numberless instances where, by giving advice and cautions, the necessity for a prosecution has been obviated.

IF it were in your power to help a horse that had been injured in the street you would do what you could for it.

An injured WAR HORSE is even more worthy of your sympathy and assistance.

The ONLY WAY in which you can help a BRITISH WAR HORSE is by contributing to the

R.S.P.C.A. FUND FOR SICK AND WOUNDED HORSES, 105, JERMYN STREET, S.W. 1.

Because that is the ONLY FUND authorised by the ARMY COUNCIL to assist the ARMY VETERINARY CORPS at the FRONT.

That fact is a guarantee that the money of the charitable is spent wisely.

The Fund has provided Hospitals for 9,500 HORSES in FRANCE, besides sending many Ambulances and other Veterinary Equipment.

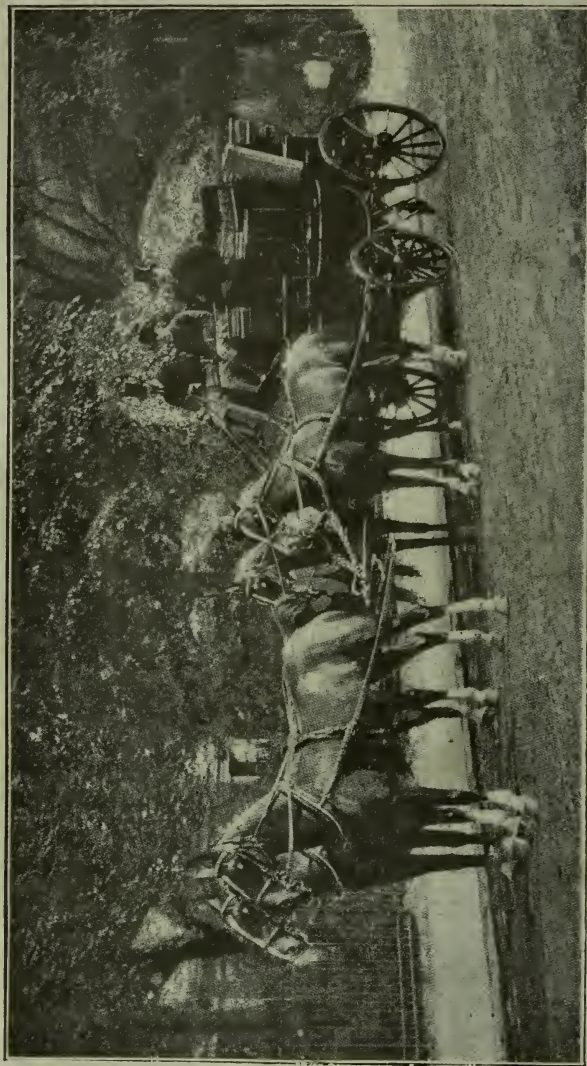

With the continued advance more ground has to be covered, more horses are being used, and so

MORE HELP IS NEEDED.

WHAT IS THE R.S.P.C.A. ?

WHY IT IS NEEDED

WHAT IT HAS DONE

THE SOCIETY'S WORK.

The R.S.P.C.A. has put down most of the countless cruelties to animals of the "good old days," and has also originated the various Acts for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals from the time when, in 1822, animals first obtained a legal status. It has also seen that they were kept, and it has brought the wrong-doers to justice, for over three hundred thousand Convictions have been obtained by the Society's Inspectors.

It must be borne in mind that an incalculable amount of suffering is prevented annually by the presence of the Society's uniformed Inspectors at race-meetings, rabbit-coursing matches, pigeon shoots, menageries, circuses, live-stock dealers' shops, fairs, cattle-markets, etc. A comparison of the 16,526 cautions given in 1917 by the officials, as against 3,570 convictions obtained by them during the same period, bears eloquent testimony to the fact that the Society prevents rather than prosecutes.

THE SOCIETY'S POLICY.

The Society's real and most important object is to keep people out of prison by engrafting in them, by education, a moral responsibility towards the animals in their charge. By its Inspectors, pamphlets and cautionary placards, and by its organization of Branches and Auxiliaries in England and Wales, it advises on the proper treatment of animals. It should be remembered that the policy of the Society is so wide that it receives the support of many people, who, on various subjects of controversy, hold views in opposition to other supporters, while they all unite in desiring to put down the universally recognized acts of cruelty of every-day life.

The Society pursues a practical policy by organizing humane slaughtering demonstrations, given by experts, to show butchers the most humane and expeditious way of taking animal life, by holding suppers for drovers, slaughtermen, and cab drivers, by organizing Horse Parades and Donkey Shows, and by having stalls at Agricultural Shows, Horse Shows, and other places attended by men who earn their livelihood by dealing in animals. It also draws public attention to the special needs of animals by letters and advertisements in the public press.

The Society, by rewarding acts of gallantry for animal life-saving ; by holding School Essay Competitions on the subject of kindness to Animals, both at Head Quarters and under the auspices of the Branches ; by inviting the clergy to preach sermons on mercy to animals on the Fourth Sunday after Trinity ; by gratis Lantern Lectures, addresses and entertainments ; by lending, gratis, selections from the large and unique collection of Lantern Slides and readings ; by its publications, "The Animal World " and " Band of Mercy," and by issuing instructive pamphlets on the treatment of animals, is bound to educate the coming generation, for it works not only to better the treatment of animals, but it also aims at the improvement of human nature, by teaching forbearance, self-control, and courtesy.

THE SOCIETY'S AREA OF OPERATIONS. It should be remembered that the area of its operations is limited to England and Wales, and that it can therefore in no way be held responsible for work outside England and Wales, though it always seeks to co-operate with its sister Societies all over the world.

For the purpose of dividing the work and insuring that areas shall be properly regulated, the country is divided into Branches with Auxiliaries for smaller districts within such Branches.

But, though the country is divided into Branches, it is important to remember that while these divisions are only made for the purposes of organization, they form a Part of the whole Society which has :

- (a) One Organization, into which each Branch is formally affiliated ;
- (b) One policy, with one general method of carrying it out ; and
- (c) One legal authority. All questions of court proceedings are determined at Head Quarters so as (1) to insure uniformity of action ; (2) to secure the examination of all evidence by experts ; and (3) to enable, where necessary, the Society to appeal against adverse decisions.

SPECIAL NOTE.—Owing to the shortage of fodder and the overworking of horses, the Society has issued, for gratis distribution, a special illustrated poster (30×20), and also a handbill dealing with the Importance of Stable Management. Any number of these will be forwarded, gratis, on application to the Chief Secretary.

SUBSCRIBERS AND DONORS LISTS.—These have for purposes of paper and printing economy been omitted as the majority of the names already appear in the above List of Members.

ANNUAL REPORT for 1917.

In presenting the ninety-fourth Annual Report of the Society your Council have pleasure in recording that in spite of the war with the consequent increased expenses and the depletion of the staff—Inspectors and clerical—the work has been carried on successfully, and they desire to record their hearty thanks to all those who have helped. It will interest you to know that one hundred and forty-five members of the Staff, out of a total of two hundred and fifty-two, are serving in some capacity with the colours. Your Council continues, subject to increased Army grants, the allowances made to their wives, and the vacancies have, as far as possible, been filled by temporary appointments.

Prevention of Cruelty. Your Council have always laid special stress on the fact that the work of your Society is preventive rather than punitive. In this connection they would point out that during the past year 16,526 persons guilty of minor acts of cruelty were cautioned by your Inspectors or admonished in writing from Headquarters, while 3,570 persons were prosecuted and convicted of cruelty, and they consider the large proportion of cautions over prosecutions proves the Society's contention as to the importance of its preventive, and thus educational, work. In connection with the prosecutions your Council would remind you that, although, owing to the war, the number of horses and drivers has naturally decreased, there is a very great need for constant supervision of animals because of the shortage of food and the employment of many inexperienced boys and women who are mostly quite ignorant of the needs of the animals in their charge. Your Council are glad to state that, though the penalties in some cases have been totally inadequate, the sentences in many have been heavy, showing that the magistrates are beginning to take advantage of the powers which are conferred upon them by the Protection of Animals Act 1911 (drafted by the Society and introduced into Parliament by a member of its Council (Sir George Greenwood), to punish the hideous crime of cruelty to animals more adequately.

Special Cases during the Year. Your Council would draw your attention to the following cases which illustrate the varied and important work carried out by your Society throughout the country:—

At Leicester Borough Police Court a farmer was summoned for inflicting unnecessary suffering on a cow by unreasonably causing it to travel on the road when overstocked with milk. Defendant was fined £5 or, in default, one month's imprisonment. This form of cruelty is unfortunately very prevalent, as owners hope, by exhibiting their cows in such a condition, to give a fictitious value to the animals as milkers. Your Council have drawn the attention of the Food Controller to this practice, which involves a serious waste of milk, hoping thereby that an Order will be issued which will end the cruelty.

At Andover a farmer was fined the maximum fine of £25 and costs, for permitting a horse to be worked in an unfit state.

At Southampton a man was sentenced to two months' imprisonment for working a donkey while lame and suffering from an open wound, with blood running down one of its forelegs, which had been bound up with brown paper and string.

At Chingford, a farrier and jobmaster was fined £10 or 60 days' imprisonment for cruelty to a horse by turning it out in Epping Forest, during the inclement weather of last winter, without giving it proper food or attention. The poor animal was in a shocking state when found, and had to be slaughtered.

At Enfield, a man was fined £5 and costs, or 28 days' imprisonment for causing unnecessary suffering to a dog by not providing sufficient food, care, and attention. The poor animal, a collie, had been on the chain for twelve months, was in an emaciated and filthy condition, and only weighed 20 lb. The magistrates considered that the act of keeping the dog on a chain for so long a period was in itself an act of cruelty, and said that it was one of the worst cases which had ever been brought before the Bench.

At Hunstanton Petty Sessions a carman, a superintendent, and a contractor, were charged with cruelty to two horses by working them in an unfit condition. Both animals had sores and were in an emaciated condition. The contractor, who had been before the Bench before for a similar charge, was fined £20, the superintendent £3, and the carman £1.

A farmer of Heckington Fen was sent to prison, with hard labour for two months for violently beating a mare with a spade, with the result that the poor animal died. He also shot at the animal with a double-barrelled gun and left her out in a field for a whole night. The Chairman of the Bench said it was fortunately very seldom magistrates had to listen to such a revolting case of cruelty.

At Thames Police Court a woman was fined 40s. for cruelty to, and neglect of, a terrier dog, which was chained to a kennel in her garden, and which was in a very emaciated and verminous condition.

At Chorley Petty Sessions a driver was sentenced to three months' imprisonment with hard labour for gross cruelty to a horse by pulling at its tongue, round which he had tied a piece of string, with the result that the tongue was seriously injured.

A boy of sixteen was sent to prison for six weeks for thrashing three pigs with a thick, flat piece of wood which had a nail in it, with the result that one animal had thirteen wounds, while another had twelve, which were from 3in. to 10in. long.

A Worksop cattle dealer, who had been convicted on three previous occasions, was fined £5 for neglecting to feed or attend to a cow which was found turned out in a dying condition. The animal had to be destroyed.

A Reading dairyman was fined £5 for failing to supply 19 cows with sufficient food. Defendant's excuse, that he could not obtain the necessary food, was not considered a reasonable defence—in spite of the shortage of foodstuff.

A Belgian horse butcher, of Lambeth, was charged with cruelty to a horse which was being led through the streets in a very lame condition. He was fined £10 and the horse was destroyed.

A youth of seventeen was charged with gross cruelty to a pony at Victoria Dock. The animal, which was in a terribly weak condition and had twenty bleeding wounds, had evidently been prodded with a steel spike. Defendant was sent to prison for 21 days with hard labour, and the pony was humanely destroyed.

A cattle dealer of Brislington and a drover were charged with cruelty to 100 unshorn sheep by neglecting to give them proper attention, with the result that some died. The dealer was fined £10 or two months' imprisonment, and the drover was fined 20s.

A carrier of Colnbrook was sent to prison for three months with hard labour for working a horse, lame in both forelegs, with a large wound on its withers, and in an emaciated condition. The horse was destroyed.

A Weymouth dealer was summoned at Portland for working a horse with a large and suppurating wound, and in an extremely emaciated condition. The Superintendent of Police gave the defendant a very bad character with a record of conviction for cruelty to animals during the past forty years. He was sentenced to a month's imprisonment with hard labour, and a fine of £20 or a further period of two months' imprisonment.

Performing Elephant Prosecution. At West London Police Court, the proprietor of "a troupe of Musical Elephants" was summoned for ill-treatment to a performing elephant at Shepherd's Bush Empire, by compelling it to travel and to go through a performance when sick and in an unfit state. Evidence showed that the animal in question had fallen in the street on two different days while going to the theatre, and yet, in spite of this, the defendant had compelled the animal to take part in the performance. The elephant died the morning after a performance and the post-mortem examination showed that both lungs were acutely congested, the heart dilated and the stomach inflamed. The magistrate considered that the defendant, from a statement made to the Society's Inspector, was cognisant of the animal's serious condition and that his working her, therefore, constituted an act of cruelty. Fined £5 and 5 guineas costs.

Cruelty to Pit Ponies. As was agreed at the last Annual Meeting a strong letter of protest was addressed by your Council to the Home Secretary on the question of ponies in mines, and the inadequate provisions for their proper and systematic inspection. Your Council pointed out that as only seven special House Inspectors had been appointed it was obviously impossible for so limited a number to carry out the provisions of the Act. They gave statistics to prove their contention and pointed out that it was not unreasonable to assume that some of the casualties and serious cases of cruelty would have been prevented had there been an adequate system of inspection. They therefore asked the Home Secretary to appoint additional Inspectors in sufficient numbers to ensure that all animals employed underground should be inspected at reasonable intervals during the year. In his reply the Home Secretary stated that on a recent review of the whole position he found it desirable to reorganise to some extent the inspection arrangements, also to secure the appointment of an additional inspector. He considered the present arrangements adequate, he continued, and felt that the special inspectors would be in a position to inspect every mine in which horses are employed at least once a year. Further, the Home Secretary added that the responsibility of carrying out the provisions of the Coal Mines Act, which refer to the proper care and treatment of pit ponies, is placed by the Act on the managers and officials of the mines.

It would be idle to say that your Council are satisfied with this reply. The appointment of an additional inspector is certainly a step in the right direction, but it falls very far short of what is expected and required, and the adequate inspection of the 70,000 and more horses employed in mines seems still a pious hope. With all respect, the Society cannot accept the Home Secretary's dictum that the provisions of the Act are to be carried out by the managers and officials. They have a share in the responsibility, but so, too, has the Government—to a far larger degree—since it alone has the power to appoint inspectors.

If it were intended, when the Act was drafted and passed, that the whole of the responsibility should fall on the managers and officials, then the appointment of inspectors would seem a work of supererogation. The mere fact of their having been found necessary implies their responsibility, and we still maintain that their present number is insufficient.

Your Society has instituted many prosecutions for cruelty to pit ponies during the past year, and they note with satisfaction that the owners of mines have themselves undertaken prosecution, and that in many cases employees have not only reported cases but have also very materially assisted by coming forward to give evidence. They consider these facts show a very much healthier feeling against deplorable cruelties and they regard them of very great importance in view of the inadequate Government inspection and the fact that it is difficult for your Society's Inspectors to descend into the mines without special permission, which would in a great many cases prevent surprise visits.

Rabbit Coursing. Your Society takes action whenever possible to suppress the cruelties which accompany the so-called sport of rabbit coursing in enclosures. It is deplorable that this so-called sport should be permitted, and it is to be hoped that public feeling will soon grow strong enough to condemn it utterly, and so abolish the horrible practice altogether. The securing of convictions is a difficult matter, for, in order to proceed successfully against an offender, it is necessary to prove that the rabbits are ill-treated apart from the injuries inflicted on them by the dogs. To dangle the rabbits before dogs prior to liberation in such a manner as to terrorise them is held to be cruelty, and for this offence your Society has secured repeated convictions. A slightly different form of brutality was instanced in a case heard at Alcester, where your Society prosecuted a munition worker for having suffered a rabbit in an unfit condition to be coursed and worried by dogs. It was proved that the rabbit when placed before the dogs was quite unable to run. The most that the poor creature could do was to drag itself painfully along the ground by means of its forelegs. After a lengthy hearing the magistrate decided to convict, and imposed a fine of £5.

Dogs as Beasts of Burden. An alien resident near Hull was fined 10s. 6d. for yoking a dog in a small cart and sending it out in charge of a boy with bundles of sticks and sausage skins. Letters have been sent to the Press recently in which writers urge that dogs should be used for purposes of traction, as on the Continent. Your Council would remind those who urge this retrograde step that it was in consequence of the ill-treatment of dogs as beasts of burden that their use was prohibited in this country so long ago as 1859. Your Society, to its credit, played a principal part in this reform, and it has never found cause to alter the opinion it then held, namely, that, apart from the question of cruelty, dogs, from their anatomical structure, are unsuitable for draught purposes.

Animals and the Food Shortage. Never perhaps within the memory of man have the animals of this country suffered so much from an insufficient food supply—owing to the war conditions, to the increased number of horses and other draft animals employed with the British Army, which have to be fed, and to the decreased importation of fodder from overseas. Your Council, fully recognizing the gravity of the situation, have been in close consultation with the various Government Departments dealing with these questions. They suggested to the Controller of Horse Transport that an official notice should be issued calling the attention of horse owners, carters, carmen, etc., to the short rations and pointing out that it was, therefore, imperative that all working horses should be given lighter loads and less work, and that they should not be trotted. They also urged the widespread publication, by means of posters, of the provision of the “Oat-ration,” as it was felt that so many owners, on the plea of ignorance as to exact details, were starving their animals. These posters, and also special hand bills, published by your society, and giving valuable hints on the feeding and watering of horses, have been widely distributed all over the country by the police and by your inspectors. Your Council have also been keeping in touch with the Forage Committee, a military organisation responsible for the release of all hay not required for military purposes, and an important meeting at your offices was arranged between that body and a number of owners and employers of “working” horses, when the difficulties were fully discussed and new plans were proposed for the quicker release, and better distribution, of fodder to civilians. Your Council have also offered these Departments the services of your Inspectors, to report on the fodder conditions in their respective districts, and good results have already accrued from this, for by means of your Inspectors’ reports several cases of waste or hoarding—in one instance a farmer was bedding down his animals with hay, while there was a serious hay shortage in his neighbourhood—have been brought to justice. In connection with the shortage of feeding stuffs, and the overworking and overloading of horses, your Council’s requests to the Home Secretary, referred to elsewhere, will it is hoped have a salutary effect, and they have also urged that, owing to present and almost unavoidable circumstances, the trotting of working horses should as far as possible be forbidden. Naturally when cases of starvation—if the evidence goes to prove deliberate neglect to provide food of some kind—are reported your Council take action, as they consider that animals which cannot be properly fed should be mercifully destroyed. In connection with this, when the President of the Board of Agriculture publicly advocated that pleasure horses, which are not allowed to be given oats or any cereals—should either be “put down” or turned out to grass, your Council, through the Press, urged owners to have their horses humanely destroyed, and offered whenever possible to arrange for the local Inspector to attend with the R.S.P.C.A. Humane Killer. In many cases this offer has been accepted, and your Council, especially in view of the serious hay-shortage, would urge this form of procedure rather than the promiscuous turning of stable-reared animals out to grass. Your Council will continue to use their best endeavours to assist in relieving, as far as possible, the difficulties of the present time, and they will be glad to receive the practical suggestion of members and others on this important matter.

In connection with this subject, and the Horse (Rationing) Order, dated September 26 last, under which order it was forbidden to feed any horses used in charrs-à-bancs on cereal foods, your Council wrote to all the Licensing Authorities asking them to withhold or cancel licences until the Order had been withdrawn. A large number of sympathetic replies have been received.

Birds and Agriculture. A very retrograde and regrettable agitation, started in the Press, and fostered by various Government Departments, was got up during the past year, for the destruction of sparrows and certain other birds with a view to preserving the crops. Among the suggested means to be employed were the resuscitation of “sparrow clubs,” and the offer to reward school children by monetary payments for destroyed nests, eggs, fledglings, and “heads” of birds. Your Council, among many other Educational bodies, made very strong representation against such methods, which would merely result in putting a premium on cruelty and be an encouragement to indiscriminate slaughter—a course which is diametrically opposed to the teaching encouraged by your Society’s Bands of Mercy. They also appealed to the various Educational authorities, and to those with influence in schools, to discourage the idea of enlisting children in this work of destruction—the necessity for which is a very unsettled question. They are glad to record that, among many others, the Letchworth Garden City Schools declined to take part in the destruction of sparrows, and protested against the employment of school children in such a crusade. It is worth recalling, in connection with this subject, that in 1908 the depredation of caterpillars in the orchards near Sittingbourne was so serious that the Kent Fruit Growers’ Association passed a resolution urging the necessity of stopping the wanton destruction of birds.

Pet Dogs and the Food Shortage. Another Press agitation, due to the food shortage, aimed at the wholesale destruction of dogs, and this matter naturally created a considerable feeling of uneasiness among animal lovers. With these people your Council are in perfect sympathy, since they consider that such pets can be given food which is not suited to human consumption. They therefore consulted a number of canine experts and food manufacturers on the subject and issued, gratis, a pamphlet giving helpful hints on the feeding of dogs, while rigidly avoiding any encouragement of waste of any material which could be used for human consumption. They also, with delegates from kindred societies, made representations to the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the question of increased taxation, with the result that no further Government action was taken, the only change being that it was decided that lost or stray dogs, seized by the police, would be liable to be destroyed after three, instead of five, days' detention.

Dog Licences. Your Council has, during the past year, defrayed the whole or part expense of renewing many dog licences for those owners who are not themselves in a financial position to pay for them, and who would otherwise have had to have their pets destroyed, or might have turned them adrift into the streets. A large proportion of the licences have been given for the dogs of men on military or naval duty, and this means of helping them to keep their pets has been very greatly appreciated.

Soldiers' Pets from the Trenches. Your Council have continued, though on a smaller scale, the work of helping to bring dogs from Belgium and France, which had been adopted by British soldiers on active service. This work, owing to outbreaks of rabies in France, has been very greatly curtailed, but from the number of grateful letters which your Council have received from soldiers whose dogs have been sent to their families, pending their own return, it is most gratifying to know that your Society has been able thereby to show them some return for the sacrifices they have made, and the danger they have experienced, in defence of our Country.

Young and Inexperienced Drivers. Your Council, noticing with regret the number of young and inexperienced boy and girl drivers, who have replaced men of experience now absent on war service, have drawn the attention of the Commissioner of Police to the necessity for constant and greater vigilance on the part of the police. In reply the Commissioner stated that "the importance of their duty in connection with cases of cruelty to animals is impressed on all police officers." As, however, the employment of youths is very much on the increase and as the horses are working under greatly increased difficulties owing to the great shortage of fodder and the decrease in the number of animals employed, with resultant overwork, your Council has again drawn attention to the matter. They have written to the Home Secretary asking that an Order of the Day be issued, directing the police and special constables, "to pay close attention to the condition and treatment of horses, and to interfere by advice, caution or other action as may be necessary to prevent overloading, beating, or other forms of improper usage of animals." Your Council have also drawn attention to the importance of stringently enforcing the law which requires owners' names and addresses to appear on a business vehicle, so that the police and members of the public may be able readily to trace drivers and others guilty of cruelty to draught animals.

Injured Animals. Your Council have pleasure in recording that the Chief Constable of Leeds has issued an order, for the information of the members of his force, that a R.S.P.C.A. Humane Killer, purchased by your Leeds Branch, had been handed over to the police for their use. The Society's Inspector gave a demonstration in its use to the various officers of the force. Arrangements have been made that, when it is required for the destruction of any injured animal, it should be sent, by a mounted man or by the police motor, to the scene of the accident. The Chief Constable has also consented, in cases where it is desired to destroy an animal not injured in the street to lend the instrument and to send a qualified officer with it. Blackburn has also made excellent arrangements on similar lines, and has three humane killers for use, one at the Chief Constable's offices, one at the abattoirs and another in the possession of the Assistant Veterinary Surgeon. Your Council recommend these examples to the notice of other Branches, with a view to similar arrangements being made in their own localities.

Ambulances for Markets. The utility of the Society's work in a Branch is very much increased by aids for the prevention of unnecessary suffering to animals, and in this work one of the most useful adjuncts is the ambulance for pigs, sheep, or calves, designed by Mr. A. Gordon Marsh, the energetic Hon. Secretary of your Tunbridge Wells Branch. Thanks to that gentleman, to an anonymous donor, and to other friends of the cause, these hand carts for the conveyance of fattened animals to and from the markets or railway station, are in use at the following places: Chichester, Paddock Wood, Canterbury, Ashford, Maidstone, Southampton, Wrexham, Rochester, Wolverhampton, Newport (Mon.), Sandwich, Wakefield, York, Leicester, Durham, Tonbridge, Groombridge, and Exeter.

Ambulance for the Streets of London. Your Council, realising the necessity of preventing the unnecessary and often prolonged suffering of animals injured in the streets, and to help the police of the Metropolitan Area, have recently provided a Motor Ambulance, with sliding floor, sling, etc., for the use of the police and the public to convey sick or injured animals from the streets to their own stables for treatment. This ambulance, which has been provided at a cost of over £800, has already proved of very real service and has been much in demand. A charge of 15s. for an inclusive ten-mile journey, and 1s. 6d. for every subsequent mile is made, but in the case of poor owners the services of the Motor Ambulance are free. It is garaged at Messrs. Rickards' stables, 11A, Stanhope Terrace, Paddington. Telephone Paddington 1820, and is available day and night.

Badges for Members of the R.S.P.C.A. Owing to the war—with the consequent shortage of food and the withdrawal for military service of the men who have been accustomed to look after them—the animals of the country are suffering very greatly. Cruelty to animals has unfortunately increased because of these circumstances, and also because cruel people are taking advantage of the occasion to overwork and underfeed their animals. Your Council, therefore, desiring to enlist the active support of qualified members of the R.S.P.C.A., have decided to issue badges of membership, which will, it is hoped, give such members a locus standi when protesting in cases or seeking the aid of the police. Such badges will only be issued on personal application from the members themselves to whom forms for the purpose have been, or will be, sent. Your Council are glad to say that this innovation has already become popular and many members have found the Badge helpful in their endeavours to stop cruelty.

Badges for Honorary Working Members. For the reasons mentioned in the foregoing paragraph, and feeling that there must be many friends of animals who cannot afford to pay the minimum subscription of membership, i.e., one guinea per annum, but who are keen to help in the prevention of cruelty, your Council have decided to appoint reputable and suitable persons resident in the London and Branch areas as Hon. Working Members. A special badge—while not giving the power of instituting proceedings—has been issued and this will, it is hoped, help such persons, who, in the course of their everyday occupations, are willing to stop minor cases of cruelty. Your Council therefore invite Local Branch Committees to enlist Hon. Working Members, so that they may keep a watchful eye on the animals in their districts and so bring home to the offenders that their actions are being noticed. Such members are asked, after reading the rules specially prepared for their guidance, to sign a form of adhesion, and their names are registered at Headquarters.

Educational Work in the Schools. The attention of your Council has been directed to an endeavour to obtain, from the Ministry of Education, a definite and compulsory system of teaching kindness to animals in school. Owing to war exigencies, many youths are now placed in charge of animals, and unfortunately many of them are, either from ignorance or deliberately, guilty of cruelty. Your Society has during the year had to deal with many cases of revolting cruelty perpetuated by young boys and youths, and this danger, unless checked, would have a very serious effect on the country. Your Council therefore wrote to the Minister of Education asking him to consider the possibility of including, in the new Education Bill, clauses providing for such definite teaching. They further asked that, in view of the continued demand for boy labour, the care and treatment of animals should be regarded as part of the technical education, and be a subject for teaching in continuation classes, with practical lessons and demonstrations, together with hints on first aid for injured horses. The Minister in reply regretted his inability, while fully appreciating the importance of the matter, “to prescribe in the Education Bill the specific subjects of instruction which should be given in the schools.” Your Council have therefore decided to work through the Local Authorities, with the help of your Society’s Branches, and have under consideration the preparation of a suitable syllabus of instruction to be issued gratis to the teachers.

Educational Work of the R.S.P.C.A. This, which your Council have always regarded as the most important branch of its efforts, has, in spite of many difficulties, been kept steadily in the foreground, and the various methods of guiding public opinion, both in adults and children, in kindness to animals, have been carried out with success:—

(a) Animal Sunday (fourth Sunday after Trinity) was again observed, but your Council, for economy of money and paper, did not this time circulate sermon, pamphlets, hymn sheets, etc., to the Clergy. Advertisements were, however, inserted in most of the leading religious papers and magazines, reminding readers of Animal Sunday, and in consequence 6,400 clergy of the Church of England and ministers of various denominations, preached on “Our Duty to the Dumb Creation.”

(b) The Annual Essay Competition for all the schools of the Metropolis within a radius of twenty miles of Charing Cross was again held, and 275,000 essays were written and judged for this competition. Owing to the Crystal Palace still being used by the Government, your Council were unable to arrange for the customary public presentation, and certificates only were sent to those children who were judged to have written the best essays in their schools or divisions. Your Council are grateful to note that, in spite of many other calls on the time of schools, the number of essays has been well maintained, and the interest in this competition, and its consequent good, continued.

(c) Your Council note with pleasure that the practice of holding Essay Competitions is growing in the Branches, and that last year the result were most encouraging. The following are among the Branches which held Competitions during 1916; Liverpool, 20,694; Manchester, 20,500; Birkenhead, 10,079; Stoke-on-Trent, nearly 6,000; Oldham, 3,840; Rochdale, 3,270; Brighton, 980; Chester, 933; Tunbridge Wells, 350; Worcester, 200; King's Lynn, 165; Exeter, 144; Romsey, 126; Ryde, 51; Epsom, 40; Nottingham, 36; Shanklin, 18; Bromley, 10; Hunstanton, and Llandudno.

(d) In spite of the difficulties for holding evening meetings, owing to the lighting regulations which have been in force all over the country, the Band of Mercy organisation has been carried on successfully as in former years, and nine new Bands of Mercy have been formed, while the already existing Bands have continued their usefulness, and are well maintaining their numbers of membership.

The Good Work of the Branches. Your Council feel that very hearty thanks are due to the Committees and Hon. Secretaries of your Society's Branches for the good work done during the past year, under conditions of stress which have considerably increased owing to the continuance of the war, and they are most deeply grateful for the excellent results, which can only have been achieved by very real and hard work. It is most encouraging to find that a large number of the Branches have been able, in spite of the many claims of special war charities, to maintain their annual contribution as in normal times, in spite of the fact that certain districts, owing to the shortage of Inspectors, have had to work without full-time Inspectors. They would particularly like to thank those Committees and Hon. Secretaries who have made a special effort to increase Branch payments during the past year, so that the expenses of their Inspectors' services might be more nearly met. This effort has resulted in an increase of nearly £1,200 being sent to Headquarters, a most gratifying result in view of the increased cost of the Society's operations.

The Sheffield S.P.C.A. and Amalgamation. Your Council are glad to announce that an application having been received from the Sheffield S.P.C.A. Committee for affiliation with your Society, this was brought about at a large meeting, presided over by the Lord Mayor of Sheffield, in May last. Your Council feel that the linking up of this very important city and district with your Society's surrounding Branches is a matter for very hearty congratulation, and they had much pleasure in taking over the work which will, they feel sure, be ably carried on by the Committee and officers who were good enough to continue their services on completion of the amalgamation. They only regret that, owing to the many difficulties of carrying on the Society's work, especially in regard to the shortage of suitable Inspectors, the re-organisation of the district has been somewhat delayed.

The Society's Publications. In spite of the difficulties in the printing and paper trades your Council has deemed it advisable as part of the educational work of of the Society, to continue the issue of the Magazines—"The Animal World" and "Band of Mercy"—and they are glad to draw your attention to the fact that there has been both a decrease in the costs of these various publications—as compared with the figures for 1916—and an increase in the sales. Owing to the extra cost of printing the subscription of "The Animal World" was increased to four shillings, post free, per annum, and they are happy to state that many new subscriptions have been received. Your Council have issued new pamphlets, dealing with subjects of importance, such as "The Rationing of Horses," "The Feeding of Dogs," "A Few Words to Horse Keepers," "A Humane Rabbit Snare," "Birds and Berries," "Permissive Cruelty," etc., etc., and these have been purchased and widely circulated.

The Society's Finances. The past year has again been one of difficulty owing to the continued calls on the charitable public and the increased costs of living, wages, etc. Your Council are glad, however, to state that they have, by careful economies, been able, in the various departments of the work, to effect considerable saving, while not curtailing their scope or utility. This, combined with an appreciable increase of Branch payments, for which your Council have to thank Branch Committees and Hon. Secretaries, has helped to tide over a period of continued anxiety. Compared with 1916 legacies (always a fluctuating amount) in the year under review show a falling off of about £4,000, and, owing to unavoidable causes resulting from the continuance of the war, there were on the Payment side of the Financial Statement increases of cost amounting to about £3020 in salaries, advertisements, humane killers, legal and veterinary charges, rates, interest on overdrafts, etc., etc., while the entirely new items of the motor ambulances for the removal of sick and injured horses from the streets of London, and the provision of badges for members (a very popular innovation), accounted for an additional £1096. On the other hand, there were savings on uniforms, wages of Inspectors, and grants to their wives, Almanacs, Animal World, and other printing, Animal Rescue League, lectures, sermons, essays, etc., etc., amounting to £3089, which it will be agreed is a very material economy. On the receipt side of the account, while subscriptions decreased roughly by £178, donations increased by £352, payments from Branches by £1,186, remission of tax by £1,637, dividends by £529, sale of Animal World by £137, humane killers by £147, and subscriptions to the Animals Rescue League by £179, making a total saving of about £4169. It will be seen therefore that though some £4,015 more were spent in 1917 than in 1916, by reducing expenses in the departments indicated, by the increase in donations, Branch subscriptions, dividends, etc., after making allowance for the two new items (ambulance and members' badges) referred to above, the Society was approximately £4,100 better off in the period covered than in the previous year—a substantial result which has only been achieved by constant watchfulness and care on the part of your executive. Though there is no cause for alarm it is clear that rigid economy must be practised until more normal times are reached with the conclusion of the war, and your Council, while fulfilling their part of the trust reposed in them, look with confidence to the Branches and the supporters of the Society annually to enable them by liberal financial help to maintain unimpaired, as far as abnormal circumstances will allow, their national work for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

Humane Slaughtering. Your Council, considering that the use of the Society's Humane Slaughtering Implements, which ensure painless death to animals killed for human food, is more than ever desirable at a time when a very large percentage of trained slaughtermen are serving in His Majesty's forces, have continued their propaganda with the able assistance of Mr. Christopher Cash, Mr. R. O. P. Paddison and other keen workers. Unfortunately, as in so many branches of civilian life, the work is entrusted now too often to men and boys without skill or experience and, owing to the scarcity of labour great numbers of animals are slaughtered hurriedly, with the regrettable result of mistakes and additional suffering. From careful study and some experience your Council have come to the conclusion that it would be futile, at the present time, to carry on active public propaganda for the compulsory use of humane killers, particularly as it is impossible to procure any large supply of the instruments. They have therefore confined their energies to supplying, with the aid of the Military Authorities, cartridges to those butchers who are already using the Society's instruments, and keeping those instruments in order, so as not to interfere with the continued use of those humane methods when they are already adopted. Your Council, anxious to promote, and to continue, the use of humane killers, have been supplying cartridges considerably below their cost price, and the Society's Inspectors are instructed in the use and care of humane killers, so that they may be able to give demonstrations and also help and advise persons who adopt them. Your Council are glad to note that during the past year 84,655 cartridges for the Humane Killer and 53,000 cartridges for the Cash Captive Bolt Pistol have been sold, and they hear with pleasure, that the sales of cartridges for the Greener Killers and the Swedish Killer have also been well-maintained. This shows that this important movement, although faced with many difficulties, has by no means come to a standstill, and the thanks of animal lovers are due to those friends who have worked untiringly to persuade butchers to use humane killers. In some places where there is a scarcity of slaughtermen, "jobbing slaughtermen" are employed. Your Council, have heard with pleasure of cases where these men have been persuaded to use humane killers on all animals slaughtered by them, and they would commend the idea as one that should be followed up in other places. A system of repairing the instruments gratis, where the damage is not due to neglect or gross carelessness, has worked very well, and thanks are due to the Society's Honorary Humane Slaughtering adviser, Mr. R. O. P. Paddison, Bownham, Stroud, for organizing this useful work, which does much to help butchers over temporary difficulties. Local Authorities, who have adopted the Local Government Board's Model Bye-law making it compulsory to stun all animals with a humane killer, have in most cases postponed enforcing it until after the war. In Southampton the bye-law has been in force since August, 1916. After it had been working there quite satisfactorily for several months, eleven slaughtermen failed to use the killer on sheep, pigs and calves, but, your Council are glad to say, they were quickly prosecuted at the instance of the Southampton Corporation and were fined 40s. each. Since then there has been no further attempt to evade the bye-law. It is to the credit of the Southampton Corporation that they met the situation with promptness and energy, and that the vast amount of extra work forced upon them by the war did not deter them from upholding their bye-law for protection of slaughtered animals from needless suffering. It is to be hoped that their action will serve as an example to any other local authorities who may be in similar case. In conclusion your Council would urge all interested in this important subject to communicate with your Chief Secretary or Mr. Paddison, who will be glad to give all information or advice to further the cause.

The R.S.P.C.A. Fund for Sick and Wounded Horses. This Fund, which as most of you are aware, was founded under the Chairmanship of the Duke of Portland, with the sanction of the Army Council, has continued during the past year to give much valuable assistance to the Army Veterinary Service at home and on all fronts. Thanks to the generosity of the British public, and also to the energetic support of your Branches and various kindred Societies, the Fund Committee has collected over £60,000 during the past year for the further provision of Veterinary Hospital accommodation and requisites. The Fund has now provided Veterinary Hospitals for 12,500 horses and mules; fourteen motor ambulances and over one hundred and eighty horse-drawn ambulances; nearly fifty corn-crushing and chaff-cutting machines, besides thousands of rugs, fly-nets, waterproof loin-cloths, sheep skins for easing harness, spraying machines, poultice boots, etc., and tens of thousands of bandages. Large numbers of applications were also made to the Committee by individual officers of all units stationed in France, Italy, Mesopotamia, Salonika, and Egypt, for help to keep the horses in their charge fit and comfortable, and these requests have invariably been attended to. The Fund Committee realise that such aid is not only of the highest importance for the success of the British Army, but that the desire to render the existing, and often trying, conditions under which the animals have to be kept, should receive every encouragement. They feel that this Fund, which is practically the Red Cross for the British horses, is in its way also doing missionary work for the cause by showing the officers and men of the army that your Society is anxious to help them in their care for the animals, and so bring home to them the aims and objects of the R.S.P.C.A. As this terrible war continues, the aid of the Fund will be constantly required. It may sometimes be considered that the Fund is only doing what the Government would otherwise do itself. This is so, but your Council would point out that the utility of the Fund lies in the fact that the Committee is able to attend to the needs of the horses, and thus relieve their suffering quickly and without the unavoidable delays which would occur if such supplies could only be obtained from the various War Office Departments—already greatly over-taxed in attending to the needs of the men. Your Council consider it a great privilege that your Society is able to help the wonderful humane and economic work done by the Army Veterinary Corps, which has grown to such vast proportions since the commencement of hostilities in 1914. It may interest you to know that at that time the Corps numbered 109 officers and 322 men, while at the present time there are over 1,200 officers and considerably more than 20,000 men. The wonderful work which has been accomplished may be judged from the following figures:—From August, 1914, to December, 1917, there were treated in Veterinary Hospitals over 1,850,000 horses and mules; of these 1,424,000 were discharged cured, and there remained under treatment at the end of the year 75,000 animals. Hundreds of letters of thanks from officers and men of the British Army who have come into close touch with the Fund's work have been received, and your Council feel sure that this help, which is much appreciated, will not be forgotten in the happier days to come, when, as we all naturally hope, we shall return to more normal times. Your Council, therefore, while thanking the Hon. Secretaries of the Branches, and all others who have so generously and patriotically helped to make a success of this special work, hope that so long as the need exists public support will be forthcoming for this Fund to enable the Committee to continue, to quote from a letter from the F.-M., the Commander-in-Chief of the British Army in France, "the very valuable assistance which the Society has rendered to Army Veterinary Service in alleviating animal suffering and reducing wastage of animal life."

R.S.P.C.A. Fund Flag Days. During the past year the R.S.P.C.A. Fund raised over £60,700, a large part of this money being derived from Flag Days, Carnivals and Street Collections, organised in various towns and localities during the year. The following is a list of places realising £20 and over:—

Special thanks are due to the organisers of the above, while it is also a peculiar satisfaction to acknowledge the generous help afforded by the Tunbridge Wells Branch with a "Victory" Fund of £500, and by our Sister Societies of Glasgow, Edinburgh, Dundee, North Berwick, St. Andrew's, Fife, Selkirk, Guernsey, Gloucester, and Hereford.

Animal Rescue League. The magnitude of the work carried on by this League, whose headquarters are at 397, City Road, London, E.C. 1, is shown by the fact that during 1917 no fewer than 30,957 unwanted animals, namely 27,732 cats and 3,225 dogs, were rescued or received and mercifully destroyed. The work has enormously increased since the League was taken over by the Society in 1913. Most of the animals received belong to poor people who are unable to subscribe to the League, and therefore a special appeal is made to those who are able to do so to help the League by subscriptions or donations, however small. If the League were not in existence most of these animals would be turned adrift in the streets, as the owners are not in a position to pay for their destruction, and the League is the only Institution which humanely destroys animals free of any charge. The shortness of food will no doubt increase the number of unwanted pets, and the existence of the League will therefore, if possible, be more than ever justified. The total subscriptions received to carry on the work are quite inadequate to meet the actual expenses, and the balance has to be found by your Society. It is to be hoped that this year further and increased subscriptions will be forthcoming to carry on this absolutely necessary work.

Progress of our Cause Abroad. Owing to the difficulties of postal communication it has been impossible to keep in touch with the work of Societies abroad as in pre-war days, but your Council are glad to record that the work in India is being well maintained. In Kashmir the work instituted by Mr. C. M. H. Thring, with the active support of the Maharaja, has progressed, and water troughs have been erected on the Jhelum Valley Road, where also a system of inspection of all transport animals is rigidly enforced. The Kobe S.P.C.A. is making solid progress and a considerable improvement in the animals of that part of Japan is noted, while a large number of cases was dealt with. The Barcelona Society has also met with much encouragement in its work, and judging from its good results the public are being educated to understand and to deprecate cruelties of various kinds, while the Mayor and officials of the city are giving the Society active support in its prosecutions and reforms by enforcing the laws and municipal ordinances for the protection of animals and birds. The Buenos Ayres Society has, among much useful work, successfully opposed all attempts to revive bull-fighting; has established Bands of Mercy; has inaugurated an ambulance service for injured animals, and has maintained a municipal service for the recovery of stray dogs, and the Madeira Society is also continuing to do excellent work in the prevention of cruelty to animals.

Ninety-fourth Anniversary.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE R.S.P.C.A.,

MAY 31st, 1918.

THE Annual Meeting was held at the Central Buildings, Westminster, S.W., at 3 o'clock, on Friday, May 31st, 1918, under the presidency of Colonel Sir Edward Ward, Bart., K.C.B., K.C.V.O., J.P. Present on the platform and among the audience were Lord Lambourne, General Blenkinsop, D.S.O. (Director General Army Veterinary Department), Mr. R. H. Selbie (Government Controller of Horse Transport and Feeding), Mr. G. Dixey (Treasurer), Mr. R. C. Lyall, Mr. H. J. Selby, Mr. H. J. Tinnè, Mr. C. Cash, Colonel Benson, Mr. R. O. P. Paddison, Mr. Aslett, Captain Dowell, Dr. and Mrs. Sharman, Mrs. Stuart, Mrs. Woolrych, Miss C. V. Hall, Mrs. Lemon, Mrs. Willmott, Miss Thornton, Miss Woodward, Miss Crofton, Miss Violet Wood, Miss Adeline Smith, Miss Hunt, Miss Ingram.

At the request of the Chairman, the Secretary read the notice convening the Meeting, and also stated that letters of regret for non-attendance had been received from the Duke and Duchess of Portland, Mr. Leslie Scott, K.C., M.P., Sir Charles Behrens, Sir John Rolleston, Sir George Greenwood and Mrs. Penn Gaskell.

THE CHAIRMAN :—Once again it is my privilege and pleasure to preside over your Annual Meeting, unhappily at a time when the Great Powers of Europe are still at war, and in so doing I feel that I am performing a public duty to the animals whose claims upon our protection were never more urgent than now, and a public duty also to the Members of the Society, whose loyal support and co-operation are a source of grateful satisfaction and congratulation at a period of exceptional and prolonged anxiety. I would suggest in proposing the adoption of the Annual Report and Financial Statement that, having been circulated to you all, they be taken as read as in former years. I doubt not that is unanimous. It is a matter of sincere congratulation to me as Chairman, and to my colleagues on the Council, that in spite of continual and increasing difficulties caused by the war, the work of your Society has been carried on successfully during the past year. The Society's staff has been still further depleted, owing to the military situation, but the Council have endeavoured, wherever possible by the employment of ex-soldiers, to maintain the supervision of the treatment of animals in this country. The number of convictions obtained for cruelty during the past year has been a large one, but a much larger number of cases have also been dealt with by caution and advice, which is in keeping with our desire and policy for preventing cruelty when more drastic measures can be avoided. The work of prevention, particularly as it affects the horses of this country, has been a difficult and a delicate task owing to the better class animals having been utilised for military purposes, and the fact that in consequence horses left for civil use are aged and unfit for strenuous work. Another grave consideration has been the shortage of fodder and the replacement of regular drivers and carmen by inexperienced boys and women who are ignorant of the requirements of the animals placed in their charge. In this connection it is gratifying to note that the issue of Badges to Members of the Society and to persons enrolled as Honorary Working Members has had excellent results in preventing cruelty to, and rough usage of, animals in the public streets. As you will have noticed by the paragraphs in the Report relating to the food shortage, your Secretary has been in constant touch with the Controller of Horse Transport and Feeding, and the services of your Inspectors have been utilised in aid of the departments in different parts of the country. (Cheers.) Your Council called a Meeting at your offices in Jermyn Street of principal horse-owners to discuss the important question of food shortage, and the Administrative Member of the Government Forage Committee, General Morgan, attended and explained at length a new scheme whereby he hoped to be able to release for civilian consumption an adequate supply of hay for the horses of this country. Unfortunately, experience shows that these hopes have not been sufficiently realised, and in some cases the hay made available has been of inferior quality. On behalf of the Council and the Society your Secretary recently wrote a letter to the Times, strongly urging that the control of horse feeding and transport should be placed in the hands of one department, instead of in three or four as at present, with a view to co-ordinating the supply of food, and of regulating the hours of horse labour, the loads to be drawn, and the pace to be observed ; also where necessary to make orders for the merciful destruction of animals which it is impossible to feed, and for the general welfare of horses as rendered desirable by reduced rations and exceptional circumstances resulting from the war. The evidence collected in London and other centres proves the real necessity for action of this kind, and it is significant that the Central Veterinary Society is of opinion that the shortage of fodder is responsible for an increased mortality among horses amounting to at least fifty per cent. It should be remembered that the shortage is in a great measure unavoidable seeing that an enormous acreage of grass land has been put under the plough, that we import forty per cent. less fodder than in pre-war days, and that the enormous number of military horses now in the field have to be fed from this country. Our contention, however, is that in view of the food shortage, the work of civilian horses should be properly and stringently regulated and safeguarded. The Home Secretary received an influential deputation of Members of Parliament on this subject, which included two members of your Council (Sir George Greenwood, and Sir Frederick Banbury), and in the House of Commons on May 8th, he stated that he had asked the Police to take every opportunity to call the attention of horse-owners to the need for the easier working of horses, and that in view of further representations the Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police had issued special instructions to the Police to be on the alert, especially with regard to cases of overloading, and that he was also communicating in the same sense with County and Borough Police Forces. It is to be hoped that the worst is now over as the summer is upon us when horses will be able to get more grass and fodder. I would however take this opportunity of asking the public to help by reporting cases of overloading, overdriving, and other ill-treatment, and to refrain from using horses for pleasure drives, etc. Draught-horses help to carry on the general commercial business of the country, farmers' horses help with food production, and therefore quite apart from humane motives, it is imperative, and in the interest of all, that they should be safeguarded from overwork and cruelty. (Cheers.) At the last Annual Meeting the question of the attitude of the Society with regard to sport was raised, and, in accordance with the promise I then made on behalf of the Council, a sub-Committee was appointed to consider the whole question with the result that the following conclusions were arrived at and adopted by the Council:—"That this Committee is of opinion that the spurious sports of rabbit coursing, pigeon shooting, and the hunting of carted deer, are cruel and ought to be put down by law. That this Committee adheres to the former policy of the Society, which is, that the dividing line which exists between hunting animals kept for the purpose and brought to the place of the meeting, and the hunting of wild animals put up in their own country, would seem to form a practical boundary, beyond which our work should not be carried without due consideration of all the circumstances of each case." It will be observed that, while dealing with the subject in general terms, your Council will be able, and are prepared, to go into all the circumstances of any instances of cruelty in any sport that may be brought to notice. A vast army of dog lovers have recently had cause for disquietude owing to the action of the Government in stopping the supply of low grade flour for the manufacture of biscuits and owing to the rumour that drastic measures were to be taken to secure the wholesale destruction of dogs. Your Society, with other kindred Societies, took the matter up energetically by representations to the Food Controller, by letters to the press, and by urging the public to approach their individual Members of Parliament with a view of strong opposition being raised to the projected drastic measures said to be contemplated by the authorities, and it was pointed out that dogs are not only pets but necessary protectors of life and property, many of them belonging to members of the Forces, who would strongly resent the destruction of their animals. A letter was written on your behalf to the Parliamentary Committee appointed to consider the question of food for dogs, and your Secretary also attended a large protest meeting at the Cannon Street Hotel for the purpose of passing a strong resolution calling upon the Government to release a sufficient quantity of low grade flour to ensure the manufacture of dog biscuits. The day before the meeting the Government had, however, announced their intention to release a portion of the required flour so that dog biscuits could be obtained. The report of the Government Committee appointed to consider the whole question has not yet been published, but there is reason to believe that a certain amount of food will be made available, and that there will be proposals for the taxation of puppies from a month to six weeks old, and for the merciful destruction of unwanted dogs which would otherwise be turned adrift in the streets. I can assure you that we, and those kindred societies which have been agitating in this matter, will continue to watch most carefully and ensure the proper feeding of the dogs of this country. (Cheers.) I would like in passing to draw your attention to the continued successful work done by the R.S.P.C.A. Fund for Sick and Wounded Horses under the Chairmanship of the Duke of Portland. The generous help of the horse-loving public has enabled us to worthily carry out our objects as an Auxiliary of the Army Veterinary Corps which has achieved such splendid results with the horses and mules, which with our magnificent soldiers are bearing their share in the world's greatest war. I feel persuaded that our work in thus alleviating the sufferings of sick and wounded horses at the Front will have a far-reaching effect for good on the Society itself in the better times to come when this terrible war is ended. In conclusion, Ladies and Gentlemen, I should like to testify to the enormous debt of gratitude which we owe to our Hon. Secretaries all over the country for their splendid and faithful work in our cause, and on behalf of the Council it gives me great pleasure to thank them publicly for their loyal and continued activity in the performance of their onerous duties. (Applause.) I now beg to move from the Chair :—" That the Report and Financial Statement now read be received, adopted, and printed for circulation at the discretion of the Council." (Loud cheers.)

LORD LAMBOURNE :—It now becomes my duty as well as my pleasure to second the adoption of the Report that has been placed before you. The Report is a voluminous one, but that cannot be helped. We have done our best to make it as succinct as possible, but there was an enormously wide field to cover, and you will thus see how difficult it would be to make it shorter than it is at present. I expect you will all agree that there are two really important subjects in regard to animals that might be said to engross public attention at the present moment, and they concern the horse and the dog, but these do not limit our field of operations. We are out to protect all dumb animals. (Cheers.) I should like to remark in passing (and I am certain you will support me) that when you read in the Report the list of punishments for cruelty, perfectly hideous cruelty, committed during the year, you will come to the conclusion that the fines and punishments inflicted were totally inadequate to the offences. (Loud cheers.) That is not our fault, and I am glad to say that some years ago Truth took up this subject most warmly. There is a case of a man for the greatest cruelty, and this may be looked upon as a more severe sentence than usual, at Chingford (in the Division I used to represent), for turning out a horse on Epping Forest during the winter, and practically allowing it to starve almost to death, was fined £10 only. In such an abominable case a fine is an absurdity. (Cheers.) Then there is the cruelty to pit ponies, to which there is considerable allusion in the Report, and I agree that we cannot feel at all satisfied with the action of the Government in this matter. I remember when the Coal Mines Bill was being discussed how my friends Mr. J. G. Butcher, Sir George Greenwood and Colonel Burn urged the necessity of frequent and adequate inspection of the animals in the collieries. But this is evidently very inefficiently carried out; however the only course is to keep on pegging away at the Government, never leaving them alone, and we hope to continue that until we obtain a better system of supervision of pit ponies. And now what is to be said about rabbit coursing? I am a sporting man, and have been a sportsman all my life, but I have no sympathy with rabbit coursing. (Cheers.) Why is it permitted? I will tell you; there are a lot of votes behind it. The miners as well as the women have votes now, and they are fond of coursing. They are dangerous people in a political sense. (Laughter.) But it is only a matter of education, and why cannot we educate miners as well as anyone else? A Canon of the Church recently said that we should never get good Archbishops until we sent the boys of the elementary schools to Eton. (Laughter.) Well, at any rate, we ought to be able to demonstrate to the miners what a degrading sport this rabbit coursing is. (Hear, hear.) There is also this burning question of our dogs. I have taken a pretty active part in the controversy, although I felt sure that the measures foreshadowed were not likely to materialise. I knew what the Government was up against. The women voters include a large number of owners of dogs, and if the Government thought they were going to sit down and see their pets starved, they were very much mistaken. No Government would stand for a month which tried to put our dogs to death except in the last extremity. (Cheers.) Mr. Hayes Fisher has been extremely sympathetic. He keeps a dog himself and therefore feels for us, and used his best endeavours with the Government, and so far as I know we are fairly safe. There is a certain portion of that red dog flour reserved for food, and besides this, we have by publication of leaflets informed the public that there are many ways of finding food for our dogs without having recourse to dog biscuits. But whichever way you look at it, it is a question that wants watching, in fact all Government promises want watching. (Laughter and cheers.) If any of you do not think so, your experience is different from mine. Still, if they run back from their word over this, I can assure them that we shall create such an agitation as will not be easily put down. I explained to Mr. Hayes Fisher that it is unfair to say that we are content with the former state of things, and we will not assist the Government in this time of war. I have attended many meetings, I belong to every Society which is working for the benefit of animals. I think the more there are striving for the same object the better. There should be no jealousy, and I never find any jealousy in those helping me over this dog business. We are against the progressive taxation of dogs, and to go on piling it up, until a man with a kennel has to pay about £500 for his last dog—well, that is a dirty trick intended to destroy all dogs. We are in favour of increasing the tax from 7s. 6d. to 10s. (even to 12s., speaking for myself); but dog lovers are out against any attempt to get rid of our dogs under the guise of progressive and penal legislation. (Applause.) The question of horses has also occupied our attention very seriously for a long time. That of course is full of difficulties, like everything else. They tell us that the ration given by Government for horses is sufficient—it is poor but sufficient. Well, if the horse gets it perhaps it is, but in many cases the horse does not get it. The problem of distribution is where the difficulty comes in. We ourselves are told that under the rationing system we get enough of proteids not only to keep us alive, but to sustain us in the fittest health. Perhaps according to chemistry that is all right, but you may get heat in a room with slow combustion, but if you use that heat in a different grate the effect is totally different. What one man or one horse imbibes with fairly good results, the interior organisation of another man or another animal cannot extract sufficient nourishment to keep either in health or fitness. I who am short and was stout, and Sir Edward Ward who is tall and fine, and moreover blessed with a perfect digestion, require different feeding. (Laughter.) Obviously the theory that what is sufficient for one person is sufficient for everybody is a fallacy. (Hear, hear.) I believe it is possible for a horse to do, not the work he did originally but a certain amount of work under the present regulations, and if we could make sure that he was limited to that and not overstrained, we should feel more satisfied. The boy is a different case. I do not think there is any original sin in him, but it is natural carelessness. Even General Blenkinsop was careless when he was a boy, but look how careful he is now. (Laughter.) The English boy is by nature light-hearted and thoughtless. I have watched him repeatedly, I am a fearful watcher where animals are concerned, and although I have known him to be cruel, he does not brutally ill-treat in the way that you see the Latin races do. One ton or a little more used to be considered the weight for a draught horse, but I think half a ton is as much as a horse should draw now. (Hear, hear.) I should like to see the walking rule established, for I do not think heavy horses should be made to trot under present conditions; but it is of no use making a law if you cannot carry it out. I have talked a great deal to policemen in London, and I find them most sympathetic and most kind, the older the man the kinder he is, and I have seen them helping and stopping horses with unfair loads. I think speaking generally they take a good deal of notice of what is going on. I am also bound to say that the horses of some firms look well, while those of others look extremely bad; but I must go no further or I shall be up for libel. Still there is a great deal of difference in this respect. The animals of the big firms generally will pass, while unfortunately the little men are the worst offenders, whose horses often look more or less as though they had been fed on the ends of cedar pencils and broom handles. (Laughter.) But these evils are bound up largely with the question of distribution. I have no doubt we shall find remedies. It is to be expected when you come to lay down sumptuary and rationing laws for people that a good proportion will rebel at the novelty of the thing. The ordinary man has one law for himself, and he will not obey any law that does not fit in with his ideas. He does not know where he is over it, but education and experience in these matters are gradually making him a law-abiding subject. I have seen a marked improvement in the last six weeks. The long drag from Victoria to Hyde Park Corner needs our constant supervision. A ton and a quarter or even a ton is too much nowadays to make any horse draw up that incline. (Cheers.) However, I know our Society is giving attention to these points. Ladies and Gentlemen, I know I have been diffuse; I cannot help it. The more suffering I see in human nature the more convinced I am that the cause of dumb animals demands a large share of your attention and your money. The Report gives you a long catalogue of our virtues, but we have carefully left out any enumeration of our faults and vices. The public outside are sufficiently critical, and rest assured they will point out where we have failed. We have to distribute large sums of money, and I know we have many faults, but we always pay the closest attention to every criticism, and endeavour to profit by it, and I hope you will strike the correct balance and give us credit for the good work we have undoubtedly achieved. (Loud applause.)

MR. R. H. SELBIE (Government Controller of Horse Transport and Feeding) :— I rise to support the Resolution before you, and in doing so I have been asked to say a word or two on the vexed question of the condition of horses in our towns. This is naturally causing some anxiety to your Council. I am of course mainly concerned with the economic side of the question, but as a keen lover of horses I do not overlook the humanitarian side, and I should not do so even if I were allowed to by your energetic Council and able Secretary. (Cheers.) As you all know, it became necessary some time ago for the Government to exercise some control in reference to Horse Transport and this for several reasons. Horse transport plays an important part in the economy of the country. It is necessary, for instance, that at the Docks ships should be discharged and turned round as quickly as possible; in Railway Yards and Warehouses that the wagons should be unloaded and reloaded with all possible dispatch, and to accomplish these and similar ends it is necessary that Road Transport should be thoroughly efficient. The Board of Trade, at the request of the Government, took the matter in hand, and I think the wisdom of the step has been fully justified. I need not trouble you with the various steps that have been taken in dealing with the matter of Horse Transport, but I may say that a good deal of unnecessary work has been cut out and every effort is being made to confine the use of horses to essential work. Another side to the matter, as our Chairman has said, is the food question. I should not like to tell you how near we have been on two or three occasions to starvation point, so far as our horses are concerned. At the present time we are in a better state with regard to cereals. But this is a difficulty and will continue to be one until the new crop arrives. We hope by careful distribution to tide over until the new crop is available, but it will be a tight pinch. Still it is satisfactory to know that the cereal situation has improved, and I may add that I am hopeful that we shall get through successfully within the next few months. There are about two and a half millions of civilian horses in the country, that is exclusive of army horses. All classes and conditions of horse are included in that census. Half the number are engaged in various forms of agriculture. One reason which I think we may safely say accounts for the falling off in the condition of the town horses during the last twelve months is the shortage of young horses coming into the towns. Many of you know that the Board of Agriculture found it necessary to make an Order that horses could not be removed from farms except by special licence. That of course stopped the flow of young horses to the towns; thus the town horses were kept in service much longer than usual, and to a greater age, which accounted for the poor condition of the animals seen in the streets. I have been able to make an arrangement with the Board of Agriculture, by which this source of supply has been opened up again. I may say at once that luxury horses are not released, but where the work is proved to be of essential public utility, a certain number are being released from the farms to the towns. I have evidence to the effect that three times the number of old horses are being destroyed now than was the case in the previous twelve months. That is I submit conclusive evidence that young horses are coming into the towns. Now I should like to say a word or two with reference to rations. These were arrived at not in the haphazard way that many people believe. The best scientific evidence was taken before the rations were fixed. There was a Committee for the purpose consisting of Veterinary Surgeons, and a number of expert horse feeders, who had been owners of all grades of horses for many years, men engaged in town work, and who had made a study of horse-feeding. The question was fully discussed, and since the first rationing order came out it has been revised to meet the changing supplies of the various classes of grain. I say that the rations laid down are sufficient to keep in health the different classes of horses, graded as they are, provided they get the rations. All we can do, so far as I see, although we are always open to suggestion, is to lay down the maximum rations according to the work the animals have to do, and take all the steps we can to see that the owners of the animals are put in a position to get those rations. (Cheers.) There will shortly be coming out a scheme (I hope to get it into operation within a month or five weeks from now) by which priority certificates will be granted to all town horse owners. They will thus be enabled to obtain fodder according to the class of horse they have, and in preference to cows and pigs, etc., so that the horse which has his work to do will be assured of his ration. (Hear, hear.) That should have a distinctly beneficial effect on the condition of our horses when it comes into force. As a last word I should like to say how much I welcome the assistance I have received from your Council and its able Secretary. I have benefited by numerous suggestions from them of great value, and I have also to acknowledge the excellent help of the Police, particularly of the Metropolitan Police. They have been very good in adopting any suggestions I have put before them, and in seeing that the Orders have been carried out in a reasonable as well as humanitarian way. I should like it to be realised that I am only too anxious to work in the closest co-operation with these bodies, and to deal with any suggestions that will have the effect of preventing suffering on the part of the animals involved. (Applause.)

MR. G. DIXEY (Treasurer) :—It is scarcely necessary for me to make any remarks about the Accounts. They are before you and they speak for themselves. It was customary in the past for the Treasurer to enter into some comparison of the figures of previous periods, but about two years back we adopted the method of explaining them in fuller detail in the Report, and this year there is a paragraph on page 13, which will afford you ample information if you have the time to read it. But there are just one or two remarks I should like to make. It is very pleasing to find that our subscriptions and our dividends, etc., have increased to the extent of about £4,000. This is really wonderful considering the many calls on the benevolent at the present time. We have had to expend large sums in the prosecution of our work, and we have also thought it well to invest in a Motor Ambulance for the removal of disabled animals from the streets, which by the way is at the door for inspection if you would like to look at it as you go out. We shall be very pleased for you to see and approve of it. One unfortunate circumstance is the reduction in the amount of legacies last year. This of course is always a very uncertain source of revenue, but during the ninety-four years of our existence we have always relied on legacies as a means of income, and with the exception of a comparatively small amount accumulated, we have spent hundreds of thousands of pounds in paying expenses; but I should be very glad if the Society would take into consideration the desirability of making a change in this respect. I think half of the sums bequeathed to us should be set aside to ensure the stability of the Society. (Hear, hear.) I believe in the case of many kindred Institutions they reserve for capital about 30 or 40 per cent. of the legacies. Although last year was an unfortunate one with regard to bequests, I am pleased to say that we have begun this year with a very much larger sum accruing from that source. Up to April we had received £9,367 as against about £2,000 during a similar period last year; therefore although we suffered so much in 1917 this year's enhanced receipts have put us on the right side again. You will see exactly how we stand if you will study the paragraph in the Report to which I have referred. The fact that we are £4,100 better off than we had any right to anticipate is very satisfactory. (Cheers.) One item always causes me keen regret, and that is the paucity of the subscriptions received from London. While the country Branches are sending in an increased amount London subscribed only about £2,000. Surely this is a slur on the largest and most important city in the world. A great Society like this should receive at least £10,000 from the Capital, and I do not see why we should not get it. (Cheers.)

The Resolution was carried unanimously.

MAJOR-GENERAL BLENKINSOP, D.S.O. (Director-General Army Veterinary Department) :—In proposing a vote of thanks to the Trustees, Treasurer, Council and Committees for their services during the past year and that the retiring Members of Council be re-elected for the current year, namely :—Mr. Loudon Douglas, Colonel Henry Fludyer, Sir George Greenwood, M.P., Lord Lambourne, Mr. R. C. Lyall, Colonel Noble, Major the Hon. A. C. Murray, M.P., Lady Pender, I take this opportunity of thanking your Society for the very material assistance which it has given to the Army Veterinary Corps on the various fronts through “The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals’ Fund for Sick and Wounded Horses.” The title of this Fund clearly defines its object, which I have no hesitation in saying should appeal to every Britisher. (Cheers.) After a lifelong experience amongst animals in widely distributed parts of our Empire, I am convinced that we, as a nation, have an innate love of animals which I am proud to say far exceeds that of most other civilised nations. My experience has been that there are few amongst us who are wholly callous to animal suffering. In the majority of cases where cruelty occurs it is the result of ignorance and it is comparatively rarely we find men employed in caring for animals, entirely without any feelings regarding their welfare. I consider the proposals made in the annual Report regarding instruction to be given in Schools to be one of the most valuable lines on which your Society can work. (Cheers.) With reference to this question of cruelty I fear many of the gross cases of cruelty result from a want of mental balance and that it is worthy of your consideration whether steps should not be taken to ensure against those who have been repeatedly convicted of cruelty to animals owning or having the care of animals. (Hear, hear.) Naturally the points which appeal to us all at the present moment are those which are directly concerned with the war. In this connection I am in the position to inform you that in no previous war, and up to the present in no other Veterinary Service in this war, have results been obtained approaching those which have been obtained by our Army Veterinary Corps on all our various Fronts. These results have been due to organisation and the application of scientific knowledge by a trained Service. In this work we have been greatly assisted by the monetary aid supplied by your Society, and for this I sincerely thank you and all subscribers to the special Fund which you have so successfully raised and maintained, to assist my service in its care of sick and wounded horses. Captain Fairholme has done especially well in this connection and has invariably come to my assistance when called upon. In your Report I find a reference to the return of soldiers’ dogs from France. This is a point regarding which I would like to say a few words. There is no doubt men on service become very sincerely attached to their dogs and feel sorely having to part with them. By your assistance in the return of these dogs the great danger of the introduction of rabies from overseas by smuggling dogs into this country may to a certain extent be controlled. This is a danger which threatens our home animals, and one which every animal lover should bear constantly in mind when considering this subject. Any known cases of smuggling dogs into England should be brought to notice by members of your Society in the same way as cases of cruelty are. (Hear, hear.) Now in conclusion I thank your Society for the aid you have given to my Service, and trust that the use we have made of your past assistance may encourage you one and all to increased effort. In the past your provision of horse ambulances, especially motor horse ambulances, has done much to alleviate animal discomfort and save animal life. The aid you have given in assisting in the erection of Veterinary Hospitals and the provision of various appliances for the relief of sick and wounded animals has been of the greatest value, and I feel confident that my Service has fully justified the trust you have placed in it, and proved itself the most important Service, with reference to the objects of your Society, in the present war. (Applause.)

DR. SHARMAN :—I am very glad to second the Resolution, and if I may just occupy your time for a few moments I should like to say a word or two about the education of children in humane principles. I believe in The Animal World it was stated that Mr. Fisher, the Minister of Education, did not think anything more could be done in that direction. On the other hand I feel sure you will agree with me that much more can and ought to be done in the way of education. All these young people who are suddenly called upon to deal with animal life are not absolutely unkind, and if their stupidity and their thoughtlessness were pointed out to them it would be a great help and deterrent. (Hear, hear.) As to punishments inflicted I agree that they are often very inadequate, but this depends largely on individual benches of magistrates. In my own district of Norwood we have recently had two cases in which exemplary punishment was given. One the case of a milkman who worked a horse continually until it was in such a state of exhaustion that it had to be propped up in the stable. The animal had to be destroyed, while the owner was fined £25, the magistrate saying that he had a great mind to send him to prison. In another instance the offender, who was also a milkman, and happened to be the Chairman of our Horse Committee and one of our local Visitors, had been up before the magistrates several times, and on this last occasion they told him that fines were no good, and gave him three months' imprisonment. This resulted in an appeal, and as the man was 71 years of age, and said to be suffering from senile decay, which was a ridiculous excuse, he was let off the imprisonment, the horse was taken from him, and is now in the possession of your Society. However, it is a satisfaction to know that the prosecution cost the man about £50. These are certainly two instances where the punishment meted out was richly deserved. (Cheers.) There is just one other point. It is an old question I know—this sale of cast Army horses. I am well aware of the difficulty of bringing them home, but it is a crying shame to sell them to the peasantry, never stating what is the matter with them. I know of a case of the kind in which the animal was certified as suffering from a chronic complaint, and ought to have been destroyed. I consider the Government the worst offenders in this respect. The Government sell horses permanently lame and diseased which ought instead to be mercifully put to death. I cannot understand why this is not done instead of allowing them to eke out a miserable existence of hard work and insufficient food. (Cheers.)

GENERAL BLENKINSOP :—As one of the people on whom the last speaker's remarks reflect I should like to say how sorry I am if any horse which is unfit for work has been sold by the Government. But I must in justice say that every horse belonging to the Government is examined by the Army Veterinary Officer before being sold, and that officer has no interest whatever in the sale or purchase of the animal. No, we are all out to save animal suffering. It must be borne in mind that some horses, although unfit for Army work, will do well on the land, and I ask, is it right to take the life of that horse, is it right to take animal life at all, when the creatures can live happily, do good work and be useful? I think not. With regard to the horse referred to, I believe there was an instance of an animal sold which had a disease in its foot, but that horse would have worked very well on a farm and without suffering. Of course if the horse is taken and put to work unsuited to it that is a different matter, and the purchaser is at fault. But that horses are knowingly, sold by the Government while in an unfit state for any work, I hope you will allow me to say, is not the case.

DR. SHARMAN :—Why could it not be said that this or that horse was unfit for general work, that is on the London streets, but that it might be used for agricultural purposes?

MR. ASLETT :—I have just been for three weeks in Bristol and particularly noticed the horses there as compared with those in London. They seemed much more travelled and fatigued than you see them here. I was looking at Shoolbred's and Maple's animals, and patting some of them the other day, and they struck me as being far better than those of the same class in Bristol. I feel that at any rate some of the London horses are being well looked after, notwithstanding the present difficult times.

LORD LAMBOURNE :—I received a letter from a lady at Glasgow saying that 130 English horses had been advertised for sale by auction in Palestine. Now the Government promised a long time ago that no Army horse should be sold in the East, and although we live in a constant atmosphere of change, I take it that that Order still holds good. Upon inquiry into this allegation the answer was that the animals sold were donkeys and mules captured from the enemy. I cannot say that I am entirely satisfied with that reply. Still, it is not quite the same as if our own horses were in question. I am anxious that those at Glasgow shall know this.

MISS THORNTON was understood to say that in her daily experience numbers of horses might be seen on the streets which ought not to be worked, and that if the Society did its duty properly they would not be there. She was well aware that the best horses of the country were at the war, but that was no excuse for overworking and ill-treating those that remained. The London Police and Specials did very little to check the evil. They knew little about horses; they did not even know when they were thin and overladen. The Society should go in for more practical work. She would like to see Specials placed all over the town to watch for these cases, and if this could be done, there would be a remarkable difference in a few weeks.

THE CHAIRMAN :—Before I put this motion I must say that I have been closely connected with the Police for the last three and a half years, and I quite agree with what Lord Lambourne says. The policeman may not be a scientific horseman, but he does know whether a horse is overloaded or starved. As a rule these officers take the greatest possible care, and it is very hard on a most deserving body of men that their efforts in humanity should not quite be appreciated.

The Resolution was carried unanimously.

MR. PADDISON :—I have great pleasure in moving the next resolution—

That the most cordial and hearty thanks be given to Colonel Sir Edward Ward, Bart., K.C.B., K.C.V.O., J.P., for presiding at this Meeting.

As you all know our Chairman has many arduous duties to perform besides those connected with the Society, and it is therefore the more commendable that he gives so much time and trouble to the cause of animals. He is identified with all the various work of our Society, and we are indebted to him for the time and consideration which he gives to it. I was very glad to hear Lord Lambourne say that he welcomed co-operation between other Societies and this one. I appreciate that because my active work is more with another Society than with this one. I am a local Secretary of a kindred Association which has no connection with the R.S.P.C.A., but I have always tried to co-operate with this Society, and I am bound to say I have always found the Secretary most willing to give all possible help. I hope I have tried to reciprocate, but I am sure I have received more than I have given. Another point Lord Lambourne raised referred to the feeding of dogs, and it seems to me that this question may shortly reach a very critical stage. We do not know how much cereal has been given over to the biscuit maker. We may suddenly be informed that no more biscuits are to be had, and in view of this dog owners ought to be told how dogs can be fed without biscuits, for a great many of them seem to think that dogs can be fed on nothing else, and yet dogs get on very well without biscuits; as a matter of fact dogs can eat almost anything, and will thrive where human beings would starve. A few days ago my duties took me near a public-house, outside which was a large rubbish heap. I can assure you my three dogs, although they are well enough fed at home, found plenty to eat amongst that rubbish during all the time I was there.

LORD LAMBOURNE :—We have issued leaflets about the food dogs can eat.

MRS. WOOLRYCH :—In my district they use horseflesh.

MR. PADDISON :—I was told by Mr. Johns, of the Canine Defence League, that Mr. Clynes said we might give our dogs paunches.

LORD LAMBOURNE :—Tripe can be given them too.

MR. PADDISON (resuming) :—If we can give paunches and tripe to dogs without breaking the Defence of the Realm Regulations it should be made known to every dog owner, as the idea which generally prevails is that food which is fit for human consumption cannot be given to animals, and this idea prevents a great many people from giving a portion of their own rations to their dogs, which they would otherwise gladly do. (Cheers.) Lately I wrote to a food officer asking him if we might give part of our rations to our dogs. His reply was, "Generally speaking animals must not be given food which is fit for human beings, but no one can be compelled to eat his own rations, and household refuse may properly be given to animals to avoid waste." From this I gather that some of the food which has been bought with coupons may reasonably be given to dogs. But if so, would it not be much better that everyone should know it? The world is divided into conscientious and non-conscientious people. It is easy enough for non-conscientious persons to feed their dogs; they have only to buy cheap food with their coupons and forego a part of their own diet. But a conscientious person who declines to feed his dogs on anything that a human being could eat is at a disadvantage, and still more so are his dogs. It is after all reasonable that everyone should do as he wishes with his rations, and it would greatly facilitate the solution of the dog food problem if this could be established. (Cheers.) With reference to what Miss Thornton has said about horses there is of course no doubt that a large proportion of the horses now at work are underfed and overworked, but the difficulty of preventing unfit horses from being worked lies in proving that they are as unfit as they look. Many horses, like many people, are wretchedly thin, and yet fit for work and in good health. There are certain recognised symptoms in the case of the horse that is unfit for work. When these symptoms are present the remedy can be applied, but not otherwise. It would greatly help to lessen the evil Miss Thornton has referred to if every one reported cases without delay to the Society, so that they might be at once investigated and dealt with.

MISS THORNTON maintained that she was not likely to be mistaken in her judgment. Every horse she reported had afterwards been destroyed. She could go and easily find numbers of horses that ought to be destroyed.

MR. ASLETT :—I am glad to have the honour of seconding this Resolution, with which I am sure all Members and friends of our cause will be in hearty agreement. It has been a great pleasure for me to see Sir Edward in the Chair, as I saw him last year, and to listen to all he had to say in connection with this extensive and excellent Report issued by the Society. I should like to see it circulated throughout the country, and be in the hands of millions as well as be sent all over the world. I should like also to thank Captain Fairholme for issuing these splendid leaflets on the lost dogs and the feeding of dogs. I think it should be widely known that the instructions of the Police now are that the stray dogs can only be kept for three days in future. Advertisements mean money, but it is well that owners of dogs should know this in case their pets became lost. (Hear, hear.) It was a surprise to me to learn that London contributed only about £2,000 a year to the Society's funds. You have to be very careful of the way in which you use the funds in these exceptional days. We are told to reduce our expenditure, and this means I am afraid less for the animals. At any rate I hope before long that we shall see London's contribution, in the words of our Treasurer, reaching to at least £10,000. (Cheers.)

The Resolution was carried amid cheers.

THE CHAIRMAN :—I thank you most warmly, Ladies and Gentlemen, for the kind vote of thanks just passed. I really feel that I do not deserve any thanks. I have undertaken several other public duties, so that I cannot devote the time I should like to give to the Society, to which I am very devoted. I rather accept your Resolution as a vote of thanks to the Council who have served you so loyally and assiduously during the past year. I feel I should like to pay a special tribute to my colleague, Mr. Dixey, who has very ably taken on his shoulders a considerable portion of my work. Also we owe a sincere debt of gratitude to Captain Fairholme and his excellent staff. I have had the pleasure of serving with Captain Fairholme several years, and I know how devotedly, unselfishly and immeasurably he works to further the cause of kindness to animals. Once more I thank you. (Applause.)

THE IMPERATIVE NEED OF LEGACIES.

The Society is greatly in need of funds to carry on and extend its great work. It is important, therefore, that the kind-hearted and generous public should remember that it is the ONLY SOCIETY WORKING FOR THE WELFARE OF ANIMALS which maintains a large staff of UNIFORMED INSPECTORS to carry on the work of prevention.

The only means of insuring that this work can be carried on is by increasing the Society's income, and this can only be done by leaving legacies for its benefit.

FORM OF BEQUEST.

To those benevolent individuals who may be inclined to become benefactors by Will to this Society, the following form is respectfully suggested :—

*" I give and bequeath the sum of £.....
" to be paid to the Treasurer for the time being of THE ROYAL SOCIETY FOR
" THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS, established 1824 ; to be at the " disposal of the Council for the time being of the said Society ; and I direct
" that the same be paid free of legacy duty."*

CAUTION.

It is of great importance to describe very accurately the title of this Society, namely—
" THE ROYAL SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS, established 1824 ;" otherwise the benevolent intentions of the Donor may be contested in a Court of Law with consequent expenses.

By the Act of 7 William IV and 1 Victoria, cap. 26, all Wills or Codicils must be in Writing signed by the Testator, and attested by two witnesses in the presence of the Testator and of each other.

The R.S.P.C.A. Educational Work.

The Band of Mercy.
A Junior
R.S.P.C.A.

The change which has taken place in public opinion during the past forty years, in regard to the treatment of animals, is due—in no small degree—to the educational activities of the R.S.P.C.A. during that period.

The importance of inculcating the principles of kindness to dumb creatures in the minds of the young was felt by those to whose care the management of the Society was entrusted. It was this which led to the inauguration of the Band of Mercy Movement, by means of which the children are gradually trained in habits of kindness and gentleness towards all God's creatures. The Bands, numbering close upon eight hundred, have been formed throughout the United Kingdom, and have extended to every part of the globe, including Canada, Australia, South and West Africa, as well as the United States of America, and the Continent of Europe. It is the aim of the Council of the R.S.P.C.A., with the co-operation of those who realize the benefit to animals resulting from this movement, to establish Bands of Mercy in every town and village throughout the world, where English-speaking children are to be found.

The inauguration of Bands of Mercy, like that of Bands of Hope, is a simple matter. All that is required is the voluntary work of an organizer who will collect the children as members, and teach them their duty towards all animals. Such Bands may be started with Natural History lessons, once a month or oftener, at the wish of the organizer, and the meetings may be held in schools, or in conjunction with other gatherings of children, or they may be worked on independent lines. All that the children, on their part, have to do is to take a pledge of kindness, which, as time goes on, becomes part and parcel of their character. In schools this organization is a simple matter, for the Code of Regulations issued by the Board of Education suggests, among other things, that children should be taught to appreciate and understand animals. Much, of course, depends upon the teacher, who can give added interest to dictation, copy-writing, reading, and composition classes, by occasionally setting lessons about animal life.

In order to encourage the Band of Mercy Movement, the R.S.P.C.A. issues a bright monthly magazine, at ½d., called "The Band of Mercy," as well as a Service Book, Song Book, and numerous attractive and instructive leaflets. The Society also encourages the organizing of dramatic representations by members of the Bands, and has issued a volume of children's plays, cantatas, etc., entitled the "Band of Mercy Entertainer." The Chief Secretary of the R.S.P.C.A., 105, Jermyn Street, S.W., (1) will at all times be ready to tender advice and assistance to those who write to him, and will forward on application a Booklet ("Band of Mercy Information") giving all particulars, with lists of slides, places where Bands of Mercy have been formed, etc.

Animal Sunday.

For nearly fifty years it has been the practice of the Council of the Society to invite the clergy to preach, on the Fourth Sunday after Trinity, on the duty of justice and mercy to animals. This Sunday has been selected for this object, owing to the special appropriateness of the Collect, Epistle, and Gospel for that day. The initiation of this movement dates back to the year 1865, when Dean Stanley preached on the subject in the Chapel Royal, Whitehall. In the following year the invitation was responded to by 610 clergy.

Last year a letter was addressed to all the clergy of the Church of England, and the Nonconformist Ministers in England and Wales, with the gratifying result that no fewer than 6,400 sermons on kindness to the dumb creation were preached. It will easily be realised that the effect of the attention of the congregations, in six thousand four hundred Churches and Chapels, being directed to the duty of kindness to animals, must of necessity be considerable. Offertory collections are not asked for, although contributions to the funds of the R.S.P.C.A. are always welcome. The Council of the R.S.P.C.A. sincerely hope that the number of those clergy and ministers who assist the cause, by their advocacy from the pulpit, will increase year by year. Special sermons and suggested outlines of sermons and Sunday School lessons, together with hymn papers, are sent out with the annual invitation to preach, and grants of suitable literature for use in churches are forwarded gratis, on application to the Chief Secretary, Prize Essay Competitions in Schools.

Forty-six years have passed since the Ladies' Education Committee of the R.S.P.C.A. first invited the Metropolitan Schools to write Essays on "The Duty of Kindness to Animals," and kindred subjects. The competition has been continued annually, and the number of Schools which have competed has grown year by year.

The object of the Society in organising these competitions is to instruct the minds, and educate the hearts, of children and teachers in their duty towards animals. The composition and compilation of any essay cannot be accomplished without reading and thinking, and is seldom undertaken without more or less conversation on the subject with all the members of the writer's family. Hence the process is far-reaching, and tends to awaken interest in dumb creatures, as well as to remove ignorance, which is a parent of cruelty. Full particulars as to these Competitions can be had on application to the Chief Secretary.

THE LEAGUE is carrying on a great and necessary work in rescuing, receiving and mercifully destroying stray and unwanted domestic animals, principally belonging to the poorest people, which otherwise would starve and perish miserably.

Attention is directed to the following points:—

During 1917 no fewer than 30,957 animals were painlessly destroyed.

No fees whatever are charged for the work of destruction.

No animals are sold after being received by the League.

The expenses last year greatly exceeded the subscriptions, and there was a total deficiency of £136 7s. 1d.

The public are cordially invited to view the League premises at 397, City Road, next door to the Finsbury Tube Station.

INFORMATION RESPECTING PROSECUTIONS,
AND CONVICTIONS.

Necessary Procedure when witnessing cases of cruelty.

Modes of Procedure.

The Statute 1 & 2, Geo. 5, ch. 27, provides three means by which perpetrators of cruelty to animals may be punished :—

I. By a policeman taking an offender into custody. Only a police-constable can arrest an offender, either on his own view upon the complaint of any other person, when he must act on his own responsibility.

The horse and vehicle, or an animal in charge of any person taken into custody, may be conveyed to a place of safe keeping for production at the hearing, and to provide security for the payment of the penalty and expenses to which the accused, or the owner, may become liable; and in default of payment of such penalty and expenses, the Magistrate may order the animal and the vehicle to be sold forthwith to discharge the said liability.

II. By Summons. First obtain the name and address of the offender, and that painted on the vehicle in his charge (if any), and lay the complaint before a Justice of the Peace within whose jurisdiction the offence shall have been committed. This must be done WITHIN SIX CALENDAR MONTHS after the commission of the act complained of.

III. By Warrant. This is desirable in all cases where there is reason to believe the offender will evade a summons by absconding. Make complaint to a Magistrate, who will require you to satisfy him that the accused has committed an offence and is likely to abscond, which must be by sworn "information" in writing.

When a witness doubts his own ability to conduct proceedings under the Statute successfully, or the Police think that the Society can prosecute with better effect themselves, applications and particulars should be sent to an Inspector of the Society, or to the Secretary, 105, Jermyn Street, London.

Nature of Evidence.

Should the accused be the driver or conductor of an omnibus, cab, or other public vehicle, obtain his name, address, and number of badge, also the name, address, and number on the said omnibus, cab, or other vehicle; if he be a drover, take the number of his badge, demand to see his licence, note whether or not the number of the badge and the description of the drover upon the licence are correct and make an extract from licence of the name and address of the drover.

Make a note of the time when, and the street or place where, the offence occurred. If for driving a horse or other animal with galled neck or shoulders, or other wounds, note the size and situation of such wounds, especially if old, discharging, and in contact with the harness, and examine the collar or harness for adhering particles of matter and dried blood: if for flogging or beating note the number of blows, and on what part of the body inflicted, and the effect (if any) on the skin of the animal ; if for lameness, ascertain particularly whether or not there is suffering, or inflammation in the injured part, as lameness is not always an indication of pain ; if for weakness or infirmity, take care to have a witness to give evidence of the bodily condition, age, and incapacity of the animal, and the labour exacted from it ; if for overloading, it is indispensable to show painful distress of the animal—e.g. trembling, falling, unusual perspiration, or exhaustion—or to show violence on the part of the driver ; if for mutilation, or any other torture, observe minutely and take down in writing the precise character of the same in detail. If for starving animals, overstocking cows, exposing shorn sheep to cold atmosphere, or other acts difficult for a private person to prove, a Veterinary Surgeon should be called to examine the animals at the time of the offence, or as soon afterwards as possible, and he should be produced as a witness at the hearing.

It is important to remember the exact words of accused when stopped, which frequently amount to an admission of guilt.

In every case (if possible) obtain the name and address of a respectable witness willing to give supporting evidence. If unwilling, such witness may be summoned to appear.

Advice and Assistance.

The foregoing remarks refer to the most common acts of cruelty to animals. The reader will find in the sections of the statutes many specific offences specially provided for by the Legislature. General cruelty is brought under purview and punishment by comprehensive phraseology. Occasionally it may be necessary, therefore, to seek further information as to the provisions of the law relating to ordinary or extraordinary forms of cruelty, to the nature and amount of evidence necessary to establish an offence, or to the meaning of obscure language in the statute. It often occurs that persons regard the discovery of offences, and even the prosecution of offenders, as operations beyond their experience or capacity, or as an odious obligation which should be undertaken by a Society established for the enforcement of the law. In such instances it may be desirable to consult the R.S.P.C.A., whose advice and assistance are given to non-members as well as to members of the Institution.

It is requested that the particulars of an act of cruelty forwarded to the Secretary may be made full and precise, and delivered as soon as possible after the offence ; and it is earnestly hoped that personal inconvenience, arising out of proceedings, will not deter persons from co-operating with the Inspectors.

Upon any respectable person furnishing particulars of an act of cruelty, personally or by letter, proper inquiries will be made and, subject to the accumulation of sufficient evidence, the Secretary will prosecute without expense to the applicant, and without his assistance, except in so far as may be necessary for the conviction of the offender. The names of persons, and letters supplying information, are kept strictly private and confidential when secrecy is enjoined. Correspondents are particularly desired to give their names, or other witnesses, from whom further particulars may be obtained if needed. Neglect of this precaution frequently prevents the investigation of complaints. If names cannot be sent to the Society in confidence, the correspondent cannot be credited.

£24,750,000
Saved
to the Nation

Last year 580,000 Wounded and War-worn Horses were treated at the Veterinary Hospitals of the British Army at the Front. Of this number no less than 450,000 were restored to health and usefulness, 75,000 remaining under treatment. At the average cost of £55 per horse, those restored represent the extraordinary saving of £24,750,000 in one year—a tribute to the work of the Army Veterinary Service, assisted by the

R.S.P.C.A. FUND

FOR SICK AND WOUNDED HORSES

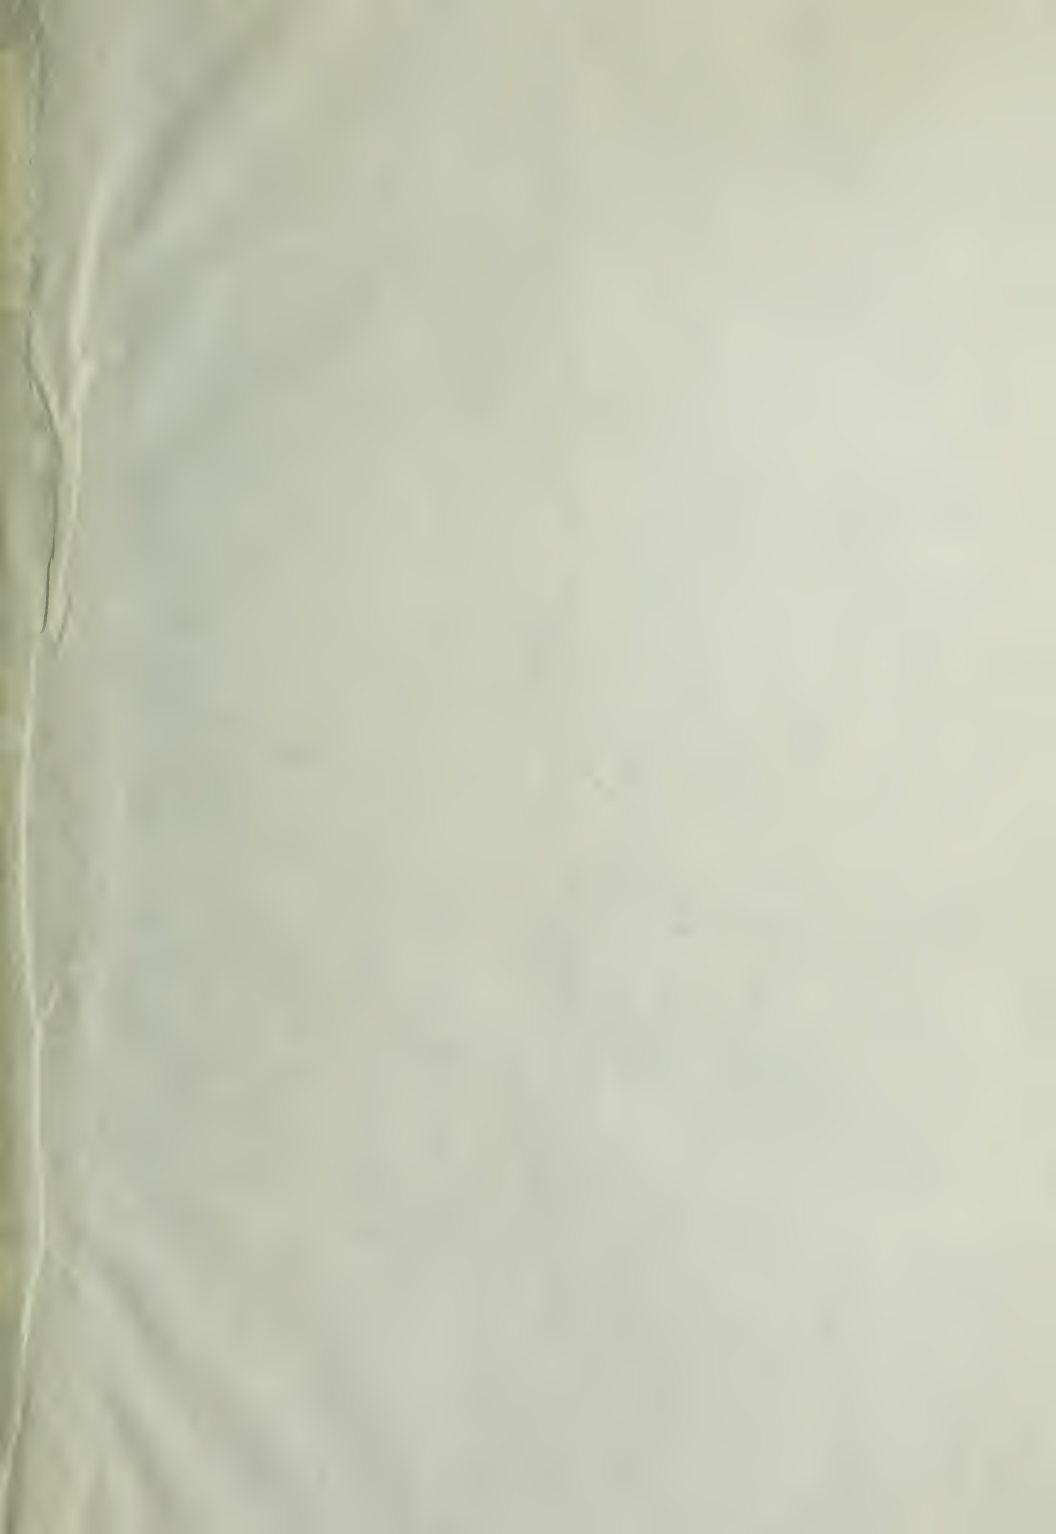

(the only Fund authorised by the Army Council to assist the A.V.C.)

that must appeal to everyone who loves horses. Already we have spent £180,000 in saving the horses at the Front, and we now seek another £50,000 to provide further Hospitals, and to meet the many other calls made upon us as the Front changes, and to replace worn-out equipment.

You, no more than we ourselves, can ever forget the splendid work done by the British horses, and the still greater "cry" of the men who depend upon the horses. Will you give us further help to carry on this splendid work, and get your friends to help us also?
